Elect G. O. P. Congress, He Urges.

BY ARTHUR CRAWFORD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 29.—[Special.]—Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon, in an address tonight, urged election of a Republican congress as a means of insuring cooperation with President Hoover in measures designed to restore prosperity.

Mr. Mellon spoke under the auspices of the Republican national committee. It was one of the few political speeches made by him during his career and his only one in the present campaign.

He is the seventh of the Hoover cabinet members to take the stump for the Republicans recently. All of them, like Mr. Mellon, have emphasized the Republican contention that President Hoover, with the aid of a friendly congress, can bring about normal business conditions.

"The administration is doing all it can, both to alleviate suffering and to hasten recovery from the present depression," said Secretary Mellon. "It cannot work miracles. The most that any administration can do is to keep the boat steady and headed in the right direction until the storm blows over; and that the President has shown he is well able to do.

Unfair to Blame Him.

"He cannot be held responsible for the extent or violence of the storm any more than he can be blamed for the drought which added one more plague to those that beset us last summer.

"President Hoover has shown himself a man capable of dealing with great emergencies. I am confident that he will lead the country out of its present difficulties, but if he is to do so with a minimum of friction and loss of time, his hands should not be tied by a congress controlled by his political opponents.

"It is not a time for divided authority. It is rather a time for strong and united action, and in asking support for the President and the administration I do so in the belief that in this way we shall attain most quickly that full measure of economic recovery which is inevitable in a nation so self-reliant and so justifiably confident of the future."

Nation's Finances Sound.

Secretary Mellon said that the administration is prepared to defend its record.

"It can be said that the government's finances are in a sound condition," said Mr. Mellon. "The last fiscal year closed with a satisfactory surplus. Up to June 30 last $1,051,000,000 of the public debt had been retired since the beginning of the present administration. This, added to the amounts which have been retired since the Republican party came into office in 1921, makes a total of nearly eight billion dollars of public debt which has been paid off. The importance of these debt retirements may be seen in the fact that they, together with refunding operations at lower rates of interest, have resulted in a saving to the government of interest payments of nearly a million dollars a day.

"The tariff has been revised in accordance with the promise of the administration to extend the benefits of protection to agriculture. The bill is not free from defects. No tariff bill is. But this measure at least, by its own terms, provides the means whereby errors and inequalities may be adjusted.

Helps Farmers Help Selves.

"The administration has made a positive and constructive effort to find some solution of the difficulties with which agriculture is confronted in this country. Under the authority of the agricultural marketing act the federal farm board is assisting farmers to set up their own marketing agencies, owned and controlled by the cooperatives that form them, so that these organizations are the marketing agencies of the farmers themselves and are not, in any sense of the word, governmental agencies.

"Not only has the government kept its own house in order, but it has held itself in readiness to meet unexpected emergencies that arise from time to time and call for prompt and decisive action. The government was faced with such a situation in the current business depression. The scope of governmental activities was necessarily limited, but within those limits the President acted with decision and courage."

Secretary Mellon said that the pres-

$10,000 UNPAID RANSOM STIRS KIDNAP GANG

Yocum Enlists Aid of Authorities.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.

Galva, Ill., Oct. 30.—[Special.]—Fifty vigilantes armed with rifles and shotguns early this morning were guarding the estate and residence of Earl L. Yocum, bank president, from a threatened bomb attack.

Yocum, who was kidnaped last Saturday night at the porte cochere of his home, returned yesterday morning after three and a half days of unexplained captivity during which his wife and friends had completed negotiations for the payment of a $50,000 ransom to the kidnaping gang.

The guards were given orders to shoot to kill any one who might approach the banker's home.

But the ransom was not paid in full, it was learned, for at 10 o'clock last night a man telephoned the Yocum home and threatened to bomb it unless $10,000 was paid immediately. Then it was disclosed that part of the ransom had been paid, how much was not learned, and that the remainder was to be paid in installments, the $10,000 yesterday noon.

Banker Enlists Authorities.

Confronted with the bombing threat, Yocum is said to have reversed his previous refusal to assist the authorities in their effort to track down the kidnapers and to have appealed for help to Chief Walter Moody of the state highway police and Sheriff Charles Nash. The vigilante army was the result.

Shortly after midnight the vigilantes made their appearance at the entrance to the Yocum estate. They included state highway policemen, deputy sheriffs, and members of the American Legion. All were armed and they had with them a battery of fifteen large searchlights, which were trained on the mansion from all angles and also on distant parts of the grounds.

The guards themselves, under the direction of Chief Moody, were stationed in sentry line around the house, where they settled down with their weapons ready to await the dawn. Chief Moody took up his post in the residence with Yocum, his wife, and their two daughters. The mansion and its grounds resembled a fortress awaiting attack.

Trace Phone Call.

Meanwhile Sheriff Nash with a squad of deputies was on the trail of the telephone caller who had made the bombing threat. Through the assistance of telephone officials the call was traced to a town about 75 miles from Galva. The sheriff refused to disclose the name of this place, but he and his deputies set out on a mission which was supposed to be the capture of the caller.

Earlier in the night Sheriff Nash conducted a raid at Toulon, 14 miles from Galva, and was reproted to have obtained information indicating that Yocum had been concealed there by his kidnapers before his release. No arrests were made, although both the sheriff and Chief Moody had declared before the raid that several arrests were contemplated in connection with the investigation.

Released Near Town.

At 7 yesterday morning Yocum walked into a garage at Atkinson, Ill., 22 miles from here, and hired Virgil Dereu, a mechanic, to drive him to Galva. At 8 o'clock he walked up the steps of his home and smilingly greeted his wife and their two daughters.

He refused to say where he had been since Saturday night when he was thrust by two men into an automobile at the gateway of his estate. He said he had been under an armed guard in some place of confinement. He had written two letters to his wife at the dictation of the kidnapers. The terms of ransom for his release had been met, he said.

Takes Experience Lightly.

A short, stocky man with a ruddy face and quick smile, the 50 year old banker acted as if his experience had been a pleasant week-end in the country. He had been well fed and housed, he said, and treated with courtesy. He was allowed to read newspaper stories of the kidnaping. His only complaint was that he had not been allowed to bathe or shave.

Early in the morning, he declared, he was taken blindfolded from the hiding place, driven "a lengthy distance," and put down upon the road. Remov-

U. S. FLYER SAFE, SIX OTHERS LOST IN AIR MANHUNT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VANCOUVER, B. C., Oct. 29. — Frank Dorbandt, well known American arctice airman, who disappeared after he left Atlin, B. C., last Monday on a search for Capt. E. J. A. Burke and two companions, missing for eighteen days, is safe, according to word received here tonight. Dorbandt made a forced landing on a frozen lake in the dark when he ran out of gas 50 miles from Atlin. He was found by an Indian trapper.

The American flyer stated he had learned that Burke and two companions had reached a Liard river post in Alaska and had left there to fly back to Atlin Oct. 11. He said he would continue the hunt for Burke through the mountains.

Pat Renahan, who left Vancouver yesterday in the aerial man hunt, has not been heard from since his departure. He did not stop at Prince Rupert and Juneau has not reported his, arrival. He expected to be in Alaska by dark. He is accompanied by Frank Hatcher of Seattle, air engineer, and Sam Clerf, prospector. Capt. Burke's plane left Atlin Oct. 10 for the Liard river post.

Golden Rule Plan Proposed to Save Bank

A plan whereby the 30,000 depositors of the Lake View State bank at 3179 North Clark street, closed six weeks ago by State Auditor Oscar Nelson, may reorganize the institution on the principle of the "golden rule" and elect their own officers was announced last night following an all day massmeeting in an empty store building at 3160 North Clark street.

The plan is said to be without precedent in Chicago finance. It is described as "based upon mutual faith in each man's integrity," and its announced purpose is to aid the individual with frozen assets by letting him "pay as he can." In addition the depositors would agree they will not withdraw more than 50 per cent of their accounts, if any.

Five in Charge of Meeting.

Those in charge of yesterday's massmeeting were : George J. Kappes, realty broker; Claude Nichols, president of the Belt Casualty Insurance company; Street Lightfoot, president of the Acacia Mausoleum corporation; Miss Gladys R. McCarthy, treasurer of the Chicago Hotel Men's association and secretary of the Shorecrest hotel, and Thomas R. Ferguson, advertising agent.

These five represent the depositors in what was described at the massmeeting as "a strike against the regime of the former officers." They are headed by E. D. McCabe as chairman of the board and William O. J. Hattstaedt, president. The differences between the depositors and the former officers center mainly in the receivership. State Auditor Nelson appointed the Chicago Trust company receiver. The view of the depositors as expressed by Mr. Kappes is: "We are afraid a receivership may cost a lot. We don't want to force any man into bankruptcy."

Would Dissolve Receivership.

Mr. Kappes explained that the plan contemplated the dissolution of the receivership through united action and voluntary agreements by the depositors.

"This is a constructive move by the business men and residents of the Lake View district," he said, "to insure an orderly liquidation of the bank's assets at the least possible expense rather than a forced liquidation that may prove costly."

Mr. Kappes and his associates have submitted their plan to a firm of lawyers specializing in banking matters and have been informed it is within the law.

"In other words" Mr. Kappes concluded, "it will be all right to run the institution's affairs by popular vote."

KILLED BY FALL FROM EVANSTON RAILWAY VIADUCT

Sperry B. Pope, 60 years old, 675 Greenwood avenue, Glencoe, was fatally injured last night when he fell from the North Shore line viaduct over Church street, Evanston, to which he had climbed to wait for a train to pass.

Mr. Pope, who was a salesman for the Phoenix Mutual Life Insurance company, was believed to have entered the elevated railroad station by mistake and then, after reaching the platform, to have tried to cross over to the North Shore line tracks. Hearing a train coming he stepped to a concrete abutment and lost his balance and fell to the street.

Two taxicab drivers, who witnessed his fall, took him to the Evanston hospital where he died a few minutes after his arrival. He is survived by his widow and a daughter.

DENIES HOOVER WILL VOICE HIS DRY LAW VIEWS

Washington, D. C., Oct. 29.—[Special.]—Reports current in Washington the last few days concerning a possible pronouncement by President Hoover on the prohibition question on the eve of election were quieted by an authority close to the White House today with the statement, "This is open season for rumors."

Before expressing any views on what he now sees as one of the pressing problems of his administration, the President desires to study the report of the Wickersham commission, which has now decided to submit to him its findings on prohibition in December.

Finds 15 Flat Building on His "Vacant" Lot

Ralph William Sallstrom of Glendale, Cal., was surprised a few days ago when he went to what he thought was a vacant lot at Rockwell street and Glenlake avenue, part of the estate of his father, and found instead a 15 apartment building. He was further surprised when he discovered that the property on which the flat building was standing was presumably owned by B. M. Berman, under a guaranteed title.

An investigation by Sergt. Michael Ahern of the state's attorney's office disclosed evidence of a fraud alleged to have been participated in by four men, one of them a lawyer and another a brother of a Municipal court judge. Attorneys say that Sallstrom, as a result of the alleged fraud, may become the possessor of a 15 apartment building not heretofore reckoned as an asset of his father's estate.

Report True Bills Voted.

The story of the transaction was told to the grand jury yesterday by Sergt. Ahern and Attorney Carl E. Faust of the Chicago Title and Trust company. It was reported that true bills charging forgery and uttering of a false document were voted against the men alleged to have been involved.

In August, 1928, Charles Sallstrom, owner of the lot, decided to move to Glendale, Cal., with his family, the jurors were told. He decided to close out his Chicago holdings and went to the real estate office of C. E. Doty at Devon and Washtenaw avenues to list the property for sale. Instead of seeing Doty, it was said, he met Fred L. Padden, brother of Judge Frank Padden. Fred Padden, who lived at 2308 Wilson avenue, was a clerk in the office. Sallstrom told Padden to sell the property.

Testimony on Deal.

Padden, it is alleged, met Lawrence F. Parker, 8832 South Parnell avenue, and told him of Sallstrom's visit. It is alleged that they decided to get some one to pose as Sallstrom and an authorize Doty, who had never seen Sallstrom, to sell the property quickly. John P. Moran, said by Sergt. Ahern to have a police record, was taken into the deal and he posed as Sallstrom, according to the testimony.

According to the records the property was sold to Berman for $5,000 cash and two mortgages of $2,500 each. Berman, it was stated yesterday, had no knowledge that he was not dealing with the real owner. The deal, it was said, was closed in the office of Attorney Richard Donovan, 77 West Washington street.

Attorney Donovan, it is charged, was told of the scheme and he agreed to get the Title and Trust company to guarantee the title.

Doty, it is said, took his $500 commission from the sale price and turned the $4,500 over to the man who posed as Sallstrom. The money was divided among the alleged conspirators, it is charged.

Returns to Chicago.

In the meantime Berman constructed his apartment building, which is said to be worth more than $100,000. The elder Sallstrom died recently and his son returned to Chicago.

It was pointed out by some real estate experts that, inasmuch as the Sallstrom family had no knowledge of the fact that the apartment building was being erected on their lot, the building will revert to the estate.

The grand jury, having listened to the story by Sergt. Ahearn and Attorney Faust, was reported to have voted true bills against Padden, Attorney Donovan, Parker, and Moran. Attorney Donovan protested his innocence. Padden and the others, however, are said to have made some admissions.

MRS. M'CORMICK GIBES AT FOE'S GLOOM PICTURE

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Illinois' senatorship battle became hectic yesterday with Ruth Hanna McCormick, Republican, and James Hamilton Lewis, Democrat, tilting at each other in a tournament of irony, sarcasm and ridicule.

"Gloom Balloons Bursting."

Mrs. McCormick declared that the biggest of the Democratic "gloom balloons" has been burst by none other than John J. Raskob, national chairman and "angel" of the Democratic party, in his statement that in three months depression will be over and all voices will be uplifted in "Happy Days Are Here Again."

Balloon No. 2 she described as punctured by Mayor Thompson in crumpling Mr. Lewis' "favorite argument" that she was allied with the city hall.

The recent radio speech of Mr. Raskob saying prosperity is on its way was taken as text by Mrs. McCormick at two noon loop rallies that packed the Apollo and Grand theaters. They were lively sessions, full of snap and ginger.

Nominee Battles Hecklers.

"Ray for J. Ham," sang a voice from the gallery at the Grand.

"You elect him and try to get a job," sang out Mrs. McCormick, off the bat, while the audience roared.

To another heckler Mrs. McCormick rejoined, "You go back and tell Big Bill we're getting along quite nicely over here."

There was a chorus of "Throw him out."

"No, let him stay and learn something," said Mrs. McCormick, while the audience laughed so hard a man fell out of his seat in the orchestra pit with a thud.

Gives Thanks to Raskob.

"The voters owe a debt of gratitude to John J. Raskob, chairman of the Democratic national committee," said Mrs. McCormick, "for giving us a true picture of the unemployment situation in America.

"J. Ham Lewis for three months has been spreading gloom over audiences, and suddenly the leader of his party, the same man who led Al Smith's battle in 1928, makes a speech over the radio which was a burst of sunshine.

"Mr. Raskob's burst of sunshine has deflated one more of the Democratic gloom balloons. Last week Bill Thompson punctured another of the Illinois democracy's biggest and best balloons. Big Bill could not wait until after election to tell the people he was against me, thereby smashing the favorite argument of the Democratic candidate for senator that I was the ally of the spokesman for Big Bill's political gang.

Recalls Lewis' Tariff Vote.

"If the campaign continues a few more days in this way, there will be nothing left for Mr. Lewis to run on except his own record in the senate when he voted for the Underwood tariff bill which struck a terrific blow at American labor.

"For partisan purposes Mr. Lewis has been trying to make it appear that conditions in America are desperate. To advance his own election prospects he has been selling the United States short. He has no confidence in American business men and in the intelligence of the people.

"Mr. Raskob is not only a Democrat, but he is in control of vast business interests. Listening to his words to the entire country over the radio last Monday night we see how they compare with the gloomy forebodings of our gloomy Democratic candidate in Illinois.

She Quotes Raskob Speech.

"I quote this closing paragraph from Mr. Raskob's speech:

"'In closing let me say that no country in the world, not even our own, was ever in as splendid position to go forward and enjoy a period of

The Automobile Dollar Is the Biggest in Many Years

Many years ago some ingenious prehistoric fellow made a discovery. Up to his time the only vehicles the people had were crude sledges which they dragged along the ground. This, of course, was pretty tough work and joy-rides were taken only on very special occasions. Then one day this ancient citizen, watching a stone roll down hill, was struck with a tremendous idea. He would put wheels on sledges and let them roll along instead of dragging.

Even after all these years nobody has been able to improve upon the basic idea of the wheel. All the improvements have been in the way of refinements.

To get what we mean, look at the latest model automobile. It's just a wagon on wheels that makes itself go. But what a wagon! And what refinements! Compare a 1931 model with one of 1921 and note what you get for your money. Car prices are very low this year. But so are prices of the things that make up a car. The makers have passed along the difference.

Now is a good time to buy an auto if you are going to buy one in the next couple of years. Your dollar probably will buy more car today than it will for a long time to come.

prosperity as our country is today. Everything has been thoroughly deflated and business is now turning upward. The momentum is necessarily slow at first, but within three months, with the impetus the automobile industry is sure to provide starting with the January shows, we will quickly leave depression behind and all be singing "Happys Days Are Here Again."

"That is the deliberate, considered prediction of the leader of the Democratic party in the United States of America. It was published in yesterday's newspapers and I gather that it was a sad blow to James Hamilton Lewis as he sat at the breakfast table and saw the utter collapse of his favorite campaign issue in Illinois."

Talks of Lewis and Mayor.

Mr. Lewis' declaration that he "has not talked with the mayor for two years" was taken up by Mrs. McCormick in her night utterances.

"It will take a stronger repudiation than that to convice the voters that there is no Thompson-Lewis machine," she said. "Thus a vital question of good government is injected into the campaign at the last moment.

"A vote for Mr. Lewis for senator means a vote for Big Bill Thompson for mayor next spring.

"My Democratic opponent has made the charge that I have been in alliance with Big Bill, mayor of Chicago. He has said downstate that I was not only a political associate of a discredited mayor of Chicago, but that I was actually the mouthpiece of the city hall gang and that Big Bill and I had a deal whereby he would help to elect me United States senator and that I in return would assist him to be reëlected mayor of Chicago.

Points to Her Denials.

"Many have heard me deny these charges in public speeches but the Democratic candidate kept on reiterating the falsehood and to his voice was added the written falsehoods in many newspapers and periodicals.

"It was even said that I was in alliance with Al Capone.

"The other day Big Bill Thompson publicly declared that he had never been for me politically and that I had never been for him. At last the truth was out. Suddenly the picture is transformed. Instead of a plot existing between me and Big Bill Thompson to further our mutual political fortunes, the shoe is on the other foot.

"Now it is disclosed that Mayor Thompson, in collusion with the Democratic leaders who are managing the campaign of Mr. Lewis, hopes to be reelected mayor by fighting me openly and by secretly accepting support of his Democratic friends, Tony Cermak and Mike Igoe, when he runs for mayor again next spring.

"I make the charge that the Democratic leaders and the Democratic candidate have deliberately and with shameless hypocrisy sought to delude the people of Illinois into believing that I was working with Bill Thompson's gang when they themselves were secretly completing a deal with them."

LEWIS EXPLAINS MAYOR

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

James Hamilton Lewis offered for the first time yesterday his solution of the political mystery of the day—why Mayor Thompson has chosen to go Democratic in the present national senatorial race and support him rather than the candidate of his own party, Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick.

Lewis treated as "ridiculous and silly" the charges made by Mrs. McCormick that he was in alliance with Thompsonism and crime, but did not take this occasion to throw any brickbats at the mayor. "That eminent gentleman in the city hall," was his harshest language. He pictured Thompson as a political refugee.

His explanation, in brief, is that the mayor, on recovering his health and being led into the belief that he could be renominated, had found that he could not hope for victory if he was in alliance with that party and candidate that promised to bring "blue laws" back to Chicago, but was forced by circumstances to appeal to the "liberal vote" and was thus thinking only of his own political welfare in this move.

Mr. Lewis spoke at noon at the Adelphi theater, at 3 o'clock at the University of Chicago, and in the evening at Loyola university.

The theater was packed to the wings and aisles. The meeting opened with the "Star Spangled Banner," but only a few in the audience mumbled the words.

The Democratic spellbinders made the most of the unemployment situation. Clayton Smith, the chairman, is almost ready to join the bread line, to hear him talk about it. And it is all due to the Republicans, they agreed. Mr. Lewis said he did not blame President Hoover, but that the President had been seized by his "administration," and the "privileged east has been favored over the toilers of the west."

The Mayor Is Discussed.

The nominee was in fine voice and his remarks about "the lady" and "the gentleman" (Mrs. McCormick and the mayor) were embroidered with expressive eyebrow lifting and intonations of voice that cannot be reproduced here.

"This theme is suggested," he said, picking up a newspaper clipping and looking at it as if it contained something very amusing and perhaps poisonous, "that there is something dark and sinister in progress. The mayor seems to have deserted his financée—left her at the church. It is intimated that, politically speaking, I am responsible for forbidding the banns.

"The matter is somewhat ridiculous. I do not know what reason was in the mind of the gentleman. I have not had the honor of seeing the mayor for two years, except once at a meeting of the World's Fair committee. Nor have I had one word of conversation with the two astute managers of the city hall diplomacy, Mr. Harding and Mr. Snow, other than a salutation at some public banquet.

Health Changes Situation.

"I assume that the mayor, long sick, as we read, not knowing and not caring what was done by his lieutenants after regaining the vigor of health, called in his advisers and considered the possibility of his candidacy for another term.

"He saw at once that his candidacy was mortgaged to a program that he could not indorse. He knew that he must bid good-by to hope if he must go against a candidate running on a liberal platform, when he was supporting one for the senate who had said she was dry, and stood for policies that would bring blue laws back to Chicago. He personally opposed such a platform, and needed no referendum to tell him how to think or act.

"His act was not so much against the lady as for himself and his own political preservation. He is not now in accord with his allies who affiliated with the lady upon her offer to them of financial contributions and political assets.

"What is all this brainstorm that has suddenly seized people here and there? Our public in city and state will see this new situation, deadening the referendum into inaction and nothingness.

"Those who projected it now refuse to support it and now declare for the principle opposed to it and assert that no binding effect can it have on the position taken by the mayor on the prohibition issue.

"I may condole with the lady for being deserted by the allies who have been her secret partners these many years. She cries she has been deserted by this eminent gentleman at the city hall and seeks political alimony at the court of public opinion.

"This reminds me of a story of a dear colored fellow who was accused of wife desertion. When the charge was read to him in court he exclaimed: 'I'se no wife deserter. I'se a refugee. You all don't know that woman of mine.'

"A Seeker After Shelter."

"And O, what a refugee! Looking somewhere for political shelter. And during all this time the lady has never made any effort to overcome the policies which have brought miseries now shadowing the souls of thousands. She has not opened her mouth in two years of political life on any matter of relief for her state or fellow citizens.

"You cannot always deceive the people. What else is the object of such a silly, ridiculous display at such a serious hour? What has become of the referendum? It is labeled as something of doubtful parentage and illegitimate. That great sublime contract which was held up as something akin to the Magna Charta. You see the deception and pretense. It was a ladder up the wall, to let the lady climb to the top. Then it was disowned.

Accuses Rival of Faltering.

"The lady is left where she has always been—without a principle or object other than, 'Get me that office.' There are hunger cries from the dark places. Business men are in oppression. We see all about us the rigid rigor of peril. It is not an hour to palter. Illinois stands in the breach.

"The world's eyes are on this commonwealth. Out of the mere partisan zealous cry for a name, will she again degrade herself? Democracy invites you home.

Says G. O. P. Congress Is Vital to Recovery.

ent depression was caused by much the same factors as those of earlier years.

"It was not caused by speculation in stocks, though that was a factor, of course, in the situation," said Mr. Mellon. "Its underlying causes were deeper than that and may be traced primarily to overproduction of certain commodities, especially raw materials, both in this country and abroad.

"Production processes in agriculture and industry had been enlarged throughout the world to supply the needs created by four years of almost universal war. Those needs having been supplied in the ten years that had elapsed since the war ended, there developed a lack of balance between production and consumption in certain commodities, resulting in a falling off in prices of these commodities and a consequent collapse in the buying power of many countries, accentuated in some cases by political upheavals as well as dislocation of trade.

Offers No Predictions.

"No one can make any predictions as to how long it will take for our country to make the readjustment necessary in a time like this.

"But of one thing we can be certain: with our great industrial organization, our vast resources, our unparalleled domestic buying power and the indomitable spirit of our people we shall be among the first of all the nations to recover and to resume the onward march of progress."

CONGRESSMEN IN ENCOUNTERS WITH DRY LAW

iview Cases of Morgan and Denison.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

William M. Morgan, dry congressman from Ohio, was subjected to an unpleasant barrage of criticism last year when it was said at the New York customs office that he had admitted having brought four bottles of intoxicating liquor into this country from Cuba under the freedom of the baggage courtesy granted him by the government.

Mr. Morgan denies that he had any liquor in his baggage and the incident was closed when the New York district attorney's office and the treasury department at Washington decided that there was no evidence against him and that they would go no further with it.

Evidence of Customs Inspector.

The only evidence upon which this charge is based comes from Customs Inspector Louis E. Crawford, and he never saw any liquor.

Mr. Morgan and his wife arrived in New York on the steamship Cristobal from Cuba on March 28, 1929. They had nine pieces of baggage. Crawford was detailed to examine their baggage. A forty page transcript of testimony concerning what happened at the docks was taken in the office of United States Attorney Charles H. Tuttle the next day. In this Crawford is quoted as follows:

"I says, 'Have you any liquor in your baggage?' He says, I think he says, 'We have.' He says, 'Two quarts, two bottles' [I don't know whether it was two quarts. 'Two bottles of champagne and two of whisky.' I says to Mr. Morgan, 'You are a congressman and you know it is against the law to import liquor into this country.' He says, 'I do.' So I says, 'We will have to seize it; will you kindly open your baggage.' I says, 'I do not have to open my baggage; I have a free entry.' So I left him then and went to a staff officer to receive a waiver."

Baggage Is Admitted.

The staff officer, Louis Kleinbohl, after more parleying, indorsing Mr. Morgan's declaration and the baggage went through without examination. Crawford says he told Mr. Kleinbohl about the liquor, and he said, 'What can I do? He has free entry.'"

Mr. Tuttle, on March 31, made this statement:

"It will be seen that, according to the statement of Customs Inspector Crawford, Mr. Morgan stated to him that his wife was bringing in two bottles of whisky and two bottles of champagne for her aged father, and that Mr. Morgan demanded the same free entry as was being accorded certain other congressmen. He threatened to make trouble in Washington unless he was accorded that privilege. Mr. Morgan telephoned from the pier to Mr. Short [deputy collector] and was informed that if the examining inspector found that he was on official business for the government he was entitled to free entry. Nothing was said to Mr. Short in that conversation about liquor.

Baggage Is Passed.

"According to the statement of Kleinbohl, Mr. Morgan then informed him that he was a member of the congressional mission to the Canal Zone. Mr. Kleinbohl so indorsed Mr. Morgan's written declaration, adding the words 'free entry' and thereupon the baggage of Mr. Morgan and his family was passed by Mr. Crawford without opening it or examining it.

"Under the federal law, a wife or husband is not competent to testify in a criminal proceeding involving the other, and moreover, under the prohibition law, Mr. Morgan could not be compelled to testify before a grand jury without receiving immunity."

Mr. Morgan said on March 28:

"I brought no liquor to New York and made no declaration that liquor was included in my baggage. The story is absolutely untrue in every detail. I do not understand how it got aboard. I never took a drink in my life and certainly have no intention of doing now.

Lowman Makes Statement.

Seymour Lowman, assistant secretary of the treasury, said on June 1:

"The sworn statements of the customs officers in New York were taken. They showed conclusively that none of the inspectors saw any liquor in or associated with any of the baggage of Representative Morgan or his family and that the whole matter rested on what was believed by some members of the party to be a discrimination concerning the freedom of the dock and upon conversation which took place at the pier, and different interpretations as to what was said and what transpired in connection with the handling of Representative Morgan's baggage."

It was said at the treasury department that this closed the incident.

THE DENISON CASE

Ernest R. Denison of Marion, Ill., another member of congress backed by the Anti-Saloon league who got into trouble with the federal government over the alleged smuggling of liquor, Mr. Denison and his former secretary, John H. Layne, were indicted on Nov. 19, 1929, by a District of Columbia grand jury on a charge of liquor possession.

The same unexplained delays are found here as in the case of Representative Alfred Michaelson of leaky trunk fame.

The Denison indictment was returned eleven months to a day after federal dry agents, led by Agent Basil N. Quinn, discovered a trunk in Mr. Denison's office in the House office building in Washington. The trunk contained 19 bottles of Scotch, six of gin, and eighteen of assorted liquors, it was charged in the indictment. The date of the alleged possession was Jan. 19, 1929.

Trunk Is Forced Open.

It was a leaky suitcase in the Union station at Washington that led the agents to Mr. Denison's office. According to their story they found the trunk which they forced open in his presence; that he first said that he had lost the key and that when the liquor was found that he pleaded that it be kept out of the newspapers. For some reason, District Attorney Leo A. Rover did not get the evidence until Nov. 6, when he sought the indictment.

Mr. Denison, in a formal statement issued from his home in Marion, said on the day of the indictment:

"When I returned from a trip to Panama last January a mistake was made in checking baggage by the transfer people in New York, and some one else's baggage was checked to me at Washington and mine was left on the docks. The baggage which came to me, which was a military trunk and grip, was found to contain liquor. As soon as that was known I explained the matter fully to the prohibition officers and it was all turned over to them.

"They expressed themselves as being entirely satisfied and said that there would be nothing more to it. The action of the grand jury comes of course as a complete surprise to me. I have brought no intoxicating liquor into this country and will be able to preve that a great mistake has been made."

On March 30 last, with the indictment still pending, the Anti-Saloon League of Illinois, which previously had called Denison a "dry Republican," indorsed him for reelection.

Accompanied by Nephew.

Mr. Denison was accompanied on this trip by his nephew, Charles H. Lane of St. Louis, and the impression was given that the nephew and his secretary, John Layne, may have been confused by the express company, but nothing developed to show it. Secretary Layne denied any knowledge of the liquor. Between Jan. 18 and before Nov. 19, he left Mr. Denison's employ and went to work in the internal revenue bureau.

On Nov. 28, 1929, Mr. Denison posted bonds of $500, but he did not ask for an early hearing.

Nothing developed in the case until June 30, 1930, when Justice Peyton Gordon of the District of Columbia Supreme court, sustained a demurrer to the indictment. The demurrer contended that the raid was made without probable cause and that the indictment was bad in form or substance. So the indictment was quashed. The Layne indictment was quashed at the same time.

District Attorney Rover noted an appeal in the Denison case and gave an appeal order for the record. Nothing more happened until Sept. 8 last, when Mr. Rover announced his intention of appealing the case, stating that he had received authorization from the department of justice to take this step. The next step is the filing of the record of the case in the Court of Appeals.

BIND MAID, LOOT HOME OF $15,000 IN FURNISHINGS

Posing as florist's delivery men, two bandits yesterday gained entrance to the apartment of Asdig Devejian, 2415 Lunt avenue, loaded oriental rugs and antiques valued at $15,000 into a small van and made their getaway. They also took a $700 watch given to Mr. Devejian by the late sultan of Turkey.

Mrs. Jean Lambert, the maid, was bound to a chair and gagged after she had admitted the robbers. After they had left it was two hours before she could free herself and notify the Rogers park police. Sergeant Thomas Leddy responded with Policemen Walter Jones and William Staunton of his squad.

Mr. Devejian, a Syrian, is head of an oriental rug store at 5 South Wabash avenue.

MEDICAL SOCIETY MAKES A REPLY TO ROSENWALD

Invites Him to Discuss Institute Case.

The Chicago Medical society last night renewed its fight against the Public Health institute when it challenged statements said to have been made by Julius Rosewald. The challenge was in the form of an open letter to the philanthropist which was read before a joint meeting of the Chicago Council of Medical Women and the Chicago Medical society in the Medical and Dental Arst building.

The Medical society has ousted from its membership Dr. Louis E. Schmidt, noted surgeon, because he was indirectly connected with the institute.

The letter quotes statements said to have been made by Mr. Rosenwald in a speech before the American Hospital association in New Orleans in which he is quoted as praising the low charges for treatment by the Public Health institute, adding: "There is still serious opposition to these organized self supporting services from certain elements of the medical profession who seem to fear competition." The letter invited Mr. Rosewald to discuss the matter with members of the society.

The Letter to Rosenwald.

The letter, which was read into the records of the society by Dr. James H. Hutton, president of the medical society, said "If Mr. Rosenwald's intention was to indict 'certain elements of the medical profession' for the high cost of medical care, he has been guilty of what might be called a deliberate misstatement. The charges made in hospitals are fixed not by physicians but by business men responsible for their management. The doctors have no more to say about the charges for room rent, laboratory fees, drugs and medicines, than Mr. Rosenwald.

"Mr. Rosenwald is not only unfair, but he is inconsistent. He has stated that 'universities and hospitals have no right to raise huge endowments' and that the receipts of the University of Chicago clinics last year exceeded $500,000. He failed to state, however, that during the first year of operation, the deficit of the clinic referred to exceed $300,000 and that it has been erased by the Rockefeller foundation and other organizations, which may have included the Rosenwald foundation.

"No Quarrel Over Fees."

"Physicians have no quarrel with the Public Health institute on the basis of the fees they charge and they never have had, notwithstanding the smokescreen Dr. Schmidt attempted to raise. It is based entirely on the fact that the Public Health institute resorts to direct advertising, a thing which no honest and reputable hospital or physician will do."

HONEYMOON PAIR ARE CAUSE AND GUESTS OF HOTEL CELEBRATION

New York, Oct. 29.—[Special.]—Mr and Mrs. Milton C. R. Carlson of 3105 45th avenue, Minneapolis, who were married last Saturday and are visiting New York for the first time were surprised today by the management of the Hotel New Yorker when they were moved into the finest suite of the hotel after they had registered for a single room. They were notified that it was the gift of the hotel, made because they were the 500,000th and 500,001st persons to register. In the suite into which they were moved were two dozen American Beauty roses and a five pound box of candy. Mr. Carlson is a traffic agent with the Minneapolis and St. Louis railroad and his wife was the former Miss Margaret Nelson of Minneapolis.

Burned Bald, Girl Charges; Asks $5,000 of Hairdresser

Five thousand dollars for a bald spot was asked yesterday by Miss Florence Butcher, 21 years old, of Whiting, in a suit filed in the Lake County Superior court at Hammond. The bald spot is on Miss Butcher's head, and she alleges that the defendant, Mrs. Leona Daniels, beauty shop proprietor, caused it when she burned her while giving her a permanent wave. Miss Butcher was to have attended a social function in Hammond that night, she alleges, and because of the bald spot she could not go.

Fearsome Tales Thrill the Electorate.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 29.—[Special.]—The struggle for the governorship of New York has revolved for weeks around a series of exciting events that have furnished newspaper readers with a mystery thriller in real life.

All the elements of detective fiction have been provided. There is a mysterious murder that has baffled solution. There is the mysterious disappearance of a judge in broad daylight, also still unsolved. There is the mysterious play of unseen influences controlling the administration of justice, bartering appointment to office and levying tribute from persons of high and low degree. And there is the half glimpsed ramification of relationships between the upper world and the underworld that sound like a chapter of Balzac.

Graft Permeates the Story.

The background of the tale is graft in the municipal administration of New York City under domination of Tammany and other Democratic office holders. Of such grafting about a dozen persons have been convicted up to date and more trials and still more indictments are pending.

The president of the borough of Queens and his chief engineer are in prison, convicted of mulcting the taxpayers of $15,000,000 in sewer construction frauds. The state superintendent of banking, a Tammany man, was convicted of accepting $100,000 in bribes and gratuities to permit the City Trust company to operate after it was insolvent. A Democratic judge on the bank's board of directors resigned from the bench. A Tammany member of the board of assessors, who managed one of the bank's branches, was promoted to higher municipal office.

A $2,000,000 Horse Doctor.

The chairman of the board of standards and appeals, having supervision of building construction, resigned after being indicted for accepting a $30,000 gratuity from a building materials dealer. A veterinarian was found to have received $2,000,000 in fees in eight years from building contractors and others whom he represented before the board. His fees, it is alleged, were split with Tammany leaders.

Three members of the city street cleaning department went to jail for extensive pay roll padding from which Tammany underlings were profiting. Three clerks of the New York county clerk's office were convicted of forgery and complicity to defraud the public. The Richmond county public administrator pleaded guilty to embezzlement. A deputy fire commissioner was indicted.

Who Killed Rothstein?

In the lurid light of Tammany scandals reminiscent of the days of Tweed occurred the murder of Arnold Rothstein, millionaire gambler who linked the upper and the under worlds.

For weeks thereafter the reading public was treated to the thrills of a real detective mystery, with gamblers, demimondaines, judges, and other officials trooping through its pages. Theories were spun and clews were followed, one suspect was tried and acquitted, but the mystery remained a mystery.

The Tammany controlled police were accused of half hearted interest in the apprehension of the murderer because of the danger of disclosure of the high political connections of Rothstein. But the efforts to keep the lid on the Rothsein mystery were not entirely successful. Accidentally it came out that Magistrate Albert H. Vitale had borrowed $19,000 from Rothstein on an unsecured note.

That "Holdup" Dinner.

Vitale, it further transpired, was the guest of honor at a dinner of racketeers, gamblers, and underworld characters which was interrupted by a holdup, said to have been framed for the purpose of obtaining from one of the guests a certain paper incriminating two persons involved in the Rothstein affair. The appellate division of the New York Supreme court removed Vitale from office.

Judge W. Bernard Vause, protégé of John H. McCooey, Democratic boss of Brooklyn, was sentenced to imprisonment for six years for grand larceny and fraudulent use of the mails in connection with the Columbia Finance failure, which cost investors $400,000. It was also disclosed that Judge Vause had received $250,000 in three years for his activities in connection with the leasing of piers.

Magistrate George F. Ewald was director of a mining stock promotion company which went broke. Charles H. Tuttle who is the Republican candidate for governor this election, was then United States attorney. He had the defunct company, in which investors had lost heavily, investigated.

$10,000 "Loan" Disclosed.

The investigators found evidence that at about the time the magistrate was appointed Mrs. Ewald paid $10,000 in currency to Martin J. Healy, district leader of Tammany Hall, who had recommended her husband for appointment.

Mrs. Ewald asserted that the payment was a loan to enable the politician to build a home, though she took no note for the loan. Magistrate Ewald resigned. The grand jury summoned the magistrate, his wife and Healy, all of whom refused to waive immunity from prosecution if they were to testify. The grand jury indicted all three and their trial is pending.

United States Attorney Tuttle charged that Ewald's appointment had been bought from Tammany. Rumors flew that numerous other magistrates and judges had purchased appointments in a like manner. Mr. Tuttle proceeded to subpoena witnesses and the bank books of persons intimate with Healy and Ewald.

Exit Justice Crater.

The next day occurred the mysterious disappearance that gave the thriller from real life a new fillip. On Aug. 6 Justice J. F. Crater of the New York Supreme court for this district drew $25,000 from three bank accounts, stepped into a taxicab along in the afternoon and was not seen again. He vanished completely, leaving not the slightest clew to his fate.

It then transpired that Justice Crater was a close friend of Tammany Leader Healy and had presided at a celebration dinner given to Magistrate Ewald at the time the latter was appointed. In the public mind the disappearance of Crater was linked to the Ewald case.

The scandal became a burning issue in the state election before the end of the summer. The Tammany district attorney failed to have the Ewalds and Tammany Leader Healy indicted. Thereupon the bar association petitioned Gov. Roosevelt to order a special grand jury investigation. The governor complied and intrusted the investigation to Assistant Attorney General Hamilton Ward, a Republican. It was this grand jury that indicted the Ewalds and Healy.

But Attorney General Ward early called attention to the fact that the governor had limited the investigation to the Ewald case instead of granting blanket authority to uncover official corruption in Tammany controlled New York City, as he had previously done in the investigation of corruption in Republican Westchester, Monroe, and Green counties.

Republican Convention Acts.

The special grand jury asked the governor to extend powers so that it could investigate the buying of judgeships generally. Mr. Roosevelt refused, saying he lacked the authority and that the general investigation of the magistrates' courts was being conducted by the Appellate court, which he had asked to act.

As a result of the refusal of city officials and Tammany leaders to waive immunity in the Ewald case the Republican state convention declared for a law to "terminate the tenure of party office or public office of any official who, when called upon to testify regarding public acts, invokes his constitutional privilege and refuses to answer."

The Democratic convention, controlled by Tammany, followed with proposal of a law that the pleading of the constitutional privilege against self-incrimination by an official "shall create a vacancy in his office."

Notwithstanding this party declaration, John F. Curry, head of Tammany Hall, and a score of Tammany officeholders under the city government, when called before the grand jury in the Ewald case, refused to waive immunity. Gov. Roosevelt, in a letter to Mayor Walker, called the attitude of these officeholders "contrary to sound public policy" and suggested that they be given the choice between waiving immunity and dismissal. Mayor Walker complied, but it immediately transpired that Gov. Roosevelt had limited his proposal of waiver of immunity by officials to matters pertaining to their official acts.

As a result of these series of events Mr. Tuttle charges that the Tammany controlled city government reeks with corruption, that judgeships are sold by Tammany over the counter and that Gov. Roosevelt has effectually protected Tammany from inquisition.

Gov. Roosevelt in reply now bases his refusal to extend the powers of the grand jury, not on lack of authority, but on lack of "sufficient evidence" that all officeholders in New York City are dishonest.

ILLINOIS WILL VOTE WET NOV. 4, BRITTEN TELLS STEUBEN CLUB

Illinois will vote wet on election day on Nov. 4 as a protest against lawlessness and corruption and for the best interests of wets and drys alike, Congressman Fred A. Britten declared yesterday at a meeting at the Steuben club. He characterized the Illinois prohibition referendum as a step to remove the gangster, bootlegger, and beer baron.

"The repeal of the eighteenth amendment, and modification of the Volstead act will take excessive profits out of bootlegging and thus end gang wars," the congressman said. "The bootlegger's interest is centered on the profits. Since prohibition the government has lost revenue of not less than $6,000,000,000. Because the law is such a costly failure I believe that dry organizations would be more pleased with state regulation of the liquor traffic rather than the present enforcement.

"The country has been flooded with illegal and largely poisonous liquor. Boys and girls have learned to drink hard liquor and to expect it on their innocent parties, while government officials and serious minded judges of the highest courts publicly laugh at the ridiculous state of affairs which has been brought about by intolerant, fanatical Volstendism."

INDICT FIVE AS LEGAL LIMIT ON TIME IS REACHED

Quick action by the grand jury yesterday resulted in the indictment of five men, officials of Steger, Ill., before the expiration of the statute of limitations. It is charged that the men are guilty of a conspiracy to defraud the treasury of Steger out of some $50,000 through means of paying excessive prices for work, by failing to make property tax returns, and by allowing work to be done without calling for bids.

Those named in the indictments are Jens Hoitomt, former president of the board of trustees; Charles Stein, clerk; John Thorndyke, trustee, and Edward Gast and Adolph Hoitomt, former officials.

Confession Bares Facts.

The disclosures of the alleged irregularities came about through the confession of Stein. The latter was indicted some weeks ago on a different charge. He confessed recently, according to Assistant State's Attorney J. Kent Greene, because he thought that his associates were not coming to his rescue. He told of contracts he had given to Hoitomt's son and of excessive prices being paid.

More Indictments Expected.

It was discovered that the statute of limitations would lapse by today and therefore it was necessary to rush the indictments. Stein was taken before the grand jury and the true bills promptly drawn up by Prosecutor Greene. He said perhaps other indictments where the statute has not operated against prosecution will be returned later.

CRIMINAL COURT.

Henry Willingham, burglary, sentenced to 1 year to life in the penitentiary; John McCoy, robbery, sentenced to 20 years in the penitentiary under habitual criminal act; Earl Smith, assault to rob, sentenced to 1 to 14 years in the penitentiary by Judge Charles A. Williams.

Dancer, Found Dazed, Is Identified by Husband

The young woman who was found early Tuesday wandering in a daze at Clark and Elm streets was identified yesterday at the county hospital by her husband as Diana De Milo, a professional dancer. The husband, George De Milo, who lives at 1790 West Grand avenue, said his wife is subject to fainting spells. Mrs. De Milo is the daughter of Mrs. Ethel Bernard of Joliet.

THRONG CHEERS JUDGE LYLE AT G. O. P. MEETING

'Keep Up the Good Work,' Citizens Shout.

Time out from court was taken yesterday by Municipal Judge John H. Lyle to present himself at a Republican rally as a candidate for reelection. The judge who declared war on all public enemies and hoodlums had spent the morning in court where he made caustic remarks about Acting Police Commissioner Alcock, revealed a new mystery of disappearing warrants, and pronounced a new policy against any one harboring or sheltering a criminal. Then he went to the Grand Opera house.

Shouts and advice to "keep up the good work" greeted him as he stepped on the platform to be introduced by Cornelius J. Doyle, Republican state chairman. As the theater had to be cleared for a matinee there wasn't time for Judge Lyle to speak.

Judge Criticizes Alcock.

In the felony court where he presides, Judge Lyle expressed astonishment at a statement that Joe Aiello, slain public enemy, had spent a week unmolested at the home of Pasquale Prestogiacomo, alias Patsy Presto, who was arraigned as an accessory to the murder.

"We have a chief of police who allows his policemen to go out and distribute literature while he has lying on his desk unserved warrants that I gave him," Judge Lyle said. "I don't expect much aid from him."

He was referring to the hundreds of uniformed policemen used last Sunday on Mayor Thompson's orders to distribute literature at Negro churches asking votes for James Hamilton Lewis, Democratic nominee for United States senator. The reference to unserved warrants had to do with the arrest of Henry Finkelstein, once a partner of George [Bugs] Moran and Aiello.

Asks About His Warrants.

Attorney John McCabe moved that the warrant against Finkelstein be quashed because it was written yesterday although the date on it is Sept. 26.

"I would like to know where the warrants are that I directed should be sent to the police department?" Judge Lyle remarked.

"Chief of Detectives Norton could not find them," Attorney McCabe asserted.

"Perhaps they will be found under some hoodlum's pillow," the judge said, apparently referring to the disappearance of a secret police list of gangsters slated for arrest, which was stolen from the detective bureau and later found by federal raiders under the pillow of a Capone bondsman.

Alcock Declines to Discuss It.

Acting Commissioner Alcock was later asked about the warrants Judge Lyle sent to him by a special messenger, Assistant Corporation Counsel Charles McDonnell, who was instructed to deliver them to Alcock.

"I never saw the warrants," Alcock said. "There is nothing mysterious about it. I will not talk about it."

When Finkelstein was arrested Detective Roy Van Herrick remembered having sworn to a warrant charging him with vagrancy, but the warrant could not be found and a new one was drawn up yesterday morning. Judge Lyle then granted Finkelstein a jury trial.

About Prestogiacomo, Judge Lyle said: "The fact that he has harbored in his home a man recognized as a public enemy is a serious offense against the public. Hereafter when any one is found harboring a criminal I think he should be charged with an accessory to all the crimes committed by the fugitive."

Assistant State's Attorney Harry S. Ditchburne agreed that policy should be adopted.

Former Legion Chiefs Aid Candidate

Will Take Stump

Past national, state, and county commanders of the American Legion have banded together in a "flying squadron" to stump Cook county in support of Col. Howard P. Savage for county treasurer.

Its members intend to substitute for the nominee at many meetings to which he is invited but which he is unable to attend because of the number of speeches requested of him. Maj. Gen. Milton J. Foreman, first national commander of the service men; Col. Noble B. Judah, and Charles W. Schick, past state commander, devised the plan, and among those who joined with them were Brig. Gen. John V. Clinnin, David L. Shillinglaw, George Kellog, Ferre Watkins, Jim Ringley, and Ed Clamage.

CANDIDATE KOOP ESCAPES FINE ON TRAFFIC CHARGE

George Koop, Socialist nominee for United States senator, appeared before Judge Edgar Jonas yesterday to answer to a charge of disorderly conduct. Mr. Koop was arrested on Tuesday when he was making a "soap box" speech in front of 71 West Randolph street. He informed the court his opponents were holding theater meetings at the same time and their attendance blocked traffic as much as his audience.

"If the police would contribute a theater I'd speak there, too," Mr. Koop said.

"Well I won't fine you," Judge Jonas said. "If you are elected to the senate it would be used against you."

Howard P. Savage: Athlete, Legion Leader, Now Nominee

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Howard P. Savage, former national commander of the American Legion, is a native of Iowa, out where the tall corn grows, and has had a career as soldier, athlete, and engineer. He is making his debut in politics and as Republican candidate for county treasurer is getting one of the biggest hands at campaign rallies.

Mr. Savage, a husky six footer with a shock of grayish hair and a mellow bass voice, some years ago was captain of the football, baseball, basketball, and track teams at Lewis institute. He once was credited in a dual meet with tying the world's record in the fifty yard high hurdles. In 1927 he was chairman of the citizens' committee which brought the Army-Navy football game to Soldiers' field.

He was born in Boone, Ia., 46 years ago in a family of nine children. His father, who for fifty years was a locomotive engineer on the North Western railroad, brought his family to Chicago in 1899, and at Lewis institute young Savage made a reputation in athletics.

He took an engineering course at the University of Wisconsin, where he played half back on the football team. After leaving Madison Savage was given a tryout with the Chicago Cubs in the period when Frank Seeley was manager. Late in the season he was farmed out to Colorado Springs of the Western league and was recognized as a leading pitcher of that league.

Twenty years ago he became a minor engineer with the Chicago Elevated lines, and since then, with time out for the war, he has been associated with the elevated, the North Shore electric and other transportation lines. At the time he was nominated for county treasurer he was general manager of the Metropolitan Motor Coach company, a position he resigned to devote his time to his campaign.

In 1918 Mr. Savage was commissioned a first lieutenant in 55th Engineers, landing in France a month after his entry into the service and returning to Chicago in July, 1919. He became active in the organization of the American Legion and served as post, county, state, and national commander. In 1927 he led 20,000 members on a good will pilgrimage to Europe. He is now a colonel on Gov. Emmerson's staff.

This is the first time Mr. Savage has run for political office, and he was brought in at the solicitation of business groups and ex-service men. He is identified with the Harding group. Recently he was elected president of the north shore park district. He is president of the Alumni association of Lewis institute, a member of the Western Society of Engineers, and the National Society of Engineers.

J. M. COX ALLEGES BLUE SKY WHITE HOUSE AUCTIONS

Stock Losses Laid to "Two Presidents."

Akron, O., Oct. 29.—(AP)—Some frank historian of the future, in writing of the present period, will record that "in our carnival of foolishness two Presidents of the United States were auctioneering blue sky stocks from the steps of the White House," James M. Cox, former governor of Ohio and Democratic presidential candidate in 1920, said in an address before a Democratic rally here tonight.

Cox pointed out that the savings of thousands of persons were wiped out in the collapse of the stock market, and added: "It would be interesting to know how many people who have lost their savings were torn away from the moorings of the caution of other days by the enticing words of two Presidents."

"Effects Class Domination."

"The Republican party is essentially of class domination and conducted by a small group of men, particularly at this time, in an era of the blindest partisanship the country has ever known anything about," Cox declared.

"This relatively small reactionary circle has felt that it could do anything, and there was abundant justification for this. Within the last few years we have had government scandals unparalleled in the extent to which they involved so many public departments and the closeness to which they reached the White House.

"The President's advisers and members of the cabinet were so guilty of robbery and plunder that the Supreme court of the United States assaulted the general conditions in words that are historic."

Women and Religion Used.

Large sums of money were used for developing the social side of politics for women and "it was in too many instances deemed socially smart to be a Republican," the former governor charged.

"Then, again, the devious methods of organization took in the churches wherever clerical consent could be obtained. And we must not forget that the indicated wish of the large contributors to the church fund is a persuasive thing."

HELD FOR BURGLARY ATTEMPT.

Stephen Dilloy, 42 years old, a laborer of 6044 75th avenue, Argo, was held to the grand jury yesterday in bonds of $1,000 on a charge of attempt to burglarize a realty office in McCook. He was shot in the leg by a watchman.

40 FOOT HIGHWAY TO RELIEVE JAMS ON DUNES ROAD

Contracts Let for Part of Indiana Project.

Relief for motorists who are inconvenienced by traffic congestion on the Dunes highway is in sight as a result of the awarding of contracts for the construction of a 40 foot highway which will be known as the Dunes Relief road. The new highway will connect Gary with the Indiana-Michigan state line, where it will connect with a projected 40 foot road in the Michigan highway system.

Situated to the south of the present Dunes highway, the new thoroughfare will avoid all towns and will have the advantages of grade separation, both in connection with railways and other roads. It will be approximately 31 miles long.

Estimated Cost $2,000,000.

Indiana road officials say that this is the most pretentious project in the way of a superhighway yet undertaken by the state. It will mean the saving of countless hours for motorists going to Indiana homes in the dunes or to Michigan. The estimated cost is slightly more than $2,000,000.

The relief highway will connect with 4th, 5th, 6th, 8th, and 15th avenues in Gary, so as to diffuse as much as possible of the traffic through the steel city. It will also make connections with United States roads 20 and 12 into Michigan City.

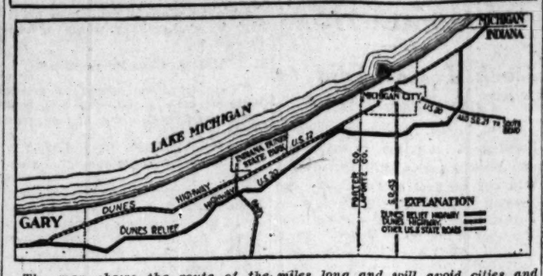
There will be four track grade separations, at crossings of the Baltimore and Ohio just east of Gary, of the New York Central at the west edge of Porter, of the Michigan Central just southwest of Michigan City and of the South Shore Electric a short distance northeast of Michigan City. Highway grade separations will be constructed at the intersection with state highway 49 just north of Chesterton and with United States highway 20 just southeast of Michigan City.

Road Contracts Awarded.

Contracts have been let by the Indiana state highway commission for 17 miles of the road between Porter and Michigan state line. Bids will be opened on Nov. 21 for the remaining 14 miles. All work now awarded or which can be awarded during the fall and winter will be required to be completed by the end of the 1931 construction season. Indiana also is expending $300,000 on improving road 49, which connects the Dunes park with Valparaiso.

Indiana's first superhighway is in the district of Col. Arthur P. Melton, engineer of Gary.

$2,000,000 ROAD FOR INDIANA



The map shows the route of the Dunes Relief road, which the state of Indiana is constructing at a cost of $2,000,000 to relieve congestion on the Dunes highway. The new highway will be 40 feet wide, will be about 31 miles long and will avoid cities and towns. It will connect Gary with the Indiana-Michigan line, where it will meet a 40 foot pavement projected for the Michigan state highway system.

VALUE OF COUNTY REALTY IS FIXED AT $3,440,742,477

Increase of 3.10% Over 1928 Figure.

The total valuation of real estate in Cook county for the purpose of taxation for 1929 has been fixed at $3,440,742,477 by the board of assessors. This announcement was made yesterday by Charles Krutckoff, chairman of the board.

The 1929 assessed valuation is $104,512,902 more than the 1928 final figure of the board of review of $3,336,231,768, but is $114,586,376 under the $3,555,328,853 set in 1927. The 1927 assessment, which was the quadrennial assessment, was voided by the state tax commission and replaced by the reassessment of 1928.

The 1929 assessment was begun last May under the direction of Harry S. Cutmore, director of appraisals. Changes, corrections, and addition of new or improved buildings involved 100,000 items of property. Reductions totaled $18,444,106 and were practically all on land, while increases on buildings amounted to $122,957, 008. A portion of the increase on buildings is due to correction of errors by the assessors in 1928 and because of reductions granted by the board of review.

The $104,512,902 increase is the equivalent of a 3.10 per cent on the real estate valuation on which 1928 taxes were paid. This 3.10 per cent increase will raise tax bills beyond the rate advances secured by the state, county, and city governments.

The total assessed valuation for the city, which was released two weeks ago, is $2,743,805,150, or $81,800,069 more than the $2,662,005,081 in 1928. The thirty country towns have a total of $696,937,327, or $22,712,833 more than in 1928.

Director Cutmore explained that since portions of seven of the country townships are within the city limits the city total more nearly approximates $2,793,805,150, and the country town area $646,937,327. This fact, however, will not materially change the estimated amounts of increase in the two areas as given out by the assessors, he said.

The 1929 valuations are to be sent to the board of review next week, where they are subject to revision, before they are placed in the hands of the county clerk for extension of taxes. The 1928 taxes were paid last July. Those for 1929 are to be paid in April.

RECEIVER IS ASKED BY STOCKHOLDER OF CHRISTIAN HERALD

New York, Oct. 29.—(AP)—A petition for appointment of a receiver for the Christian Herald corporation and for an injunction restraining the Christian Herald Association, Inc., from dissipating the corporation's assets was filed in federal court today by Julia Macalpine Hamm, owner of 180 shares of the corporation's stock.

Mrs. Hamm's petition names as defendants the corporation, the association, J. C. Penny, chain store magnate; Dr. Danel A. Poling, Graham Patterson of Toledo, O., and others.

There is no suggestion in the petition the Christian Herald is not solvent. The petition sets forth the association, as part payment for the corporation's assets, assumed a "fictitious indebtedness" of $100,000 and promised to pay to prefererd stockholders 25 per cent of the net advertising income over $325,000. The plaintiff alleges Patterson offered to purchase her stock and said he was acting for Penney, who had underher if she would not sell the corpora-Patterson, Mrs. Hamm declared, told her if she would not sell. the corporation would "freeze" her out.

BUILD STATE ST. BRIDGE, PLEA OF CITIZENS' ASSN.

Puts Approval on 13 Bond Proposals.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

The $3,500,000 proposal for a new State street bridge is placed first in its list of approved bond issues by the Citizens' association. This organization points out that the failure to provide money for this improvement will retard subway construction which involves the expenditure of $43,000,000.

The association approves all of the bond issues except the $14,000,000 state proposal for fish, game, and forest preserves.

"The foundations of the present State street bridge must be removed before the subway construction, which was approved last June as part of the transit settlement plan, can proceed," reads the statement of the association. "It is therefore essential that no time be lost in replacing the present bridge."

Mentions Employment Situation.

In addition to specifying certain merits for each bond issue the Citizens' association gives this added reason for recommending 13 of the 14 issues: "The present acute unemployment situation and the necessity for preparing for the World's Fair in 1933."

The "present dilapidated condition" of the South Halsted street bridge is one reason assigned for favoring a $2,700,000 bond issue for a new span there. The $1,000,000 for bridge reënforcements on eight bridges is urged because these spans were designed and built for much lighter traffic than prevails today. The subway under the Illinois Central tracks at 47th street, for which $300,000 is asked, "is badly needed," in the opinion of the association.

The $400,000 for extension of Indianapolis avenue will relieve traffic "at one of the worst bottle necks in the city," said the bulletin. The association says that $500,000 for playgrounds should be approved and that there is "no reason to delay" payment of $4,310,000 to property owners whose land has been taken for street widening.

Favors Ogden Avenue Link.

An extended argument is presented by the organization for the $5,460,000 to be used for the completion of the Ogden avenue link. It is argued that the improvement must be finished some time and now is opportune; and, besides, it is unfair to property owners to further delay this project.

"The desirability of extending Lincoln park northward as soon as possible is so obvious that support of this bond issue is strongly recommended," says the association with reference to another $3,000,000 issue. The $2,500,000 for improvements in the forest preserves and $2,350,000 for a nurses' home for the county hospital were also indorsed.

Warren Wright, president of Lincoln park, issued another appeal for approval of the commission's $3,000,000 issue. He urged that it will provide jobs. President Cermak of the county board and Gen. Abel Davis made strong pleas for the proposed issue of $2,500,000 to install sanitary and other improvements in the forest preserves.

HERE ARE THOSE AMAZING "PEP UP" SALTS

So Many People Are Asking About

They are ordinary JAD Salts, and thousands of people tell wonderful tales about them. Everywhere you go, people are taking them and singing their praises, especially folks who have to work hard or long hours, and those who know they shouldn't drink alcoholic beverages, yet do.

Fat or overweight people take them to reduce moisture weight in the body and to end that puffy feeling most overweight people have.

What they do is this: Clear up the Systemic Poisoning that makes you feel so miserable most of the time. Clean out those mean, intestinal poisons that often go to the kidneys and form pus and trouble. 30 minutes after taking you feel those poisons go. No more dull headaches, no more dragging yourself around "half-sick" most of the time. You "pep-up" and pack a new wallop in a hurry.

You take a spoonful in a glass of water a half hour before breakfast, a sparkling, wonderful drink. For these salts are a product of citrous fruits and grapes, with just the right touch of lithia to make them marvelous to take.

So that nobody will be fooled in buying them, you get your money back if they don't make you feel finer, snappier, more vigorous and interested in life than ever before. Get at any corner drug store simply by asking for ordinary JAD Salts. You'll be glad that you did.

DEMOCRATIC "BIG THREE" IGNORES STAND OF MAYOR

Demands Support of the Entire Ticket.

BY PARKE BROWN.

All of the "big three" of the Democratic county campaign spoke at the final mid-weekly luncheon of candidates, officeholders and ward leaders at the Hotel Sherman yesterday, but the name of Mayor Thompson, who has indorsed the head of their ticket, was not mentioned.

The one demand laid down by the big shots of the organization was that they support the entire Democratic ticket. County Chairman A. J. Cermak told the workers that they need expect no jobs if there are irregularities in their returns. Clayton F. Smith, chairman of the managing committee, warned that there must be no trades or deals.

Igoe Urges Party Circle.

National Committeeman Michael Igoe urged that all Democrats place a cross in the party circle, and he was the only one who came near mentioning Thompson's name. But he referred to him only as "an official" who had questioned the courage of Capt. William D. Meyering, a war hero, running for sheriff on the Democratic ticket. In previous meetings he, particularly, has condemned the "Thompson gang."

"We are going to keep books," said Chairman Cermak. "I have talked with the other candidates and they agree with me that any precinct captain who knifes candidates on the Democratic ticket or who makes trades with Republicans, will be considered ineligible to hold office under a Democratic administration."

"We are doing no trading and will do none," declared Chairman Smith.

"Our candidate for sheriff," said National Committeeman Igoe, "is a man of whom the entire city is proud, one who offered his life for his country and who left part of himself in a foreign country during the world war. Yet one of our officials has had the lack of taste and good judgment to tell the people that this young man was lacking in courage, that he would not be brave enough to be sheriff of Cook county."

Republicans Show Interest.

Republican leaders were anxious about the utterances at this occasion, when all the Democratic chieftains were together for the last time before the election next Tuesday. They said they were particularly anxious because of reports from what they considered well informed sources that if James Hamilton Lewis, the Democratic candidate for United States senator, whom Mayor Thompson is supporting, carries Chicago by a big margin, the mayor will announce his own candidacy for a fourth term immediately after the election.

These reports are said to have come from several sources, one of them being from a ward committeeman who called at the mayor's office to say that he would not turn against Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick in order to obtain the $30 a precinct offered by the mayor to all members of the county committee who would agree that the money would not be used for poll workers who might get votes for Mrs. McCormick.

The mayor's reply, it was said, was that, even if the committeeman could not follow him into the Lewis camp, he could have the money, since the mayor wanted his support immediately after next Tuesday's election. The story went on to say that the mayor spoke so significantly that the committeeman was convinced he could mean nothing more or less than his fourth term candidacy announcement.

Confuses Committeeman Layout.

The situation at the regular Republican headquarters, already confused by the mayor's conduct, was admitted by leaders to have injected a new complication affecting a number of committeemen wavering on the question whether they will go in and accept the mayor's money on the new terms now implied.

Only a few so far have told Chairman Snow that they have joined up with the mayor, but the regulars confess worry about what will happen election day in those wards which include such bailiwicks as the First, the Twentieth, and the Twenty-seventh, all famous in vote fraud history.

During the day there were no open declarations heard from committeemen, except from City Collector Morris Eller, a letter from whom was made public at the mayor's office. In this communication Eller said that although Mrs. McCormick received 3,900 votes in his ward, the "Twentieth," in the primary her vote will be cut down to 1,500 or less in the election.

Mayor Thompson made a speech last night at an anti-McCormick meeting in the Garfield public school at Newberry avenue and 14th place in the Twentieth ward. In the name of the mayor a call was sent to Police Commissioner Alcock's office for a police squad car, which was ordered to go to a night restaurant on Randolph street and pick up four entertainers. The squad car took the entertainers to the Twentieth ward meeting, where they sang for the crowd, and then carried them back to their restaurant. The car was in use on this special assignment for more than two hours.

EX-CONVICT GETS PARDON; WILL INHERIT RICHES

Louis Vargas, a restaurant owner at 1639 West Madison street, will leave for Venezuela with his bride this week to claim a $1,000,000 estate bequeathed to him by his father, Eduardo Vargas, rancher and importer of Maracaibo in the South American country. His departure, after serving three years and eleven months in Joliet penitentiary, is made possible through an absolute pardon granted yesterday by Gov. Emmerson.

Christmas eve of 1925, when Vargas was 25 years old, he was caught during a holdup of a north side café. He contended at his trial that he was an innocent victim of circumstances; that he was sitting in a car outside the café with a friend and did not know what was happening. He did not understand English then. He was sentenced to serve from one to ten years for larceny.

Through good behavior he was paroled in December of 1928 and has been at liberty ever since. Last month came word of his father's death and the legacy. An immigration law forbids ex-convicts from returning to the United States, as Vargas wished to do after claiming the estate. Gov. Emmerson's pardon yesterday makes that possible.

GIRL OF 12 IS 'CORN QUEEN' OF COOK COUNTY

Busily husking the last of 99.7 bushels of corn which she grew on a one acre plot, and which has made her the champion grower of Cook county school children, 12 year old Hilda Finke will be the "corn queen" tomorrow afternoon in a play to be given by pupils of the Elk Grove school.

Hilda, who lives on a farm six miles southwest of Arlington Heights, spent only 70 cents to raise her corn, and that was for seed. Now she has her first bank account, a prize of $50. In addition she recently received a prize of $25 for spending her vacation in the most profitable and interesting manner in a school project.

To End a Cough In a Hurry, Mix This at Home

To end a stubborn cough quickly, it is important to soothe and heal the inflamed membranes, get rid of the germs and also to aid the system inwardly to help throw off the trouble.

For these purposes, here is a home-made medicine, far better than anything you could buy at 3 times the cost. From any druggist, get 2½ ounces of Pinex. Pour this into a pint bottle, and add plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey to fill up the pint. This takes but a moment, and makes a remedy so effective that you will never do without, once you have used it. Keeps perfectly, and children like it.

This simple remedy does three necessary things. First, it loosens the germ-laden phlegm. Second, it soothes away the inflammation. Third, it is absorbed into the blood, where it acts directly on the bronchial tubes. This explains why it brings such quick relief, even in the obstinate bronchial coughs which follow cold epidemics.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway Pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form, and known as one of the greatest healing agents for severe coughs, chest colds and bronchial troubles.

NAVAL ARMORY TO BE USED IN HOUSING JOBLESS

Club Women Organize to Help Needy.

The new $350,000 armory of the Illinois naval reserve, one of the finest structures of its kind in the country, will within the next few days be thrown open to the jobless to be used by them as a shelter throughout the winter.

Gov. Emmerson yesterday approved a suggestion of Capt. Edward A. Evers of the reserve that the armory, which stands on the lake front at the foot of Randolph street, be utilized by homeless unemployed. Capt. Evers estimates that at least 1,000 men can be comfortably sheltered in the armory, equipped as it is with ample lavatory and galley facilities.

Capt. Evers suggested that cots and blankets be obtained either from headquarters of the Sixth corps area of the army or from the Great Lakes Naval Training station. George F. Getz, chairman of the governor's unemployment commission, is to follow up the suggestion today.

Electric Company Provides Jobs.

Following the job creating policy suggested by the governor's commission, the Western Electric company announced it had shortened hours of operation at certain locations to provide work for a maximum of trained employés.

At the Hawthorne works of the company, the largest industrial plant in the Chicago area and employing 28,000 persons, the working week has been reduced from 50½ to 44½ hours and in some cases to 40 hours. The same move has been made in the company's plants in New Jersey and at Baltimore. Although the Western Electric's forces are now 11 per cent less than a year ago, they are 45 per cent greater than in 1928, Edgar S. Bloom, president of the company, announced.

Club Women to Organize

Chicago's thousands of clubwomen, whose efforts to aid the destitute and unemployed have been uncoördinated until now, will be mobilized before the week-end into a unit of the governor's commission.

Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank, feminine leader and clubwoman, yesterday accepted chairmanship of a specially created committee on women's activities. Last evening she conferred with Chairman Getz on methods of procedure and indicated she would have a program drawn up within 48 hours.

James Keeley, assistant to the president of the Pullman company, whom Mr. Getz drafted as his own first assistant for duration of the relief campaign, moved into the commission's headquarters at 105 South La Salle street yesterday. He brought along a stenographer, a uniformed porter, and ten parlor car chairs.

Meeting in the commission's headquarters yesterday forenoon, the finance committee, headed by George Woodruff, called upon Wilfred S. Reynolds, director of the Cook county council of social agencies, to draft a budget of the needs of the several hundred agencies affiliated with the council. Directors of these agencies spent the afternoon in closed sessions, considering the probable demands the winter will bring. Their estimates will be coördinated at a meeting of the council, probably today.

Council to Meet Today.

The city council is to hold another special session on unemployment today and hear the recommendations of a committee of five aldermen, appointed at the last council meeting by Mayor Thompson.

The governor's commission has received letters from jobless men, reporting that a majority of the jobless colony congregating nightly below Michigan avenue at the south end of the boulevard bridge are outsiders and that racketeers have begun to exploit the plight of the men.

Club and church groups have been feeding the bread line at the bridge several times daily. Last night, however, police ordered the crowd of some 600 men to move across the bridge to a subchamber, hitherto used by the street departmnt for storage, but now boarded up by the department of public works and heated by salamanders. It was understood that cots would be provided and that Salvation Army workers would take over management of the shelter.

Builder Inspects Federal Work for Delays; Finds None

Washington, D. C., Oct. 29.—[Special.]—Construction work on the government building program is being pushed as rapidly as could be expected at this time, President Hoover was informed today by Louis J. Horowitz, chairman of the board of Thompson-Starrett Company, Inc., New York builders, following an extensive investigation of federal building activities.

Mr. Horowitz came to Washington at the invitation of President Hoover to survey the federal building program, especially for the construction of public buildings in various parts of the country, and report back to the chief executive as to the progress being made and the possibility of greater expedition in the interest of the unemployed. Mr. Horowitz advised Mr. Hoover this afternoon in his report that, in his opinion, the various government organizations involved were doing everything reasonably possible to advance their work.

Modifies Navy Retrenchment.

At the same time it was learned that President Hoover has approved modification of the navy retrenchment program to the extent of permitting work to go forward on a number of shore building projects on which work was to have been postponed. One calls for the expenditure of several hundred thousand dollars on a new pier at Philadelphia. Another will provide barracks for marines at Quantico. About $2,000,000 is involved.

Although no special program for expediting construction work has been adopted, officials of the shipping board stated today that approximately 20,000 men would be employed and $50,000,000 expended during the next 13 months by private shipbuilders.

Meanwhile the headquarters of the President's emergency committee for employment relief continued its efforts to stimulate construction work and coördinate national effort to the best interests of the jobless.

Dr. Lilliam M. Gilbreth of Montclair, N. J., consulting industrial engineer, was added today to the staff of Col. Arthur Woods, chairman of the President's committee. She will have charge of the women's division.

No Date for Chicago Post Office.

Mr. Horowitz made some suggestions which he thought might be helpful in carrying out the government program and these are now being studied. The treasury has let contracts for seventeen large buildings and eight more contracts soon will be awarded. It is estimated that about $65,000,000 will be expended on treasury buildings during the year. No definite estimate as to when a contract for the Chicago post office project can be let has been forthcoming.

Col. Woods reported today that one of the small loan corporations conducted under the uniform small loan law as sponsored by the Russell Sage foundation has made available a special fund of $100,000 to local welfare bodies in over 200 cities of the country.

This fund will be available to local welfare bodies and distributed in amounts of $10 to $50 per family to be paid back in small monthly payments without interest or other charges when the breadwinner of the family finds employment.

MORE JOBS FOR MEN IS SALLY'S BIG PROBLEM

BY KATHERINE KELLEY.

In spite of a slight decrease in job offers in connection with THE TRIBUNE's service to aid the unemployed, started two weeks ago, Sally Joy Brown refused to be discouraged yesterday.

"The jobs were fewer today, and we simply must have more of them for the men especially, but the jobs that are coming in are much better ones," remarked Sally. "The calls for household help where the housewife will give only room and board and $1 or $2 pin money have dropped off almost entirely. The housewives are offering $10 to $15 a week and room and board now, and are doing it quite cheerfully."

Sally was jubilant because she had received many calls from persons who had offered jobs, voicing their satisfaction over the service of their new employés. One indoor golf course was so pleased with the check girl Sally Joy Brown sent over that they put in an order for another.

Need More Jobs for Men.

The problem that puckered Sally's brow most yesterday was the dearth of jobs for men. Last week there were available, three to one, more jobs for women than men. At the Illinois free employment service, 116 North Dearborn street, where Sally's job orders are sent immediately after they are received, more than 3,500 men and 1,300 women registered during last week. There were a few more than 400 jobs for each sex.

"The jobs that are coming in for men aren't good ones," Sally said. "We need office jobs. There are auditors, bookkeepers, clerks, who are out of work and faced with no food and shelter for the first time in their lives. It seems to me that the banks that have their regular employés work overtime, could employ others to do the extra work. This would lighten the work of the regular employés and give much needed work to the unemployed who are just as efficient and well trained."

Jobs Are Offered.

Among the job offers that reached Sally's office yesterday was one from Mrs. X who owns four apartment buildings and needed a carpenter. She offered $15 a week and an apartment to one who could do what carpenter work was necessary in the four buildings.

One dressmaking firm telephoned for two seamstresses, another wanted a typist and another a stenographer.

DEMANDS EIGHT HOUR DAY FOR LAKE SAILORS

Abolition of the 12 hour day for sailors on the great lakes and the substitution of eight hour watches is urged in a letter addressed jointly to President Hoover, the secretaries of commerce and labor, the chairman of the United States shipping board, senators, and governors of states, and sent yesterday by Claude M. Goshorn, acting secretary of the Sailors' Union of the Great Lakes.

Pointing out that the sailors work 12 hours a day, it goes on to say that as "the shipping industry is a seven day week industry this means that the sailor works 84 hours a week. The survival of this brutal and inhuman week is a disgrace to American industry."

JURY RETURNS MURDER VERDICT; LIFE IN PRISON

William J. Montgomery, 34 years old, 1306 East 62d street, who the police say was at one time a prohibition department informer, was found guilty of murder yesterday by a jury in Judge G. Fred Rush's Criminal court. His punishment was fixed by the jury at life imprisonment in the penitentiary.

Montgomery was convicted for the murder of John Woody, 32 years old, 725 West 25th street, a laundry wagon driver. Woody was shot and killed on June 21 when he resisted an effort to rob him at 80th street and Rhodes avenue. Montgomery was identified by witnesses.

MAYOR FRAMING PLAN 'TO DOUBLE CITY'S BUSINESS'

Answering a query of Mayor George L. Baker of Portland, Ore., regarding Chicago's plans to meet the unemployment situation, Mayor Thompson yesterday telegraphed the Portland mayor that Chicago had formed many citizen's committees, "none of which has developed a concrete plan," and added that on Nov. 6 he would unfold a plan whereby Chicago's business would be "doubled in ninety days."

"Would appreciate your wiring me at once details of plan your city has devised to aid unemployment situation. We have similar problem here," was Mayor Baker's message.

In a reply of 450 words, Mayor Thompson first stated he had kept 150,000 men at work for six months on public improvements for which bond issues were approved last spring. Board of local improvements records are said to put the figure at about 100,000 instead of 150,000. Excerpts from Mayor Thompson's message follow:

"We have many citizen's committees, men and women, all striving to be helpful, none of which has as yet a concrete plan. Some favor soup houses, some favor bread lines, some favor old clothes brigades, and some favor impractical ideas.

"I am attempting to coördinate these influences so that they may shoot at the bull's eye and not work at cross purposes. On Nov. 6 I will unfold to some of Chicago's most prominent business men a plan that I have at last hit upon that I feel confident will double Chicago's business in ninety days.

"I realize that this is a large order and might seem an extravagant statement, but I am confident I do not err in my judgment. There are some details in my plan upon which I have not been able to make a positive decision as yet, but when it is completed, which must be on or before Nov. 6, I will be glad to submit the plan to you for your consideration."

A GOOD FELLOW'S GIFT IS TURNED IN RIGHT DIRECTION

Clearing House Prevents Duplicate Giving.

Leaning heavily against the counter in the Good Fellow headquarters in THE TRIBUNE'S office at Dearborn and Madison streets yesterday, a small shabby man of about 40 years told of distress in his home.

"My wife and four children are hungry and cold," he said. "We need some Good Fellow money right away. My wife is in bed with liver trouble. My oldest child, a girl of 14, has a leg in a cast from infantile paralysis. We have no food or coal. If we wait for the red tape of organized charity, the help will be too late."

As he was giving detailed information to a clerk in the office a man of about 45 years, with everything from his polished shoes to his modish felt hat indicating success, joined the two at the counter and listened to the applicant's story.

A Good Fellow Volunteers.

"That's just the kind of family I want to take care of this winter," interrupted the prosperous one. "You can sign me up as a Good Fellow for this family."

"Just a moment, please," replied the clerk. "Our system requires an investigation. If you'll have a seat for a moment I'll see if organized charity has any report on this family."

The clerk telephoned the Chicago Council of Social Agencies, a clearing house for 200 charity organizations. The reply came back in a few minutes. The shabby one was receiving $98 a month and housekeeping assistance from the Jewish Social Service bureau. This bureau was notified to look after any emergency need, and he received no further help. His sympathizer, the Good Fellow, took another family, where there would be no duplication of charity.

Value of the Clearing House.

"Without a clearing house for charity," said Mrs. Edwina Lewis, executive secretary of the Chicago Council of Social Agencies, "there would be much overlapping of effort and funds. It's well to advise the public that the Good Fellow plan operates in a systematic coöperation with organized charity."

Where organized charity has no record of a reported case of a family in distress, THE TRIBUNE dispatches its own experienced social service workers to investigate, and if the case is worthy, to obtain help. These costs of administration are paid by this newspaper.

Gifts and Pledges Continue.

With an estimated 75,000 needy families in Chicago there are plenty of worthy places for the Good Fellows to give aid. There are too many worthy cases to tolerate any overlapping of charity.

Donations and pledges continued to be received in the mail from Good Fellows yesterday. Some sent $1, which will buy several quarts of milk for babies. Others sent $25, $100, $150. Groups organized in offices, shops, factories, churches, and societies, are pledging joint contributions of so much a month through the winter.

Fire in Railroad Yards Laid to Homeless Men

POLICEMAN, HELD TO GRAND JURY, IS PUT BACK ON DUTY

Patrolman Charles Osterman, who on Oct. 1 was held to the grand jury by Judge John H. Lyle in Felony court on charges of robbery, burglary, and malicious mischief, was put back on the job again last night in an order issued by Acting Police Commissioner Alcock.

Osterman's excuse was that he had "drunk some whisky for a cold and I guess I went crazy."

Acting Commissioner Alcock's order merely stated, "Patrolman Charles Osterman is restored to duty," and offered no other explanation. Osterman is 33 years old and attached to the West North avenue station.

NEW YORK ROAD SEEKS RIGHT TO INCREASE FARES

New York, Oct. 29.—[Special.]—The New York Central railroad will soon apply for authority to increase its commutation fares by 40 per cent on trains in and out of the Grand Central terminal, it was announced today by L. F. Vosburgh, vice president.

The New York Central's present fares, the company contends, are "materially lower" than those in effect on any other railroad entering the city.

In the last five years, Mr. Vosburgh asserted, improvements costing $20,000,000, "all directly attributable to the demands of the commutation service," have been installed, with several millions additional now being spent to increase the track capacity between Mott Haven Junction and the Grand Central for the convenience of commuters."

FLOWERS SHOWER VARGAS ON WAY TO RULE BRAZIL

Crowds Line Railroad to Greet Victorious Rebel.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SAO PAULO, Brazil., Oct. 29.—Dr. Getulio Vargas, leader of the revolution that broke out on Oct. 3 and now considered almost unanimously in Brazil as provisional president, arrived in Sao Paulo tonight. He arrived as a working revolutionary, a man engrossed in the business of restoring unity, after three weeks of civil strife, to the largest of the South American republics, larger in area than the United States.

At 11 o'clock this morning Dr. Vargas' train reached Itapetinga, about 140 miles away from here by rail. His journey to this great coffee center was one long ovation and everywhere along the line crowds greeted him, showering him with flowers.

Spends Day Working.

While greeting crowds at almost every stopping place wherever possible, Dr. Vargas devoted the greater part of the day to studying problems ranging from internal politics to foreign relations and Brazil's economic position.

On his arrival here the provisional president went straight to the government palace. It is said that he may stay one day or even two in Sao Paulo before he moves to Rio de Janeiro and comes face to face with the army junta there whose action last Friday precipitated the downfall of the Washington Luis régime.

Knows Sao Paulo of Old.

Sao Paulo last received the man who was eventually to become leader of the southern rebels when he was striving for election to the highest post in the gift of the republic, a position which he and his followers claim was fraudulently usurped by Dr. Julio Prestes by juggling of the count at the polls.

Dr. Vargas' statesmanship has never been more brilliant than it is today. Since the collapse of the federal government, friends said, his days and his nights have been occupied with interminable conferences on the problems facing the republic, and his subordinates and not himself have been basking in the spotlight of the rebel victory.

Dr. Francisco Morato, the newly named president of the state of Sao Paulo and a Vargas man, went on a special train today to meet his chief. The two men held a long conference concerning the state of Sao Paulo, which is still perhaps the strongest supporter of the old order and now requires diplomacy of the highest type in order to bring it into line.

City Welcomes Southerners.

The city today was given over to welcoming the victorious gaucho or cowboy troops which were hourly rolling in over the highways which were built by Washington Luis.

Crowds, ebbing and flowing unceasingly, cheered the arriving troops who passed through the center of the city.

The revolutionary troops have not yet marched into Rio de Janiero, and expression was given here tonight to doubts as to whether the attitude of the army junta which overthrew the Washington Luis regimé is the same as it was a couple of days ago.

Dr. Vargas, however, will be definitely installed as president. Anticipating that all will be settled in a few days, plans are being made for an enormous parade of all military forces in Rio on Nov. 15.

Plan Big National Parade.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil, Oct. 29.—The army junta issued a note this evening announcing that, corresponding to the general sentiment of the country, it awaited the arrival of Dr. Vargas in order to hand over the reins of government to him as the victorious leader of the revolution. The note also stated that the arrival of troops from all sectors of the country made it fitting that a big parade should be held to commemorate both the success of the revolt and the 42d anniversary of the republic on Nov. 15.

The currency order of $11,000,000 authorized by the deposed government has been canceled for the time being by the junta.

PRESIDENT OF BANK IN BENTON HARBOR COMMITS SUICIDE

Benton Harbor, Mich., Oct. 29.—[Special.]—Clayton M. Niles, 53, president of the Farmers and Merchants National Bank and Trust company of this city for three years, committed suicide, bank officials said today. Niles' body was found in his garage after midnight last night with bullet holes in both temples, made by a .32 calibre revolver, grasped in the right hand. The door was locked and windows covered with newspapers and barricaded.

Officials of the bank announced after a conference that the financial status of the bank was excellent.

Niles had risen from teller to cahier and president. He succeeded O. B. Hipp, pioneer, to the presidency three years ago. Niles, prominent in financial, church, social and lodge circles here many years, had been in ill health several years, the only reason given by relatives as to cause for his act. No note was left.

Berlin Protests to Poland Over Anti-German Attacks

BERLIN, Oct. 29.—(AP)—The foreign office has instructed the German minister at Warsaw to protest against alleged anti-German agitation and demonstrations in Poland. Particular attention was called to an article in the Cracow Kurjer Codzienny containing personal attacks against individuals in the German legation.

Gunmen Take Girl's Rings in Civil War Vet's Home

Three gunmen, forcing entrance last night into the home of Louis A. Brutks, 88 years old, a civil war veteran, at 1504 West 63d street, took two diamond rings valued at $500 from his granddaughter, Miss Josephine Rottgen, 19 years old, and an overcoat valued at $150.

SAVAGE FORMOSA WARRIORS STORM JAPANESE POLICE

Head Hunters Lay Town in Ruins; 86 Slain.

TOKIO, Oct. 30.—[Thursday.]—(AP)—Rengo News agency dispatches from Taihoku, Formosa, today said revolting savages counter attacked a Japanese police expedition at Musha late yesterday, killing two officers.

A company of infantry was reported approaching Musha, a village in the central part of the island, to reinforce the police.

The governor general of Formosa reported to the ministry of overseas affairs here that when the savages evacuated Musha yesterday morning they carried away the heads of many of their victims. The savages were head hunters until subjugated by the Japanese.

Two more infantry companies were ordered to Musha today, making the total of the Japanese expedition about 1,300 men, of which more than 600 were concentrated in the Musha district.

Find Eighty-six Bodies.

Reports to the war office last night indicated that the savages, who went on the warpath Monday, killing scores of men, women and children, were concentrating heavily eastward of Musha.

The tribesmen evacuated Musha yesterday without ghting, leaving behind many mutilated bodies. A dispatch from Taihoku said eighty-six bodies, including thirty-eight children, were found in the ruins of Musha.

Fears that scores of other Japanese in isolated police stations and small settlements north and east of Musha had met a similar fate were expressed in dispatches from Taihoku. Effective search for them must await further military advance into the savages' territory in the mountainous interior.

Report 308 Injured.

The reports also mentioned 308 persons injured, but it was not clear whether these injuries were suffered in the first savage attacks Monday or in later clashes.

Facing the desperate aborigines, many of whom possessed modern weapons seized when police stations were wiped out, the Japanese force of 300 policemen which occupied Musha awaited infantry reinforcement for fierce fighting believed to be imminent as the savages were within 500 yards of the Japanese lines.

57 Escape Massacre.

Fifty-seven Japanese escaped the Musha massacre, some fleeing and some hiding.

Motives for the uprising were still obscure, although fundamentally it was another case of primitive man losing in desperate resistance to the steady pressure of civilized exploitation. The theory that the revolt was caused by an electric power project at Lake Jitsugetsutan seemed likely, since it transpired the savages had been told they must vacate tribal lands.

Construction of a dam at the lake would flood a large area belonging to the tribesmen.

As further reasons, Tokio newspapers asserted there was trouble between Japanese and aborigines over the latters' women, and there were instances of Japanese officials running afoul of ancient savage customs.

The savages' desperation and readiness to fight to the bitter end was shown in the burning of their own villages after sending women and children to mountain fastnesses.

Nature, as usual, was an ally of the Taiyal tribesmen. Trackless forests, lofty mountains, several exceeding 10,000 feet, made the Japanese task of subjugation extremely difficult.

"NICE ENOUGH, but Notice Her Teeth

They look as if they were never brushed!"

You can brush teeth and gums faithfully, but they will continue to look neglected and offensive to others so long as you ignore the millions of germs that cause stain, ugly yellow, decay and serious gum diseases.

Ordinary toothpastes won't help you one bit. But this new Kolynos Dry-Brush Technique quickly kills millions of germs that attack teeth and gums... and so cleans teeth as they should be cleaned—right down to the beautiful, naked white enamel—without injury.

Kolynos Will Surprise You

Kolynos is unlike anything you've ever used. The very moment it enters the mouth, this highly concentrated dental cream undergoes a remarkable change. It becomes an exhilarating, antiseptic FOAM that permits the Dry-Brush Technique, advocated by dentists as the one way to derive full benefit from dental cream and brush.

This FOAM gets into every tiny pit, fissure and crevice, and kills millions of destructive germs . . . 190 million in the first 15 seconds. It neutralizes acids that cause decay, gently erases tartar, washes away the unsightly mucoid coating and purifies the mouth.

White Teeth that Adorn Beauty

Easily and quickly this Kolynos Dry-Brush Technique whitens teeth, keeps them sound and clean, and helps to firm up gums.

Discard Incompetent Methods

Never let anyone say that your teeth look as though you never brushed them. Start using this new Kolynos Dry-Brush Technique—a half-inch of Kolynos on a dry brush, morning and night. Within a few days you'll note a distinct improvement . . . Teeth will look whiter—as lustrous white as they were in childhood. Gums will feel firmer, appear healthier. And your mouth will tingle with a delightful, refreshing taste. Buy a tube of Kolynos from your druggist.

INQUIRY ON VETS AFTER ARREST OF TWO OFFICERS

Accuse Pair of Beating Chapter Commander.

An investigation of the local affairs of the Disabled American Veterans of the World War was under way last night following the arrest of the organization's state commander, Nicholas O. Isaacson, 7124 Ridgeland avenue, and the state adjutant, Daniel Sullivan of Shelbyville, Ill. They were suspended from their offices by Capt. Herman Weimer, national commander, pending the outcome of the inquiry.

Assistant State's Attorney Charles J. Mueller, in charge of the anti-racketeer branch of the prosecutor's office at 138 West Madison street, and Sergt. Roy Steffen, in charge of the police detail there, emphasized that the disabled veterans' organization itself is a worthy one.

Beating Is Charged.

The charges against the two were the outgrowth of a beating administered to James Barrow, commander of the Cicero-Berwyn chapter, who says they tried to force him to write a check for $400, the proceeds of the chapter's Forget-Me-Not collections.

The true bill also was voted against Isaacson, charging carrying of a concealed weapon. He wore the star of a deputy bailiff of the Municipal court.

Alleged racketeering resulted in the indictment yesterday of Jacob Karchmer, his wife, Mary Karchmer Samuel H. Miller, and Frank Zalmaroff in conjunction with true bills against Nicholas Korngold, fake colonel and national commander of the "Veterans of All Wars," Solly Weinberg, Thomas L. Foye, and Maurice Killen. Conspiracy to defraud is the technical charge.

Previous Jail Term Bared.

When the posecutors asked Sullivan if he had ever been arrested before he told them, they said, that he had been arrested in Seattle for draft evasion and that he was once wanted for a burglary charge in Shelbyville.

Isaacson denied all the charges made against him last night.

R. R. Conductor Retires After 50 Years with Line

Patrick W. Fitzgerald, 66 years old, a conductor on the Golden State Limited of the Rock Island railroad, reached the end of his run yesterday. He had completed his fiftieth year of service and announced that he was retiring on a pension. For many years he had been running between Chicago and Rock Island. He is said to have known more passengers than any other conductor.

REVENGE SEEN AS MOTIVE OF BANKER KILLERS

The police last night were inclined to the theory that revenge rather than robbery was the motive for the stabbing to death of Courtney R. Merrill, vice president of the Union State bank of South Chicago on Tuesday night. Capt. Thomas Wolfe of the South Chicago police announced that he would confer today with President Julius F. Smietanka and other executives of the bank on the theory that the crime may have been committed by a disgruntled customer.

Admitting the possibility of robbery, Lieut. Otto Erlansen pointed out circumstances unusual in a crime of that kind. The use of a knife except in a quarrel is rare, he said, and almost unheard of in a robbery. Smietanka expressed belief in the robbery theory as told by Merrill before he died. He declared that Merrill had no enemies nor any contacts in the course of business that would lead to a quarrel.

$30,000 BONDS FORFEITED BY 'FUR' SAMMONS

Gangster Not in Court; Joe Aiello Buried.

James ["Fur"] Sammons, public enemy, was absent yesterday when two of his cases were called before Judge Edgar A. Jonas. His bonds, totaling $30,000, were forfeited, and Assistant State's Attorney A. C. De Witt gave orders that no compromise should be made in settling the forfeiture. Attorney Milton D. Smith made a plea to save the bonds, one of which —on a vagrancy charge—was fixed at $5,000 by the Supreme court. The other bond was on a fugitive warrant charging Sammons with a robbery in Baltimore. Smith said Sammons understood the cases would be tried Oct. 31. The lawyer's plea was denied.

Vagrancy Charges Dismissed.

Charges of vagrancy against George ("Red") Barker, public enemy, and his labor racketeer associate, William ("Three Fingered Jack") White, were dismissed yesterday because Barker is back in the penitentiary and White is in jail on a reinstated murder charge.

A vagrancy charge against Danny Stanton, public enemy, was continued to await the outcome of extradition proceedings to take him to Wisconsin to stand trial for the murder of Jack Zuta, another public enemy.

Joe Aiello Is Buried.

Joe Aiello, sixth president of the Unione Sicilione to die by the gun, was buried yesterday in Mount Carmel cemetery, in the same corner occupied by his former business partner and predecessor in office, Tony Lombardo. Like Lombardo Aiello was denied the rites of the Catholic church by Cardinal Mundelein.

Except for his $11,800 bronze coffin and the lavish floral pieces, estimated to have cost $15,000, his funeral was not spectacular from the gangster point of view. There were plenty of motorcycle policemen and squads from the detective bureau, but no mourners from among the bootleg and alky confraternity. Even the brothers and cousins of Aiello, who was slain by machine gun gangsters last Thursday night, were missing.

The cortége started from the late home at 252- Lunt avenue with 17 cars, but by the time Mount Carmel was reached all had vanished save that occupied by the widow, and three sedans carrying the flowers. These included a pillar of white roses with two stuffed doves, and a card reading: "From the Brothers." Another was a clock design, the hands showing 8:20, the hour Joe left Patsy Presto's home to get nearly 60 machine bullets and sawedoff shotgun slugs in his body. George Gallagher, an undertaker's assistant, read the Lord's prayer at the grave.

ASK DRAINS ON REFRIGERATORS BE RULED OUT

Architects Propose a Change in Code.

With the drafting of the new city building code, architects, represented by the Illinois Society of Architects, are attempting to obtain an amendment which will remove the necessity of installing drains for mechanical refrigeration units. Classifying the drains as unnecessary and the union ruling which requires their installation as approximating racketeering, members of the society are unanimous in expressing sentiment for a change.

Robert C. Ostergren, president of the society, in discussing the union requirement, said: "If the plumbing contractor is forced to install such drains, the drains must be capped top and bottom, as they are superfluous." This statement referred to buildings designed by Mr. Ostergren and is included in his specifications with the stipulation that such work must be done at the expense of the contractor. He continued: "It is about time the architectural profession as a whole condemned this wasteful ruling."

Pipes of No Use.

Henry K. Holsman, another member of the society, writing in the monthly bulletin, said, "This practice is a great injustice perpetrated on building owners, who incur a loss through a fear of a greater loss by not complying. Empty pipes are not only of no use but harbor vermin."

Rupert J. Weber, president of the Plumbing Contractors' association, urged a conference of interested parties to consider the entire problem, suggesting that such a conference be of architects, contractors, journeymen plumbers, and representatives of the health department. He stated that the contractors' association was opposed to any unnecessary practice that would increase the cost of building, but asserted that contractors must obey the present building code, which implies installation of drains.

Object to Mechanical Cold.

One reason for the presence of drains was stressed by Mr. Weber. "Many people," he said, "through recent deaths from gas, object to mechanical refrigeration. For such persons the old type refrigeration is needed, which would necessitate some apartments having drains and some without. Whether or not, as some people contend, the new refrigerators do not need drains, is still a debatable question. Until such a question is decided, serious consequences would follow omission of these drains which would have to be put in later at additional expense."

B. L. Cruise, secretary of the plumbers' union, stated that in the opinion of the union drains are a necessity.

I. C. WANTS CITY TO AMEND TERMS FOR NEW DEPOT

Would Leave Other Lines Out of Project.

If the city council will release the Illinois Central railroad from the clause in the 1919 lake front ordinance which compels the road to give space to additional lines which might wish to occupy the projected new terminal at Roosevelt road, the Illinois Central is ready to start work on the station soon in the hope that it will be completed in 1933, the world's fair year.

A strong effort would be made to complete the terminal under such conditions, F. L. Thompson, vice president of the road, said yesterday. "And if it wasn't complete, we would at least have tracks and platform facilities to care for the crowds," he added. This could be accomplished if work were started by next March.

Some Lines Oppose Plan.

The Illinois Central has been prevented from going ahead with positive plans by the reluctance of lines occupying terminals south of the loop to move across Michigan avenue and operate their business on the lake front. Numerous hearings on the subject have been held before the railway terminal committee of the city council. Some roads have refused to agree to the change and there has been marked hesitancy on the part of others.

"Before we build the terminal," said Mr. Thompson, "we must know that one or more lines are coming in with the group now at the old Park Row station—the Illinois Central, Big Four, and Michigan Central—or we must be released from the clause. We can't go ahead and rearrange our tracks and build a terminal only to learn after it is completed that we must take in other roads.

"We have asked to be released from the clause and the request was made last March 9 before the railway terminal committee. If we are released and the Chicago plan commission is agreeable, we can go ahead with plans."

Plans to Call Committee.

Asked what was delaying action, Ald. Edward J. Kaindl, chairman of the terminal committee, said he intended to call a meeting after the election next Tuesday to determine what could be done.

Edward J. Noonan, attorney for the committee, said that it appeared that none of the roads operating from south loop terminals favored transferring to Roosevelt road.

"The New York Central and the Rock Island have said definitely that they will not occupy the terminal," Mr. Noonan said, "and the Baltimore and Ohio won't go unless some other road such as the Santa Fe will go with them.

Doubts if Roads Will Move.

"The Chicago and Western Indiana is building a new freight house next to the Dearborn street station and that fact is not indictative that it will move in the near future. The Wabash, the Monon, the Grand Trunk and the Chicago and Eastern Illinois seem as little inclined to move. I am not yet certain that it would be wise to amend the ordinance but I am certain the committee will give it serious consideration."

By the terms of the lake front ordinance the station would be built to conform, architecturally with the Field Museum. Standing at the northwest corner of the world's fair grounds, most of the traffic coming to the fair would be routed past it and it is expected that the three railroads now in the terminal and which would be certain to occupy a new terminal there, would bear a considerable portion of the visitors.

GANGSTER WEISSMAN, FOUND SHOT IN NECK, DIES; SLAYER FREED

Kansas City, Mo., Oct. 29.—(AP)—Solly Weissman, swaggering gangster who operated here and in several cities, was removed from the underworld picture today by death. His slayer was quickly freed by authorities.

The prosecutor's office decided that Charles Haughton, manager of a horse race news service, had acted in self-defense when he fired a bullet into Weissman's neck yesterday.

In a statement to police, Haughton said the gangster had threatened to have him "taken for a ride" because he refused to furnish Weissman with racing results in advance of their posting in a booking place so that Weissman could make "sure thing" bets.

A few hours before the shooting Weissman had been freed of a liquor conspiracy charge in federal court because of the mysterious disappearance of the government's star witness.

ALBERT DEMANDS COUNCIL INQUIRY INTO PAVING BIDS

Charges Wolfe Assists Favored Contractor.

Ald. Arthur F. Albert [43d] yesterday criticized the manner in which Commissioner of Public Works Wolfe is handling the bids for the paving and grading of Austin avenue and Illinois street at Wabash avenue. Wolfe, Albert charged, is setting the stage to circumvent the law and award the contract to a contractor favored by the city hall instead of to the lowest bidder.

The three lowest bidders for the contract were the Starr Construction company, with $130,254; Byrne Brothers Construction company, $151,844, and the W. J. Newman company, $165,512. The Starr company withdrew its bid with the statement that an error had been made in its compilation. The Byrne company said it could do the work in two months. After Newman had submitted his bid he wrote a letter to Wolfe saying that he could do the job in thirty days.

Albert to Demand Inquiry.

"I am going to demand that the council committee on efficiency, economy and rehabilitation investigate the reasons why the Starr company withdrew its bid, to determine if it was forced out," said Ald. Albert. "I'll ask also that the committee scrutinize the reasons why Newman did not declare that the work could be done in thirty days until after his bid was in. The other contractors bid on the basis of a two months' period in which to carry out the work.

"The contract for the viaduct approach to the Wabash avenue bridge was let to the Ketler-Elliott company on its representation that it would do the work one month faster than the lowest bidder, the E. J. Albrecht company. Under that contract the work already has cost the city nearly $200,000 more than if the Albrecht company had received the contract.

Raps Time Saving Excuse.

"It appears now that the same excuse of saving time is going to be used by Wolfe in letting the paving contract to a favorite contractor. Because of these circumventions of the law it is becoming so that honest contractors will no longer bid on city work."

A charge that the Newman company used garbage as part of the fill for the old river channel between Polk and 16th streets also will be presented to the committee by Ald. Albert for investigation. The contract provides that no perishable material shall be used in this work.

GUARD BANKER AND HOME; NEW RANSOM THREAT

"No one will ever know the amount of the ransom, the terms of my release, or any other details," he concluded, flatly. "And I want to emphasize that I haven't even said that I paid any ransom. I will not cooperate with the sheriff or police and I don't wish them to proceed any further. My captors did not harm me, but they gave me definitely to understand what would happen if any of them was arrested. I have my instructions and I'm going to follow them."

Informed of this rebuff, Chief Moody declared that Yocum's wishes would not be considered.

"The fact remains that a serious crime, kidnaping for ransom, which carries the death penalty, has been committed," he said. "We're going to get the men who did it." When the banker was told of the chief's decision, he amplified his statement of the morning.

"I'd like to make every one understand how I feel in this matter," he said. "There is a band of armed men, desperate and unscrupulous, on one side, and myself and my family on the other side. I am convinced that the police can do nothing. Why should I put myself and my wife and daughters in danger?"

Easy Going, He Says.

"You don't even seem irritated at your seizure and detention, at the worry and trouble caused your wife, or at being forced to pay a large sum of money to a gang of criminals," he was told.

"I'm an easy going man," replied the banker. "During all the time I was held I didn't get mad. There wouldn't have been any use. I resigned myself to getting out of the fix as best I could."

He was told that his attitude had given rise to a report that other motives than a fear of physical reprisal prompted his silence.

"People are saying you have something to hide," an interviewer said. "That you are silent because your kidnapers might reveal facts which you would wish concealed.

"That is absolutely untrue," the banker declared. "It was a pure case of kidnaping for ransom. They held me to get money. I have no secrets, nothing to conceal."

Wife Backs Him Up.

Mrs. Mae Yocum, the banker's wife, who refused to coöperate with investigators during her husband's absence, stood beside him when he talked to newspaper men in the morning. Several times when he was about to furnish details of the kidnaping she interrupted him with the curt statement, "We won't talk about that."

"Breakfast is ready," Mrs. Yocum said, "and you know I'm still your boss."

The banker smiled when questioned about a report that he had been held prisoner in an abandoned coal mine in an adjoining county.

"You don't see any coal dust on me, do you?" he asked. "It wasn't as bad as all that."

"How many kidnapers were there?" he was asked.

"I don't know. I was blindfolded. I couldn't see."

"What are you going to do about the kidnaping?"

"I'll let some one else save the country."

"Don't you fear a repetition of the kidnaping in the future?"

"I don't think I need worry about that."

In the investigation of the kidnaping, local officials recalled the sudden opening of a restaurant here six weeks ago and its sudden closing two weeks ago.

Two men opened the restaurant on the main street of Galva, a few doors from the bank. A number of strange men were usually loitering about the place, police said. The proprietor deposited several hundred dollars in the Yocum bank and made frequent visits to the bank to make small withdrawals. Two weeks ago all the men left, leaving the furniture in the restaurant. It has been deserted since.

The theory of the investigators was that the men might have been members of a gang watching Yocum and studying his movements.

YACHT FOUNDERS; OWNER, WIFE AND SIX OF CREW LOST

Survivors Found After 69 Hours in Open Boat.

New York, Oct. 29.—[Special.]—Six sailors with as grim a story of shipwreck and privation as the Atlantic coastal waters have cast up this season came into port aboard the Clyde liner Henry R. Mallory—survivors of the 80 foot converted yacht Barbados, which foundered last Sunday off the coast of Delaware with the loss of eight lives.

For 69 hours they had drifted in an open lifeboat, lashed continually by high seas and close to swamping.

For 12 hours their companions were the bodies of three shipmates who died from cold and from exposure soon after the Barbados sank. And aboard the vessel when it went down they left to drown three passengers and five members of the crew. Those five could not reach the boat when it cast off just as the Barbados foundered.

Owner and Wife Drown.

The owner, E. G. Valverde, a naturalized Cuban who lived in Brooklyn; his wife, Hattie; their chauffeur, "Wilson," whose last name is unknown; Chief Engineer John R. Smith of Selma, and Assistant Engineer J. F. Walker of Orlando, Fla., were the five who sank with the Barbados.

In the lifeboat—the only one the ninety footer carried—died George Franklin, able seaman; A. O. Walters, the Negro mess boy, and George Watt, the cook, of Brooklyn.

In the boat, when the Mallory's searchlight picked it out of the dark at 10:25 last night, were Capt. Louis Hough of Long Beach, Cal., commander of the Barbados; Joseph Valverde, a cousin of the owner, who was the second mate; Henry Pfeiffer, Richmond Hill, first mate; George Lawrence, fireman; Augustus Lynch, a fireman, and Alexander Allenby, an able seaman.

Too Weak to Climb Ladder.

Hough and Allenby summoned up strength enough to climb the Jacob's ladder swung from the Mallory. Seamen from the Clyde liner carried the men to deck, all of them numb with cold and soaked with spray, and one, the fireman, injured by an explosion in the Barbados' engine room before she sank.

The boat, said Capt. William T. Davidson of the Clyde liner, was half filled with water. She could not have lived another hour in the high seas that ran.

It was 1:30 Sunday morning when the Barbados was abandoned. Water swept the deck, waist high, Capt. Hough said, and it was evident she was doomed. Seamen at the davits released the lifeboat hurriedly. Capt. Hough dived overboard and swam for it. When he had reached it the Barbados had gone down.

Pick Three from Water.

The lifeboat, Capt. Hough said, rolled about the scene a while and picked up Franklin, Walters and the cook swimming in the icy water. All three were shivering with cold when they were pulled aboard. The boat had not been fully stocked. Fresh water and canned beef, which later was found soured, were all the crew had for provisions.

At 10 o'clock on Sunday morning the mess boy died. Franklin died that afternoon and Watts that night. High seas still swept the lifeboat, and twelve hours later, when it seemed in danger momentarily of swamping, Capt. Hough gave orders that the bodies be lowered overboard to lighten her.

The Mallory, bound from Jacksonville, knew nothing of the shipwreck as she plunged north off Fenwick Island, Del., last night. Capt. Davidson was on the bridge at 10:30 and it was he who, by the merest chance, thought about the rescue.

Somewhere in the darkness off the starboard bow he heard what seemed to be a human cry. The searchlight swept the water, but it was half an hour before it picked up the tiny spot that was the swamping lifeboat.

French Foreign Legion Will Hail 100th Year of Its Birth

BY HENRY WALES.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SIDI-BEL-ABBES, Algeria, Oct. 29.—America had her "dollar a year" men during the war, but France has her "cent a day" men, 20,000 of them, who have been working for her for a hundred years. Preparations have started to fête the centenary of the creation of the French foreign legion next April marking exactly 100 years since King Louis-Philippe organized the outfit.

The corner stone of a giant onyx monument has been laid by Col. Nicolas, commander of the foreign legion. The monument, which will measure 20 by 30 feet and stand 25 feet high, will be ready by April. It depicts a huge bronze grenade and is flanked by four bronze figures of legionnaires.

Col. Nicolas gave instructions that I be shown over the entire barracks, the cradle of the legion here, with the exception of course of the military prison, and the "disciplinary yard," where minor offenders are punished. No one is permitted to enter these places except military inspectors.

Five Years at Cent a Day.

In the stifling heat, the penetrating dust, the scourge of flies, in this little town, hidden in the mud baked wastes of north Africa, one wonders why youths—and men—sign away their liberty for five year stretches to slave under the remorseless drivers at 25 centimes per day, exactly one cent in United States money. It isn't only hard labor. The legion has a higher mortality and casualty rate than any other organization in the world with the exception of the Spanish foreign legion.

The French foreign legion is composed of eighteen battalions of 1,000 each. These troops are scattered everywhere trouble exists under the French flag. Reinforcements of three more battalions are now en route to Indo-China, the French colony in Annam, where the alleged cruelties and injustices of maladministration have even elicited protests from the Paris press.

Blamed on communist fomentation, the tiny, fragile natives of Indo-China, the Annamites, are rebelling against forced labor in the rice plantations, and on the roads and railways, and more legionnaires with their bullets and bayonets are needed to keep them in line.

Work Stripped to Waist.

There are battalions in Tunis and in southern Algeria, on the edge of the burning Sahara sands, and in the foothills of the Atlas mountains, the French outposts in Morocco.

A block of huge three story barracks marks the home of the legion in Sidi-Bel-Abbes. I saw groups of legionnaires working on the railway, reballasting the track, placing new ties and rails, digging cuts wider, doing all sorts of the most unsoldierly but difficult work under the blazing sun.

They were stripped to the waist, with khaki trousers and huge hob nailed boots, with the queer white kepi, with a dirty streamer protecting the neck, as their headgear. The hat is distinctive of the legion, and has a long peak, like a jockey's.

In the barracks the men are kept busy from 5 a. m. until 6 p. m., learning French, drilling, policing the town, cleaning up and mending roads.

The recent propaganda aimed against the legion has had no effect on recruiting the organization, it was stated. To maintain its effectives, the legion must enlist between 3,000 and 4,000 men a year, and no difficulty is being found maintaining its full strength.

No Yanks Enrolled.

Germans make up the greatest number of men in the legion, with many Scandinavians, Austrians, Hungarians, Bulgarians, and Turks, and a considerable number of Spaniards and Italians. At present there are no Americans enrolled, and no one seemed quite sure if there were any Englishmen.

Theoretically there are no Frenchmen in the Legion. The French are too practical for that. To enlist the applicant must swear he is of some foreign nationality. Whatever nationality he states is accepted without question. There are no questions asked in the legion.

GERMANS REJECT PLAN TO CANCEL THE YOUNG PLAN

Demand Other Nations Disarm.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Oct. 29.—The foreign affairs committee of the reichstag tonight rejected motions demanding that Germany cancel the Versailles treaty and cease all reparations payments under the Young plan immediately.

Dr. Wilhelm Frick, a Fascist, who presides over the committee, offered the motion demanding the cancellation of the Versailles treaty. The communists demanded that the Young plan be thrown overboard. Although the government is in the minority on the committee, both motions were defeated after a speech by Foreign Minister Curtius.

The committee adopted a motion presented by Dr. Daugh, representing the German People's party, requesting the government to take all steps necessary to induce other signatories of the Versailles treaty to fulfill the pledge to disarm.

"Germany is confronted by the fact that she fulfilled all her obligations to the last point, but that counter-obligations to which she was entitled are long overdue and are being withheld illegally," said the resolution. "Some countries are even increasing their armaments.

"The foreign affairs committee believes this a violation of the principle of equal rights of nations and that the failure to disarm endangers the safety of Germany and the peace of the world. The government must demand the disarmament of the others corresponding to the state of Germany's disarmament and must find out if the other nations are inclined to fulfill those obligations which they contracted in signing the Versailles treaty."

MADE MURDER DEFENDANT BY HIS LIES, HE SAYS

Washington, D. C., Oct. 29.—[Special.]—Herbert M. Campbell swore on the witness stand today that he did not murder Mary Baker, that he had no idea who murdered her, and that he never heard of her before April 12 when her body was found beside a culvert near Arlington cemetery.

Fighting the charge that he attacked, chocked, and shot the 30 year old navy department employé, the Virginia real estate dealer said he was a victim of circumstances and of his desire for newspaper publicity. H gibly admitted that his own "lies" got him into the trouble, but denied that he shocked and shot Miss Baker "or any other woman." He was under cross-examination when court adjourned for the day.

Meanwhile Col. Calvin Goddard, Northwestern university ballistics expert, completed his microscopic examination of guns and bullets, one of them alleged to be the death gun, and was reported to be ready to prove the infallibility of his science before the trial closes, possibly tomorrow.

Goddard will seek to demonstrate his ability to differentiate between ten test bullets fired from five .32 caliber revolvers in the presence of the jury.

Speaking in a low voice, Campbell told how he invented the story of a man "with a wart on his nose" who stole from him the gun identified by Col. Goddard as the death weapon and how "the spirit of excitement" got into him because of his prominence in the case.

Prosecutor Collins for a half hour hurled questions at Campbell about his gun, asking him where he kept it, why he brought it to the authorities and how he accounted for having it at all. At one point Campbell blurted out that he believed State's Attorney W. C. Gloth of Arlington county had substituted bullets fired from his gun for those taken from Miss Baker's body. Gloth, he said, told him "if he could break somebody's neck in this case he's made for the next election."

THE BOND ISSUES.

Fourteen proposed bond issues will appear on the little ballot on Nov. 4. The voters are in the position of a board of directors asked to approve a program of capital improvements. Each project has to be considered not only on its own merits but also in relation to future requirements and credit resources.

If the affairs of Cook county are examined in that spirit the voters cannot overlook the fact that within the next six years no less than $120,000,000 must be raised by bond issues for the completion of the sanitary district's sewage treatment works. No sanitary district bond issue is on the ballot this November, but there is no escape from the necessity of borrowing for the sewage works in the near future. The works have been ordered built by the Supreme court of the United States, a program of construction has been laid down, and as long as Chicago remains within the United States that mandate must be carried out.

The taxpayers of Chicago will have to pay interest on that debt and retire it. The addition of $120,000,000 to the amount of the community's borrowings will be an increase of something like 40 per cent. The per capita tax in Chicago, according to the latest compilation by the federal department of commerce for 1928, was already slightly higher than the average of the thirteen largest cities in the United States. Meanwhile taxes here have gone higher. Plainly, there is need for caution in incurring further debt.

We emphasize the word caution. The city and the other local governments ought not to be permitted to borrow for doubtful purposes or for improvements which can be postponed, but neither can the community afford to stagnate for lack of public improvements of pressing importance.

Of the fourteen issues on the ballot in Chicago we agree with the Civic federation in recommending ten for approval and four for rejection.

The sum of $8,000,000 is asked by the Lincoln park board to push the park northward. This is an essential part of the city plan. The city has benefited beyond reckoning from the lake front improvements thus far undertaken and there can be no question of the value of the extension for recreation and for relieving traffic congestion. The Lincoln park issue should pass.

The county government asks $2,350,000 for a nurses' home in connection with the county hospital. This issue, we are assured, will add little, if at all, to the annual cost now borne by the county for housing its nurses, many of whom are quartered in rented space, and it will add measurably to the efficiency of the nursing corps. Good quarters will continue to attract a superior type of woman to the service. The building must be provided within a few years in any event because present facilities are not safe, and this is a particularly good time to build. In the considered opinion of an advisory council of hospital specialists the nurses' home can be built now at a saving of from 15 to 20 per cent under ordinary building costs. This issue should be approved.

A new bridge is needed at State street, for which a $3,500,000 bond issue is submitted. The present bridge will have to be removed because its foundations are in the way of the subway. Chicago cannot get along without a State street bridge. As the foundations of the new bridge should go in with the subway, the authorization ought not be delayed.

A somewhat similar argument applies to the proposal for a new bridge at Halsted street. The present vertical lift bridge is 36 years old, obsolete in design, narrow, expensive to operate, unsafe, and beyond effective repair. Its replacement is both desirable and unavoidable. Eight other bridges must also undergo important repairs for which $1,000,000 is required. These bridge bonds, too, should be voted.

A half million dollars is requested for playgrounds to be constructed in congested neighborhoods. The money will be well spent. A wholesome environment for growing children is the best known preventive of crime.

We recommend approval, also, of the extension of Indianapolis avenue, an important radial highway, at a cost of $400,000, and the expenditure of $300,000 toward a subway under the Illinois Central tracks at 47th street. Millions have been spent in constructing the lake shore park, but the park is still relatively inaccessible to persons on foot. The 47th street subway will help remedy this defect.

The city is asking $4,310,000 to meet its outstanding obligations in connection with the widenings of Western avenue, Ashland avenue and La Salle street. The obligations are now costing the city 5 per cent a year. The city can issue bonds at something like 4 per cent. The bond issues will thus save the taxpayers close to $45,000 a year and by enabling the city to discharge its debt will release money to private individuals for purposes of building construction.

We recommend, finally, the forest preserve issue of $2,500,000 for improvements in the various preserves. A thoroughly trustworthy advisory committee has studied the situation and recommended the improvements which the issue will provide. At present the sanitary facilities in the preserves are entirely unsatisfactory and, indeed, a menace to health. To the extent that the forest preserves are attractive they are a constant and growing source of danger to the public.

We find four proposals which should be rejected. In all, they call for the expenditure of more than $20,000,000. The state is asking $14,000,000 for hunting and fishing preserves and it is said in support of the proposal that this issue would require no additional taxation because hunting and fishing licenses would cover its requirements. The Civic federation suggests that the license fees be increased before the money is borrowed, a reasonable precaution. We find a further objection in the proposal to establish a preserve of about the same size in each county. As a good deal more than half the population of the state lives in the Chicago metropolitan area, and as that is precisely the area in most need of public recreational facilities, and as that is also the area which will pay a good deal more than its share of the cost of these preserves, it would seem only fair to distribute the benefits accordingly. Geographical equality should be the last consideration, not the first.

The city government wants $5,460,000 to complete the Ogden avenue improvement. This proposal has been defeated at previous elections. Ogden avenue is not a particularly valuable traffic artery, and the money can be spent to better advantage elsewhere. At present the route over Goose island, though somewhat devious, is usable and is not unduly congested.

We also advise against the borrowing of half a million dollars for traffic control lights. Where lights are plainly required they can be purchased from current revenues. Another $2,000,000 is requested for extension of the street lighting system. This is a more proper charge against future revenues, but it would be unfair to the taxpayers to impose this debt upon them at a time of real estate depression.

JUDGES OF THE COUNTY COURTS.

On the large ballot the names of candidates for County judge and for Probate judge will be found in one place, and farther down those of candidates for five judgeships of the Superior and one of the Circuit court.

THE TRIBUNE recommendations are the same as the bar association except in one instance.

For judge of the County court THE TRIBUNE urges the reëlection of the incumbent, Judge Jarecki, in the Democratic column. There is no more important office in the county than that of County judge. Besides his important work in the County court, the County judge supervises our election machinery, and he is therefore the chief defender of pure elections. Judge Jarecki has not only proved his competence in the general work of the County court, but he has distinguished himself as a high minded, disinterested and courageous guardian of the integrity of elections. Lately he has been attacked by factional interests which sought to influence and control the machinery of elections, and they, with every subterranean power seeking to pervert elections for their own advantage, will try to defeat him. It is, therefore, a very special concern of good citizenship that Judge Jarecki have the support of good citizens, regardless of their ordinary party affiliations. It is as emphatically the duty and interest of Republicans as of Democrats to vote for Judge Jarecki. We ascribe no evil motives to his opponent on the Republican ticket. It is a question of rewarding faithful service, above partisanship, of giving public notice that faithful service is recognized by intelligent citizenship, and of making certain, as only by the retention of Judge Jarecki can it be made certain, that the vital interests of the community in honest elections will be alertly and unflinchingly protected.

Another judge who should be retained in his important office is Probate Judge Henry Horner. The duties of the Probate judge call for not only legal learning but exceptional personal qualifications of sound judgment. Judge Horner has both in a high degree. No one who has ever occupied his difficult and important post has won a more general approval not only from the legal profession but from the public which has had experience of his conduct of probate affairs. Party affiliations should not affect a voter's decision in such a case, and Republicans should give Judge Horner the same unhesitating support as Democrats.

For the five judgeships of the Superior court, THE TRIBUNE recommends Howard W. Hayes in the Republican column, and James Joseph Kelly, Walter Stanton, Rudolf F. Desort, and Ross C. Hall in the Democratic column.

For judge of the Circuit court to fill the vacancy created by the death of Judge Ira Ryner, THE TRIBUNE recommends Joseph Burke in the Democratic column.

Editorial of the Day

MR. MAXIM'S SOUND SCREEN.

[Philadelphia Public Ledger.]

The "house of silence," which attracted so much attention at the recent building trades exhibition in London, with its slamless doors and nonrattling windows, its rubber floors and soundproof partitions, left one thing to be desired. It was "one hundred per cent quiet," according to its inventor's claim, but only when the windows were closed. Opening them automatically admitted the noises of the streets. And in the absence of efficient mechanical ventilation, windows have to be opened, even in cold weather.

This deficiency, it is now announced, may be repaired through the latest invention by Mr. Hiram Maxim, whose silencers for firearms and various pieces of industrial machinery have proved successful. His device, which is to be applied to open windows, resembles a mosquito or fly screen and is said to keep out noises as effectively as its counterpart excludes insect pests.

But, as in the case of the English "house of silence," the question arises: May not this well meant invention have come too late? Will it be appreciated by modern city dwellers, who have become so inured to assaults upon their auditory nerves that they are lulled to sleep by the sounds of the street and might miss the honking of horns at midnight and the rattling of milk bottles at dawn? Would they not have to get accustomed all over again to that strange nocturnal silence coming "like a poultice" to "heal the blows of sound"? Every now and then a new crusade against unnecessary noise is announced. One is in progress now in New York. But the fact that nothing is really done about it—except possibly the suppression of a few loudspeakers or the arrest of a motorist or two for persistent honking—suggests that the public is not greatly excited about this subject.

INHERITING TROUBLE.

MANY persons are marked for hay fever or some one of the asthma disorders when they come into the world. They inherit the biologic peculiarities from some ancestor. Training away from the tendency should be begun in infancy. In a study of asthmatic children Dr. G. W. Bray found that one-fourth of the total number had some disorder with asthmatic earmarks during the first year of life. A study of asthmatics of older years revealed that one-third of the entire number were rather definitely asthmatic when they reached ten years of age.

There are certain signs by which this tendency can be recognized in advance of the definite disorder, asthma. Children of asthmatic parents are apt to develop asthma. Sign posts reading, "Asthma two years down the road" are more dependable and should be given more notice when there is a history of hay fever or asthma in the family. Among the signs of asthma tendency are certain skin troubles.

If a child has eczema, or hives, there is a likelihood that he will develop one of the asthmatic disorders in time. Children of this group are apt to complain of itching, especially night itching and itching due to exposure to heat, to dry air, or as a result of bathing. As a rule, skin is somewhat thick and scaly. A tendency to fish skin is noticeable. Children of this group are prone to rub the nose, to have snuffles, to sneeze, to catch cold readily. When they catch a cold they are very apt to wheeze. Their colds hang on for a long time.

These symptoms referable to the nose cause physicians to look for enlarged adenoids and infected tonsils. In asthmatic tendency children there is a good chance that nose symptoms will not be accompanied by disease of tonsils or adenoids. Children of this group are apt to be tall and slender. The height is right for age and family inheritance but the weight is below the proper level. The children with fitful appetites and idiosyncrasies supply a large part of the asthmatics.

The tendency having been diagnosed, prevention of asthma can be effected. The methods are principally matters of training.

DISEASE OF THE BONE.

Mrs. M. McC. writes:

1. What causes bone pathology in the right tibia? Can it be cured? If so, what method is used as a cure?

2. I have varicose veins. Is there a cure for that? What method is used in curing them? I am 57 years old and have had these veins for 37 years.

REPLY.

1. The word pathology means disease. Some one has told you that your tibia is diseased. He did not tell you what the disease is. The possibility of cure and the method of treatment depend on the disease.

2. Varicose veins are curable. The best operation is injection. It does not suit all cases. Whether or not operation is advisable depends on the trouble caused by the diseased veins.

WORMS AND ASAFETIDA.

A. S. writes:

1. I should like to know if worms eaten in candy will live in the stomach. I bought some chocolate covered dates and was eating them [I had already eaten two or three] when I happened to look at a piece I was eating and there, to my surprise, the thing was full of live worms. What would you recommend?

2. Is asafetida in five grain tablets good for nervousness? It seems so in my case. Is there any harm in taking one a day?

REPLY.

1. Dismiss the matter from your mind. You harmed these worms worse than they harmed you.

2. Don't. It may cause your family to give you absent treatment.

THEY ARE NOT SAME.

Miss E. S. writes: Two or three dentists have told me I have pyorrhea [which I believe is the same as trench mouth or Vincent's angina].

REPLY:

Trench mouth is not pyorrhea, nor are they closely related.

JANITOR SERVICE.

Chicago, Oct. 20.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. Is any one but the janitor allowed to care for the furnace in an apartment house? 2. How long at one time may a janitor absent himself from the building when the furnace is supposed to be going? H. F.

1. It is for the owner to say.

2. Depends on the furnace and on the weather. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

YOU ARE A CITIZEN.

Chicago, Oct. 24.—[Friend of the People.]—At the registration place I was told that I am not a citizen and therefore cannot register and vote. When I was about 3 years old my parents came to this country. When I was about 18 years of age my father became a citizen. I have resided in the U. S. permanently since that time, that is, about 28 years. In 1929 I married a man who became a citizen in 1927. Am I not an American citizen? P. F.

A young lady of foreign birth who was residing in this country at the time of the naturalization of her father and who was thirteen years of age at that time derived citizenship through the father's naturalization. Marriage to a citizen in 1929 would not alter her citizenship.

FRED J. SCHLOTFELDT,
District Director of Naturalization.

JOINT TENANCY SIMPLER.

Chicago, Oct. 20.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. Which is better to have, a joint tenancy or a will? 2. Was told that if there is a joint tenancy between man and wife the children can call for their share after the father is dead. J. A. V.

1. The joint tenancy is simpler if you are satisfied for her to have an interest now which you cannot revoke. The will has the advantage of being revocable.

2. This is not true.

OR HOW EDDIE HAS CHANGED.

The Prince of Wales was to broadcast from London yesterday and we tried our best to hear him, twisting the dial every which way. We don't know whether we heard him or not—probably not, because the most we got out of the loud speaker was—"The Republican party is the only party that can bring about a full and complete return of prosperity be my little girlie just give me a kiss two years ago the Democratic party warned you this very catastrophe would happen if I'm dancing with tears in mah eyes you'll never regret it the prices are the lowest the quality of the highest and when you're over that way drop 'in and see for yourself that there never was before in the history of this country a time when red blooded one hundred per cent Americans should rally in the interest of good government"—what's the use? It didn't any of it sound like Edward David.

TO DIANA.

Intelligence, lass,
Is what you should hide
If you'd like a lad
By you to abide.

Ne'er let that lad know
Your mind is so keen;
(He'd die in his tracks
At what he had seen.)

Why, lass, he would run
Like hare from the hound
At knowing what makes
Your mental background.

Suppress your wit, gal,
It's vacuum—and how—
That men want to find
Behind your arched brow.

Your game you will bag,
Proposals will come,
If you're so bright that
You act like you're dumb.

HOME, SWEET HOME.

The tenants who had just engaged the pretty little apartment were movin' in.

"Yessir," the janitor said, "it's a swell flat. Steam heat, running water, south front, sunshine all day, electric stove and icebox, and only two minutes' walk to the car line."

"Getthell outten here," said one of the new tenants somewaat rudely. The janitor got.

"Now, funny face," said the new tenant to the man who was with him, "open tha trunk and get out tha typewriters and set 'em right here under tha window so's we can shove 'em up on the sill an' turn 'em loose as soon as he pokes his snoot down this street."

The second tenant opened the trunk and dragged out a couple of machine guns, and, sitting down on the floor, stuffed the belt full of cartridges.

"Hide tha gats, tha pineapples, an' tha shotguns behind the curtains," went on the first man. "You take this big chair an' go on watch for the first two hours an' some of the other boys will be along by that time and take their turn. Wait till tha guy comes blowin' around that corner an' walks right in front of this dump across tha street. We may have to lay fer him a day, a week, or a month, but some day he's a comin' an' then give him tha works. Well, keep yer eyes open. We're a livin' here in this dump now an' I'm goin' ter take a bath an' go to bed. Gosh! Say, kid, talk all yer wantter, but there hain't no place like home."

SNOWSHOE AL REPLIES KINDLY TO A DEAR FRIEND.

To the Duke of Bakrak, care "Corsets-For-Men, Inc." Dear Dook: You should have heard my wife rave when she lamped your recent shovelful of abuse. "Why," says her, "the very idea o' that Abyssinian Wart Hog referring to our pleasant domicile as 'a hole' when he has never been here yet, thank gawd!"

"Nevertheless," says I, "I think we better invite him over."

"Invite him, hell," says her. "Ask his wife if we can borrow him for a few days. Then we can stick a sign in the window reading '25c admission' an' take a lot o' trade away from the dead whale. Your friend may not be as big, but he's twice as dead, especially from his tonsils northward. That guy thinks Elihu Root is an herb. Believe me, when Bill Shakespeare sarcastically remarked 'What's in a name' he must have just heard that Mr. Bakrak owned wisdom teeth."

"Speakin' o' teeth," says I, trying to defend you (you know me, kid!), "the Dook really has an enviable mouthful o' them——"

"Yeh, I know," says her, "an' how he loves to sink them into somebody else's groceries! I once asked him to show me those teeth, an' he did, but he got sore because I dropped them. Furthermore, he's got a lot o' nerve, saying that your looks an' actions would go better with Run, Sheep, Run than with Auction Bridge! If looks an' actions meant anything, he would have been christened Fido. If I was that gink's wife I would squirt insect powder at him an' then sweep him into the garbage can. To me that bozo is just a cheese sandwich with the bread absent. He ain't got no more culture than a fish has got knees."

"But, Dearie," protests me, "you mustn't take the Dook so seriously. "Really, the guy is a good hoomorist, an' good hoomorists are very scarce. You know, if all the poets in the world were laid side by side they would reach twice around the globe, but if all the good hoomorists in the world were laid side by side——"

"All joking aside," says I, "we ought to invite 'em over——"

"Very well," says her, "I'll ask the Duchess to come over for dinner. Rush out an' buy 1½ pounds of steak."

OBSERVATION PEAK

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

OCTOBER 30, 1914.

TOKIO.—The Russian embassy announces that Turkey has opened war on Russia. This makes the tenth nation to enter the great conflict.

LONDON. — The Daily Chronicle Paris correspondent asserts that, with a view to detaching France from the allies, Germany made an offer to conclude peace on the basis of the cession of Metz and possibly a portion of Alsace to France. The startling bit of news from the battlefields today was the official declaration that a German attempt to penetrate the lines of the allies in the vicinity of Lille had failed. This repulse is important to the allies because if the German movement had been successful it would have compelled the allied forces holding the front through Ypres to the coast to fall back toward Dunkirk.

LONDON.—Prince Louis of Battenberg, first sea lord of the British admiralty, has resigned because of the campaign brought against him in some newspapers on account of his German birth and parentage.

DUNKIRK.—Nineteen women were killed and forty injured by a bomb dropped by a German airplane in the market place at Bethune.

OCTOBER 30, 1900.

CHICAGO. — Grover Cleveland, former President of the United States, is opposed to Bryan and Bryanism. He declares that the doctrines preached by the "apostle of hate" are inimical to the country's welfare and not representative of the principles of true democracy. This denunciation of the Democratic candidate is made inferentially in a letter written by Mr. Cleveland to Don M. Dickinson of Michigan.

LONDON.—Ten persons killed outright, 200 maimed and crushed, many so badly they will die, and countless hundreds bruised and beaten, with clothes torn to rags, are the results of the wildest, maddest day London has ever seen. It was all an incident in the British people's welcome to their returning heroes from the Boer war—the members of the City Imperial Volunteers. The list of casualties was longer than that of the whole corps in its twenty-six engagements in South Africa.

NEW YORK.—Forty buildings were wrecked by an explosion and fire at noon on the two square blocks bounded by Murray, Warren, Chambers, Greenwich, and Washington streets. Nearly 500 men and women were injured. The number of dead is not known and will remain in doubt for two weeks. Forty-five persons are missing. The property loss is a million and a half dollars.

OCTOBER 30, 1880.

NEW YORK.—The examination of Kenward Philp, charged with criminal libel upon Gen. Garfield by writing the bogus letter indicating Gen. Garfield favored cheap Chinese labor, was resumed in the Supreme court. Witnesses testified that the writing of the letter was similar to the acknowledged handwriting of Philp.

NEW YORK.—The World, the pet organ of Gen. Hancock, Democratic candidate for President, says: "We scorn any political association with any protectionist. No protectionist can be a Democrat at all. Our hope is in making the Democracy an out and out, thick and thin, intolerant free trade party, subordinating all issues to this, and thereby drawing to itself all citizens who have a true appreciation of this grand principle."

MATTOON, Ill.—This city, the very center of old line Democracy, is literally alive with Bourbon Democrats here for a big rally. Lyman Trumbull, Democratic candidate for governor against Shelby M. Cullom, and Dan Voorhees of Indiana were advertised as speakers, but they failed to arrive, and at the last hour Congressman Bill Springer came over from Springfield and made the set speech.

NEW YORK. — Bernhardt arrived here too well fixed for clothes and must pony up $4,800 customs duty on her wardrobe.

AMAZEMENT.

Chicago, Oct. 28.—The undersigned read with amazement in this morning's TRIBUNE the fact that the Big Ten faculty group had turned down the Chicago charity game between Northwestern and Notre Dame, scheduled for Nov. 22, 1930. Because a technical ruling would not be waived Chicago charities will have between $150,000 and $200,000 less with which to do good among unfortunates this coming winter.

Here was a golden opportunity for the universities to render very material assistance. Can it be that the enforcement of certain rules is of more importance than rendering aid to your fellow men?

H. B. DESNOYERS.
LOUIS VITO.

A SACRED TRUST.

Oak Park, Ill., Oct. 28.—Nine big hearted professors, bowing gravely under the weight of their tremendous responsibilities as guardians of the conference rules, have voted against football playing for mere charity. To criticize the action of so august a body of cultured gentlemen or even to hint that most of them derive their bread and butter from taxes levied on the very people they refuse to help would hardly be just. Theirs is a sacred trust. True enough, so tremendous a sum denied to charity in times of great need might result in preventable deaths through starvation or exposure, but who wouldn't be willing to die for such a worthy cause? We've all heard of the idiots who have expressed their willingness to die for dear alma mater. Why not for the sake of an epitaph reading "He died to prove the sacredness of a conference rule"?

F. J. WAINDLE.

BLIND LEADERS.

Chicago, Oct. 28.—The refusal by the faculty committee of the Big Ten to allow transfer of the football game to Soldiers' field in aid of charity unconsciously affords a striking indictment of our educational system. To think that in an acute crisis such as we now have educators, so called leaders, should refuse the call of the heart and mind for coöperation confirms the belief that these educators are "blind leaders of the blind." The reasons given simply aggravate the charge that leaders are not bred in colleges.

If assistance of a worthy cause must be stopped by rules, break the rules has always been the rule of true leaders. Additional aggravation of the crime, for such it is, by this committee lies in the fact that educational institutions are wards of the state. They are freed of taxation. This committee proves the claim that so called leaders are only such in fair weather. In foul weather we must appeal to the unlettered and untutored. MORRIS LYCHENHEIM.

A DEEP SENSE OF SHAME.

Chicago, Oct. 28.—Reasons for the decision of the Big Ten faculty representatives were not made public. But we can guess! For fear of setting a precedent? Very probably. For fear of breaking a self-established set of rules? Very probably.

Grant those objections and then consider how infinitesimal they seem in comparison with the charitable work that could be accomplished with the thousands of dollars from the proposed game. Doesn't such a decision, made by learned and supposedly public spirited men, tax human credulity?

Here was an opportunity for representatives to display the same sporting spirit and coöperation so frequently seen on the gridiron. But they fumbled! And with a glorious goal in sight!

Graduates and undergraduates of midwestern schools, priding themselves on openmindedness, must feel a keen sense of shame and regret. H. C. K.

THE END.

Chicago, Oct. 29.—I will never attend another Big Ten football game as long as I live. JOSEPH FRANKLIN.

A DAY'S WAGE FOR THE JOBLESS.

Chicago, Oct. 24.—In your paper yesterday an article appeared which related that Mr. Insull had requested all of his employés and officers of the companies he controlled to pay one day's salary each month for six months toward some special fund which was to relieve those who are unemployed. This is a very noble expression of charity and helpfulness, but can these individuals afford this amount out of their pay? This may not mean much to one who earns a good salary, but to some it may mean a great deal. Perhaps some of those who are most vitally affected are the sole support of a family, and on a small salary. A day's wage is of significant importance to such persons. H. A. G.

BILLS TO PAY.

Chicago, Oct. 27.—Mr. Samuel Insull is quoted as saying one day's salary will be given voluntarily to the unemployed fund by the employés of the utilities.

What of the families of these men with hospital bills and doctors to pay, of whom I happen to know three, trying to get along on little better than $30 per week? That $5 or $6 looks, O, so big just now.

Of course Mr. Insull is a big man and I have no hope of seeing this in print. If he only knew the dissatisfaction he is causing among the employés he might at least have given them a chance to vote on what they wish to do. One dollar each pay day would not be so bad, but one full day's pay looks pretty big.

CATS ARE MADE 'PUBLIC ENEMIES' IN WESTCHESTER

Night "Concerts" Rouse Realtors to Action.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 29.—[Special.]—A great peace has fallen over the hills of Westchester, and the bluebirds and the chickadees chirp contentedly from their perch on the gold plated clothes-line wires that adorn the back yards of New York's most aristocratic suburb. The night is free from hideous sounds and the moral tone of the community would make a Sir Galahad envious, for Westchester has decided to let the old cat die.

Big business in that Utopian community has turned from the vexing problems of unemployment, prohibition and how to get through the winter with last year's motor car to a more pressing matter—the elimination of the well known domesticated Felix, the common or back fence house cat.

Cats to Be Slain on Sight.

For the first time the cat has been recognized as an economic peril, and one of the largest real estate firms in this section has outlawed him in its business contracts. The Robert E. Farley company has drawn a deadline around its choice residential properties and if Felix or Tabby are caught on poncat ground they are to be slain on sight.

Vice President Colvin Farley devised the anti-cat form of contract and it is pawproof. Mr. Farley is rather proud of it and does not mind letting every one know that he classes cats as public enemies.

"The cat proposition was a tough problem," said Mr. Farley, "for we have a lot of birds up in Westchester, and if we did not eliminate the cat the cat would eliminate the bird. Therefore I devised a contract which, while it does not prevent a home owner from keeping a pet cat, requires him to keep that cat inside his home. There will be no more putting the cat out at night in Westchester. We love our birds up here in Westchester, and besides we figure that the birds literally attract many home buyers from the city.

Will End Those Night Concerts.

"The contract also should put an end to those cat concerts staged on roof tops and back fences, which murder the sleep of many unfortunate suburban dwellers."

"My contract will eliminate the cat or keep him in the house where cats should be kept. Cats found running at large may be destroyed as a public enemy. By keeping the house cat in his place—he is a suspicious character of known murderous proclivities—we will be adding commercial value to our community.

"I have ordered a large quantity of bird houses to be placed in the shrubbery which abounds in our community. From now on it will be birds first and cats second, if at all."

Once Held Attention of U. S.

Mr. Farley may be the first to approach a solution of the cat problem, but he certainly is not the first to attack it. Not more than a year ago the feline menace occupied the attention of the United States government. Dr. L. O. Howard of the department of agriculture declared war on cats and spoke of them as being infernal nuisances, good for nothing and too lazy to catch mice.

But the doctor didn't get even to first base with his cat war, for the cat owners howled louder than their alleged pets and the cat issues was soft pedaled.

Now Mr. Farley has stepped into the breach and some day may be as famous in the cat world as St. Patrick is in the snake world.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 29.—[Special.]—Dismissal of Ralph S. Kelley, employé of the public land office, whose charges relative to irregularities in the handling of western oil shale lands titles drew a sharp rebuke yesterday from President Hoover, was announced today by Secretary of the Interior Ray Lyman Wilbur.

Mr. Kelley, who has been under suspension for the last few weeks, was notified of his dismissal by Secretary Wilbur in the following brief letter:

"Referring to my letter of Sept. 29, suspending you from duty, your conduct has been such that your connection with the interior department may be considered terminated by dismissal as of Sept. 29, 1930."

The action follows the finding of Attorney General William D. Mitchell that the Kelley charges which were published in serial form in a New York newspaper were without foundation.

There were indications that critics of the administration would try to draw a parallel between the Wilbur-Kelley case and the Ballinger-Glavis case of the Taft administration which was a basis of attack upon President Taft and was one of the incidents which split the Republican party in 1912.

Louis R. Glavis, like Kelley, was an employé of the land office and, like him, was dismissed from the government service after he had made charges reflecting upon Secretary of the Interior R. A. Ballinger in connection with the administration of Alaskan coal lands. Gifford Pinchot, now the Republican nominee for governor in Pensylvania, helped to stir up the Ballinger case.

Ends Life with Gun in Fashionable Hotel

Despondency caused by ill health was given yesterday as the reason why Henry Williams, 60 years old, retired office furniture manufacturer of Grand Rapids, Mich., shot himself to death in his room at the Edgewater Beach hotel. The body was discovered by a maid. Williams, who came here from a resort at Warrington, N. C., had been in the Presbyterian hospital for three weeks.

BRITAIN WARNS RUSSIA TO HALT RED AGITATION

Tells Soviet Ambassador Pledge Is Violated.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Oct. 29.—Foreign Secretary Henderson has warned the soviet government that the Russian pledge to refrain from propaganda activities in Great Britain and other parts of the empire is being broken and that a continuance of the practice will endanger the relations of the two countries. This was brought out by a blunt answer given by Mr. Henderson in the house of commons today.

The Conservatives, who have been hammering constantly at the Labor government's recognition of the soviet government, launched their attack today at the earliest opportunity. Sir William Davison demanded to know the results of the inquiry into propaganda carried on by the Third Internationale and what action the government is taking.

Soviet Ambassador's Answer.

"As a result of the inquiry I have seen the soviet ambassador and represented that his government had not been observing the pledge against propaganda which had been exchanged," Mr. Henderson replied. "I asked the ambassador to impress seriously on his government that a continuation of the propaganda would endanger the relations of the two countries. The ambassador assured me that his government has done and will continue to do all in its power to observe the pledge. He added, however, that he was unable to control the activities of the Third Internationale."

This reply was greeted with jeers from the Conservative benches. Sir Austen Chamberlain demanded to know whether the reply of the soviet ambassador was not a repudiation of the British interpretation of the pledge and, if that was so, what further action had been taken.

"It is quite clear that there are two interpretations," Mr. Henderson answered. "I have placed mine and given the house what was said and what was his interpretation. That is as far as I am able to go at the moment."

Britain Aids Lena Claim.

An indication that the government is taking a hand in the collection of damages, amounting to about $60,000,000, awarded the Lena Goldfields corporation by a court of arbitration for the soviet violation of concessions contracts was found in the reply of G. M. Gillett of the overseas trade department to questions concerning the credit granted the soviet government under the export credit facilities act. Mr. Gillett said the credit amounted to $24,018,455, of which the government's liability was $14,412,575. Sir William Davidson asked whether the credits committee was aware of the Russian repudiation of its debt.

"I have no doubt that all the facts are known to the committee," Mr. Gillett answered.

LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE: The Quieting Touch

Investigate Records of Bond Concern.

Sales of preferred stock in Robert S. Strauss & Co., 105 West Monroe street, now involved in bankruptcy proceedings, totaled at least $1,000,000 and the investment concern also sold about $250,000 in common stock, Sam Howard, receiver, said yesterday. None of this stock, which was sold at $100 a share, is worth a nickel, Mr. Howard said.

The stock sales were unauthorized by the secretary of state and hundreds of complaints are being received by the Investors' Protective bureau, both from purchasers of stock in the company and holders of "gold notes" exchanged for first mortgage real estate bonds.

Warrant Awaits President.

While Mr. Howard was carrying on an investigation into the affairs of the bankrupt concern, the return of Albert W. Cohn, president, was awaited by state authorities with a warrant charging him with operation of a confidence game. Attorney A. B. Scolnik said yesterday he had talked to Cohn in New York by long distance telephone and that he was ready to return for a hearing before Referee in Bankruptcy Harry A. Parkin.

The schedule in bankruptcy filed by the company, after an involuntary petition had been filed against it, placed the liabilities at $1,385,098, of which $1,032,1 was listed as unsecured claims.

This estimate of the liabilities, however, does not include the worthless stock, according to Mr. Howard, so that the total losses to investors may exceed $2,000,000, he said. Assets of $374,856 are listed in the company's schedules, but this includes $699,740 worth of stocks and bonds at par, the present value of which is doubtful, according to the receiver.

Give "Gold Notes" for Bonds.

Mr. Howard said the concern financed several large buildings and when the bond issues went into default it induced the holders to exchange them for "gold notes," presumably with the first mortgage real estate bonds to be held as security. The receiver said he had been unable to find any of these bonds. The gold notes were said to be simple promissory notes, without security.

Complaints against the company have been received from several hundred investors in Mississippi, Kansas, Iowa, and throughout Illinois. Several downstate women each bought as much as $2,000 worth of the stock, according to the Investors' Protective bureau.

Attorney Scolnik said the company was a victim of the real estate slump and the stock market crash, and that Cohn was innocent of any intent to defraud.

EXTREMES OF SOCIAL LIFE REPRESENTED AT WHITNEY FUNERAL

New York, Oct. 29.—[Special.]—Harry Payne Whitney, sportsman, multi-millionaire and patron of the arts, was buried today after simple funeral services at the flower hidden altar of St. Bartholomew's Episcopal church, Park avenue and 50th street.

The more than 1,000 persons at the funeral represented men and women from scattered walks of life.

The many distinguished persons present—President Hoover's cabinet was represented by Charles Francis Adams, a sportsman himself and secretary of the navy—heard the long established Episcopal service for the dead. It was conducted by the Rev. Dr. Endicott Peabody of Groton school, assisted by the Rev. Dr. Robert Norwood, rector of the church. Mr. Whitney was a schoolboy at Groton.

There were no honorary pall bearers, and the service was quickly concluded. Burial, in the Whitney plot in Woodlawn cemetery, was private.

The members of the immediate family present were the widow, the former Gertrude Vanderbilt, and the three children—Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney, Mrs. G. MacCullough Miller, and Mrs. Barklie McKee Henry.

Mr. Whitney died at his home, 871 Fifth avenue, on Sunday following an illness of a week which developed into pneumonia.

SIXTEEN BODIES REMOVED AFTER MINE EXPLOSION

Rescue Crews Seek 13 More Victims.

McAlester, Okla., Oct. 29.—(AP)—Black depths of the Wheatley coal mine, tomb of twenty-nine victims of a violent explosion Monday night which killed another worker on the surface, had yielded sixteen bodies tonight. Rescue workers planned to complete the somber task of removal before daybreak.

Eight bodies were brought to the surface this morning from the eighteenth east entry, the farthest reach of the slope mine on the state penitentiary farm a short distance northwest of the city. Nine more were removed this afternoon from the seventeenth east entry and the workers passed on to other levels where mine records indicated the other hapless workmen were on duty when the blast came.

Funerals Are Held.

Funerals were held today for several of the victims, and it was planned to bury others tomorrow. Families of the unfortunates were spared the expense of interment, the Red Cross providing a maximum of $80 for each funeral.

Condition of bodies recovered indicated almost instantaneous death. Seared by the blast and mutilated by falling débris the bodies were virtually unrecognizable, and identification in most cases was by numbered metal discs worn for that purpose.

Before the last of the victims had been removed Red Cross headquarters in St. Louis issued a call to Oklahoma chapters for $25,000 for relief of the miners' families.

The cause of the explosion still was unknown tonight, although veteran miners expressed belief sparks from electric machines used for undercutting the coal veins may have ignited gas which, they said, could have been caused by atmospheric conditions resulting from the change in the season.

BLAME $40,000 HOLDUP ON BIG GEM THEFT RING

Police here expressed the opinion yesterday that Max Plan, a jeweler at 29 East Madison street, who was robbed of $40,000 in uninsured diamonds on Tuesday near Kenosha, Wis., was the victim of members of a nation-wide ring of jewel robbers. They operated with the precision of professionals and it was no accident, the police believe, that they let Plan cross into Wisconsin before robbing him.

Plan yesterday viewed pictures at the rogues' gallery, but was unable to identify any of the robbers. This led to the belief that under-cover men without previous police records were picked for the job.

The robbers drove their car directly in front of Plan's in Sheridan road three miles north of Winthrop Harbor, blocking him. As he stopped one of the robbers leaped out and pointed a gun at him, demanding the diamonds. When Plan protested he had none, the man reached in the jeweler's pocket and pulled out the wallet containing them. Although the police of all north shore towns have been given descriptions of the car, no trace of it has been found.

ADOLPH F. GARTZ DIES AT HOME IN CALIFORNIA

Adolph Frederick Gartz, retired official of the Crane company, died yesterday at his home in Altadena, Cal., after a heart attack. He was 68 years old and widely known in social, political and business circles in Chicago. His widow, Mrs. Kate Crane Gartz, is a daughter of the late Richard T. Crane. She is widely known for her philanthropies. Three children also survive: A. F. Gartz Jr., 4353 Drexel boulevard, vice president of the Crane company, who left for California yesterday; Richard Crane Gartz and Gloria Gartz of Altadena. Two other daughters lost their lives in the Iroquois theater fire. Private funeral services will be held at Altadena and the body will be taken to Lake Geneva, Wis., for burial.

Mr. Gartz was born in New York in 1862. He joined the Crane company at the age of 26 and later became treasurer. He was once a Chicago civil service commissioner. When his health failed a number of years ago he bought a home in California and he had lived there almost continuously since.

PILOTLESS PLANE SOARS ALOFT WITH 2 ABOARD

Thomasville, Ga., Oct. 29.—(AP)—Joe Nicholson, who had never touched the controls of an airplane, has made his first flight—and cracked up for good measure—but it wasn't according to his own planning.

He took his 5 year old son to an airport yesterday against the admonitions of his wife.

A plane was engaged and they took their seats as the pilot turned the propeller. But the motor was balky. Finally the pilot opened the throttle wide and give the propeller a mighty whirl.

With a roar the engine started and likewise the plane. The pilot was knocked down and the ship sped over the field, bounced a time or two, and took to the air.

Everything went along all right until a gust of wind struck the pilotless craft and it crashed. Neither passenger was hurt.

COLORLESS as Water yet this Liquid···

Imparts Color to GRAY HAIR

WHAT is this peculiar discovery that has no color itself—yet imparts color to Gray Hair? It is called KOLOR-BAK—a clear liquid already used by hundreds of thousands of people who know that Gray Hair is a handicap in business and society. You simply comb Kolor-Bak into your hair and watch the gray disappear—gradually, surely. Even your close friends won't detect its use—until suddenly they notice that you look years younger. No matter what your age—no matter if your hair is snow white or merely streaked—this amazing discovery will impart color. No less astonishing than its sure, satisfactory, safe results, is the queer fact that the very same bottle of Kolor-Bak does for Blonde, Black, Brown or Auburn. Why be gray? Why be handicapped? Why be embarrassed any longer? If Kolor-Bak doesn't make you look 10 years younger, your money will be refunded any time you ask.

SYNOPSIS.

After the wedding they slip away to avoid the reception. Instead of going to Monterey, where their baggage had been shipped, they slip off to Lake Tahoe. King is strangely restless and irritable, and a phone call which Sheila overhears King make reveals to her the cause—he is a drug addict and because of their changed honeymoon plans is without a supply. Sheila determines to fight for King's regeneration and consults a federal narcotic agent, who suggests a program, which if rigidly adhered to would effect a cure.

King had entered his favorite horse, Wind, in the Tia Juana races and intends to ride him himself, so they go to San Diego. The day before the race Sheila overhears her husband and his trainer planning to dope Wind to insure his winning. The day of the race King asks Sheila to place his bets for him on Wind. Instead she places them on his opponent, who wins. After the race Sheila tells King what she had done and why.

King had promised Sheila to go with her to Alaska, after the races. Jim Molloy is in Nome and he meets them there, at Sheila's request. He helps her to carry out her plan to take King to a remote spot, there to help him fight off his baneful habit."

INSTALLMENT X.

SECRET PLANS.

"The government agent said I should be prepared for three or four days of acute physical pain following the first of abstinence; he said the suffering is of a degree which the human frame refuses to endure!" Sheila explained.

"You don't know what you are undertaking! It's a man's job. Let me take your place."

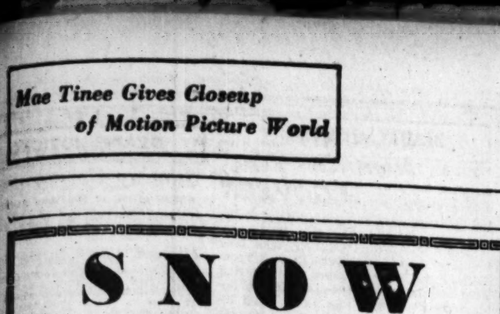
There were many reasons why he wasn't the person to be alone with King, but none of them could she share with Jim. Tell him that King disliked him? Or that the government agent had stressed the necessity of congenial companionship during the long, weary months of rehabilitation? "Let's get on with that list."



"Lanterns! But we can have candles—for—show, major?"

"Next, food. Or suppose we get through the luxuries first? You have games here; chess, checkers, playing cards, chips and a cribbage board, mah jongg—but what do you mean by 'silly games,' Sheila? Tiddledy-winks? I see. Of that order. And then books——"

"I've already ordered those. Magazines, too. We can stock up with periodicals in Nome, I suppose? Next, smokes. And chewing gum, tons of that, too, and candy——"

"Do you smoke, Sheila?"

The way he said Sheila sounded like darling.

"I'm going to stop. I incurred the habit—well, since you went away, Jim. I began in order to stop. So I'll know what breaking a habit means."

"Sheila!"

"Steady, Jim. Did I mention tobacco for King's pipes? Now, we are ready to attack the food list. Where did you put it?"

"I've added a few items. But you've ordered far too much milk, condensed and evaporated. Why, you could take weekly baths in it, like, like who was it, Pompeia?"

"I should have said Anna Held—Jim, before we pass on to anything else: can we get in Nome the concentrated stuff with which one makes eggnogs, lawful and pure?"

"O, that's the reason for all that milk? Yes, you can. I happened to hear some one speak of it lately."

She had steered him safely away from dangerous ground. He would be unmanageable if he knew. . . .

"Next." Her tone was brisk and businesslike. "What I call the trimmings; everything we can get, in tins, to keep the meals from being tiresome—like olives, anchovies, shelled nuts, fancy pickles, dates, as well as the soupe and vegetables. Can you think of anything else, major?"

He reminded her that she would be in Nome for several weeks. "You'll have plenty of time to make your own selections. We have excellent shops in Nome."

"I'd rather not run the risk of being seen doing that kind of shopping. Not a soul but you must guess we're not on that ship. I've already paid for our passage. We'll have to let our few friends think we went on board the night before sailing day. I'm beginning to see the advantage of cranes and lighters. Folks won't try to go aboard."

There was a light step in the hall, a key was inserted into the lock. The lists were jammed back in Jim's pocket. But it was only the maid bearing fresh towels.

"I want to speak about servants. I've not got wind yet of any Japs, but I've a better plan, if you'll agree. Ever heard of the Diomede islands, Sheila? I know an Eskimo couple of the Diomede tribe; they're not too old, yet not young; therefore not flighty; know only a few words of pidgin English, but are fairly quick at signs. For much less than you suggested paying they'd gladly 'dig in' for the winter. I've, well, I've already sounded them out. A shelter they'd consider comfortable can be knocked together. Eskimos stand cold better than Japs do. They're reliable. I happen to know these people."

"They're his servants. I'm taking them from him," she mourned. But she did not share her discovery with Jim; he would not want her to know. . . . He was speaking. "What was that you said?"

"The cabin I've found is in a box cañon on Hobson creek. Near an abandoned mine, the Sliscovich; a gold mine; gold and antimony. About twenty-five miles from Nome——"

"O, but we should be farther away than that!" protested Sheila. "King could find his way back from there."

Molloy shook his head. "Not in winter. And remember you'll be going then, as the field ice gathers—the last boat waits for that, you know. He can be made to think himself a hundred miles inland. He's to wake up there—that's your plan, isn't it? Before he is fit to explore the winter will have caught you, and I'll be well out of sight. I'll coach the Eskimos; they won't enlighten him."

"It sounds—bully." Her own tone sounded weak. "And how do we get there?"

"We've a unique institution here, called a dogmobile. I'll wager you never heard of it. The government took over the tracks of an abandoned railroad. In summer these are now used by all who have a flat car and a dog team, or who can borrow them. I've acquired the second and can borrow the first; they will take us within a mile of the Sliscovich shack, and from that point on I'll arrange it somehow. No use bothering you now with the details. The getting out of Nome is the big trick, and that's where the dogmobil'll serve us fine. We'll go while it's dark. The days will be getting short, then."

"I'd advise having a fireplace built; that's for show. There's the usual airtight stove in the middle of the room for the real heating. But the other's more homelike—one has to acquire the taste for sitting in front of a stove. About the fuel, now——"

"And the lighting."

"You'll want coal as well as wood. Getting wood for the Sliscovich cabin's no trick. There are quantities of old railroad ties lying 'longside the track. We can get those for the hauling. I've just thought of something! I know where we can get the lumber for the Eskimos cabin, and for the shelves and fittings you'll need. I just recalled an old dredge that's stranded on a pup of the Hobson——"

"Help! S. O. S.! Translate!" she cried, bewildered.

"A pup is a tributary of a creek. I told you the cabin is near Hobson creek. I'll have to think up some fairy tale to feed the carpenter with; to lull him to sleep. We don't want him to start talking about reopening the mine. 'Twould bring people nosing about. I'll get some one who'll keep his face shut. I can manage that."

"You won't do it yourself, Jim? I wouldn't let you."

"You asked me about the lights. You'll use gasoline lanterns. They give a bright light——"

"Lanterns! But we can have candles—for—for show, major?"

"Sure. But you can't read or work by them. There was something else I wanted to refer to—where are those notes. O, yes, snowshoes. You didn't want them where—he could find them! The Eskimo'll have said you didn't want them where—he could find them! The Eskimo'll have to have them. Suppose one of you were ill, or there were an accident; you'd have to send out for help. Unless your husband knows how to manage snowshoes—and I'll wager he doesn't—they'd be no use to him. Even were he expert, not knowing the country, and with the river to cross twice, he'd lose himself, to say nothing of exhausting himself. Chechakos can wear themselves out covering a mile."

"A chechako—that's what you call a tenderfoot, isn't it? What a chechacko, a greeny I am. You're making me realize how carefully I've got to prepare for that last day. It's a tough job I've cut out for you, Jim. I could never do it without you. It's going to be hard, even with your help."

Good Morning!

What a long, long trail that WAS, a-winding to the land of the pioneers' dreams! And how admirably Raoul Walsh, in "The Big Trail," has caught the spirit that inspired the treks of our ancestors and impelled their covered wagons over the peril and hardship infested prairies and mountains of early days! Here is a picture to reckon with! A picture to thrill the soul, delight the eye, and give a fillip to the patriotism of the most cavilling observer!

Against a background of grand and impressive scenery a caravan wends its way from Missouri toward the setting sun. It is composed of thousands of humans, herds of cattle, horses, mules, dogs, and the huge, lumbering canvas covered wagons, which are all the homes the adventurers will know for months and months. The train is in charge of "Red Flack," an able wagon master, but a villain at heart. Its chief scout is the quiet young fellow you will know as Breck Coleman, and who has reason to believe that the rascally Flack—who looks like the picture of Jack's giant in your old fairy tale book—and two ill-favored cohorts have killed a friend of his not long before. One reason Breck has taken the scouting job is that he may get the goods on these yahoos and avenge his pal's murder. The other reason is Miss Ruth Cameron, a sweet southern maid who is traveling west with her little sister and kid brother.

Breck has been more or less raised with Indians. He knows their ways and how to palaver with them. He does a lot to promote safety for the pilgrims, but even he can't prevent bad Injuns from turning treacherous. There is an attack on the train, successfully repelled by the wagoners, who drive the reds away, but lose many of their members in the encounter. Scenes following the attempted massacre you won't forget in a hurry!

There are a lot of things about "The Big Trail" that you'll remember a long time! The storm, the fording of racing rivers, the descent down a sheer mountain side—during which ordeals man and beast valiantly undergo the most terrific hardships—will remind you of some of the episodes in "Grass." You'll laugh at the predicaments of El Brendel and his sitting mule. You'll wish the worst to the villains, impersonated by Tyrone Power, Charles Stevens, and Ian Keith; long to hug Tully Marshall, who plays a grand old scout; enjoy Marguerite Churchill and her film family, and, I'm sure, thoroughly approve of young John Wayne, who makes his screen debut as Breck Coleman. He's so much like Gary Cooper that sometimes you almost think he IS Gary Cooper.

In making this picture the director never once descended to heroics. He has screened Hal Evarts' story with the simplicity that is power. Men, animals, wagons [which last do not, as was the case in "The Covered Wagon," retain snowy canvas tops from trail's beginning to trail's end] are REAL to you. The sweep of landscapes, filmed in the Teton mountains, Idaho; Yellowstone Park, Klamath Falls, Ore.; Sequoia National Park in the Sierra Nevadas, Montana, and some of the photographic shots—the buffalo stampede, for example—make you catch your breath. The sound is splendid. There's no more dialogue than is necessary, and what's there counts. The golden thread of romance gleams continuously and charmingly against the sterner stuff of the drama. Never do suspense or interest lag.

Will "westerns" ever become unpopular?

Not as long as there are men like Mr. Walsh to make "westerns" like "The Big Trail."

'QUEEN,' LIFE DEVOTED TO CHARITY, HONORED AT HER FUNERAL

Wooster, O., Oct. 29.—(AP)—"Queen," whose life was devoted to charity and entertainment of thousands, was honored today as hundreds of residents of Dalton, near here, filed past her coffin.

"Queen," a Great Dane, owned by Dr. L. L. De Arment, died Sunday of injuries suffered when, as a pup, she ran under the wheels of an automobile. Dr. De Arment had the dog embalmed and brought back home to lie in state.

When "Queen" was injured, her master promised that her life would be devoted to charity if she recovered. During the recuperation "Queen" learned tricks with remarkable rapidity. She performed for approximately a hundred large audiences, the proceeds going for charity.

Nation-wide attention was attracted to it. Albert Payson Terhune praised "Queen." Newspaper and magazine articles were written. "Queen" was made an honorary member of several societies.

"Queen" never fully recovered and became ill about two weeks ago. She will be buried in a Dalton playground.

Harold Lloyd, movie actor, stepped off the Santa Fé Chief and right on the Twentieth Century yesterday. He was in a hurry to get to New York to see himself as others see him in the opening of his new picture, "Feet First," in which, he assured reporters, he climbed over the side of a skyscraper. The comedian said he thought that a picture that makes the people laugh in these depressed times is a real service. "I'm giving them a picture that will make 'em forget everything but the comedy stuff they're seeing," Harold said.

Public Health Officials' 1931 Meeting at Montreal

Fort Worth, Tex., Oct. 29.—(AP)—The American Public Health association will meet next year in Montreal, the executive board and governing council announced today as the annual convention drew to a close.

Dr. William C. Hassler of San Francisco, Cal., was chosen president for 1931-'32. Dr. Hugh S. Cumming of Washington, D. C., surgeon general of the United States, elected president for the coming year at the 1929 convention, will be installed at a banquet tomorrow night.

Washington's Farewell to Army Didn't Get Play on Front Page

Wellsboro, Pa., Oct. 29.—(AP)—Street Commissioner J. R. Crosetto of this place today found a copy of the Nov. 7, 1783, issue of the New York Morning Post. The paper was in a drawer of an old desk.

The newspaper contained four pages, each about half the size of those of the present day newspapers. The principal news item featured was George Washington's farewell address to his army, but that article was relegated to the inside pages.

The front page was filled with small advertisements and with the official orders of the adjutant general of the British army. All subordinate officers of the British army were given explicit instructions to see all their creditors were satisfied before the regiments sailed for England.

Most of the advertisements told the public when passage could be obtained for Europe.

Dead U. of C. Chiefs' Ashes to Rest in the New Chapel

Trustees of the University of Chicago yesterday approved a proposal to have the ashes of departed presidents of the university rest in niches to be cut in the north wall of the new university chapel.

The action complied with the wishes expressed in a long hidden letter left by William Rainey Harper, the first president. Two other presidents, Harry Pratt Judson and Ernest De Witt Burton, since have died. All three were cremated.

The trustees also made provision for the placing of the ashes of wives or widows of presidents in the chapel provided they have not remarried.

Finds Michigan Had Whales 30,000 Years Ago

Ann Arbor, Mich., Oct. 29.—(AP)—Prof. Russell C. Hussey, University of Michigan geologist, announced today that the skeletons of two whales have been found in Michigan.

One is in a swamp ten miles south of Ann Arbor and the other in the northern part of the state, near Alpena. Dr. Hussey estimated the age of the specimens at 20,000 to 30,000 years.

He believes that the whales reached this region through the valley of the St. Lawrence or the Hudson river at a time when a sea covered the region of the present great lakes.

New Medical Center Started on West Side

Four Buildings Dedicated Another Ready Soon.

Gov. Louis L. Emmerson and President Harry Woodburn Chase of the University of Illinois yesterday headed a group of public officials at the dedication of a group of four Chicago buildings. The structures were erected by the state department of public welfare.

The officials also took part in the laying of the corner stone for a fifth building, one belonging to the state university.

All the buildings are part of the state group occupying the old Cubs' baseball park, south of the Cook county hospital. The new units were built at a cost of $1,046,000. The new medical classroom and laboratories building will cost, when completed, $1,500,000. The buildings dedicated yesterday are the State Orthopedic institute, the Institute for Juvenile Research, the Nurses' home, and the Research and Educational Hospital Service building.

The group of buildings is the new medical center and represents a cooperative project of the state department of public welfare and the University of Illinois.

Among the officials taking part in the ceremonies were A. L. Bowen, state superintendent of charities; Rodney H. Brandon, director of the department of public welfare, and George A. Barr, president of the board of trustees of the university.

Gov. Emmerson quoted figures compiled by the welfare department showing the increase in the number of incarcerations for feeblemindedness, insanity, and violations of the criminal law and pointed to the necessity for curative and preventive measures.

"It would be foolish," he said, "for any one to argue seriously that the increase of percentage of incarcerations in any way indicates that the average intelligence of the state of Illinois is on a decline. On the other hand it is very clear to me that these figures are the result of increased determination to separate the socially unfit from contact with the general public.

"If the figures do not disclose anything else, however, they make it perfectly clear that the time has come when much more money must be spent in studying methods of cure and prevention than has ever been spent in the past."

THE STAGE

WHEN Frank Morgan of "Topaze" steps into the cast of "The Firebrand" as the Duke of Florence at the Goodman theater tomorrow afternoon he will be paying tribute to the rôle that put him on the road to stardom. Six years ago he originated this character in the successful New York staging of the play as an average rank and file actor.

His brother, Ralph Morgan—one of the several interpreters of "dear old Charlie" in "Strange Interlude" who were seen here last season—had the reputation of the family; Frank himself was merely a player sent for now and then when a manager wanted a "type." But after the season's run of "The Firebrand" Frank Morgan was in demand, and it cost the managers $300 a week more to get him.

So this is a sentimental occasion. Mr. Morgan volunteered his services for any Friday afternoon, the staff of the Goodman gave several cheers, and the management of the Dramatic League, plus Lee Shubert, its chief strategist, added its blessing to the plan. This was a handsome gesture on the part of the league, for it counts the Goodman as a direct competitor in the subscription drama business. Nearly every other actor in town will attend the performance.

Mr. Morgan will play in "The Firebrand" in the afternoon and in "Topaze," as usual, that night. Incidentally, he will be audible from the talking screen in "Laughter," current at the Chicago theater. This constitutes some kind of a histrionic record.

The League of New York Theaters, which is striving to abate the ticket speculators of Broadway, has broken off relations with the sixteen brokers who formed its accredited list, under certain rules and regulations. In order to give the play going public branch ticket office service it has entered into a contract with the Postal Telegraph company, which will handle orders for theater tickets at its 162 stations in New York City. This unique experiment in the merchandising of theater seats will go into effect Nov. 10.

Walker Whiteside will end his engagement in "The Chinese Bungalow" at the Studebaker Nov. 8. The theater has no new play to announce. . . . Mae West will close her run in "Sex" at the Garrick on the same night, to be followed by William Hodge in "The Old Rascal."

A mixed bill of entertainment, recruited from the shows about town, will be given in the Erlanger theater next Sunday afternoon as a benefit for the American Theatrical hospital. This is the eighteenth annual performance in this cause. Bobby Clark, star of "Strike Up the Band," will be master of ceremonies. C. C.

1,000,000 Lutherans Form Federation for Greater Efficiency

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 29.—(AP)—The American Lutheran conference, a federation of seven church bodies embracing congregations in every state and in each Canadian province, was organized here late today with adoption of a constitution by unanimous vote of their representatives.

The conference is intended to bring into closer working relationship the mission and educational facilities of the churches with a membership of 1,377,000, 3,848 pastors and 6,886 congregations. The constituent groups will retain their identity.

Officers of the federation, which will be one of three large central Lutheran groups in this country, will be chosen Friday. Dr. C. C. Hein, Columbus, O., president of the Joint Ohio Synod, was chosen as chairman of the organization meeting, and some likelihood exists that he will be chosen as the first president.

The Joint Ohio Synod together with the Buffalo and Iowa Synods, all with members largely of German extraction, have perfected the merger of the American Lutheran church effective next Jan. 1, of which Dr. Hein will be president.

Dr. Hein, in his address today urged a continuation of activity in the direction of further amalgamation of Lutheran groups.

Baumes Law Gives Prison Dramatic Coach for Life

New York, Oct. 29.—(AP)—Sing Sing prison is to have its own theatrical impresario for some time to come. Frederick Mark, who on two previous stays within the walls established quite a reputation as a dramatist, actor, and producer of prison entertainment, is going back, this time for life. He was sentenced to life imprisonment as a fourth offender on a charge of robbery.

Architects Fit Buildings to Economic Era

Three Chicagoans Tell How That Is Done.

Three noted Chicago architects whose works have been instrumental in bringing this city into the limelight of modern architecture, yesterday discussed the new trends before members of the League of Women Voters. The meeting was held in the Bal Tabarin of the Hotel Sherman.

The architect-lecturers agreed that the world has now entered upon a new era in architecture and that here in Chicago the protagonists of the new art are having boundless fun in working out the problems of its development.

Those who spoke were John W. Root of Holabird & Root, Ernest L. Grunsfeld, designer of the Adler planetarium, and Thomas Tallmadge, author of "The Story of Architecture in America." Thomas Wilfred, creator of the color organ, explained the new uses of light as a decorative medium.

"The modern architecture will last because it is the clothing of a new cultural epoch," Mr. Tallmadge said. "It came with the skyscrapers, where it was first used, as a secession from the 500 years of Renaissance in architecture which began in 1420 and ended with the world war.

"It was a rebellion from what had become the old historical form. With the new materials and methods and with the consciousness of the new spirit of the people and times, it represents truthfulness in construction wherein engineering and utility are most important.

"The first example of this new thought was expressed in The Tribune Tower, the design of which won the competitive contest in 1922."

Mr. Grunsfeld expressed the opinion that the new architecture "will some day become as vital and clear as Gothic architecture."

Mr. Root in his remarks argued that the modern movement has permitted the architect to work more closely and in harmony with the economic life of the community, to express it more honestly and to guide it more intelligently.

"There is no longer any excuse for standing aloof in a detached or critical attitude," he said. "Those of us who did not have the genius or far sightedness of a Louis Sullivan to break away until the movement began to gain headway, but were tied to historical examples and documents, now are working freely.

"We now can give the real estate man his maximum renting area and still make it look well. We can help the engineer symbolize the strength and clear thinking of his power house and not disguise it. We can accept the university classroom building as such and not clothe it in a Sir Christopher Wren manor house garb.

"We can call the sparing use of ornament or its elimination 'simplicity' and not 'bareness' and save money doing it. We no longer have to button on or sell to the owner so many yards of imported architecture as we used to do, too frequently, only to satisfy ourselves. We don't have to squeeze the problem into a classic mold.

"We are no longer held down by the traditions of the past which still can be just as useful as ever in training our minds and our tastes."

City's Own Halloween Parties Tomorrow; Provide for Candies

The series of Halloween parties being arranged by the public schools on 64 playgrounds and by three park systems will take place tomorrow night instead of tonight, as announced yesterday. It is estimated that more than 70,000 children will be in the city-wide series of supervised celebration.

Neighborhood merchants are purchasing candy and costumes and members of civic organizations have volunteered to assist in supervising the games, bonfires and programs. Prizes will be awarded for stunts. Alfred A. Knop, director of recreation in the north side small parks, announced yesterday that 50 boxes of apples and a half ton of jelly beans are to be given away.

Cooler Weather Calls for Furs with Costumes

These days, when the wind has a wintry whip to it, fashionable women are wearing fur and fur trimmed street costumes.

Mrs. W. Paul McBride, the former Claire Childs Laflin, was seen yesterday morning coming down Belevue place from her apartment, wearing one of the smart new coats with an extra jacket of black caracul. The jacket is short and curved a little around the bottom to give a bolero effect, and has a high standing collar. With it Mrs. McBride wears a small black felt hat with a perky bow at one side, black reptile oxfords, beige hosiery and gloves, and carries a patent leather purse.

Seen at luncheon at the Arts club yesterday were Mrs. Townsend McKeever who wore an unsual short cape of black seal and a round black velvet turban, Miss Agnes Foreman in a becoming black crêpe frock with a vestee and under sleeves of plush pink crêpe, mixed with the same material, and a black velvet hat, and Miss Harriet Stuart, but recently returned from traveling, in gray from head to foot, wearing a suit banded in gray broadtail and a ribbon hat, slightly pointed at the side.

Attending a debutante luncheon were Miss Hortense Henry in a two-piece dress, the skirt of black crêpe and the blouse of white chamois, and a small hat with an upturned turtle edge brim trimmed with a stiff white bow; Miss Josephine Dennehy in a black ensemble with a coat generously trimmed with Persian lamb and a hat of black felt and the same fur, and Miss Geraldine Swift in a tunic frock with a cowl neck of mustard-colored crêpe.

Grownups Often Underestimate Childhood Fears

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

A layette list will be sent by Mrs. Bevans on receipt of a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

We underestimate many things about them.

Because children reveal so little of their thoughts and feelings many grownups sincerely believe that these thoughts and feelings do not exist in childhood—only after they've grown up. Listen to the conversations of people sometimes and you'll realize how true this is.

"Children don't make so much of death—it's only a word to them," or "Why should children be afraid of the dark—it can't hurt them," or "Talk that they overhear doesn't make much impression on them—it goes in one ear and out the other," or "Children don't notice," are some of the conclusions they voice.

Then, in almost the same breath, you may hear these same people say: "Every night, when I was little, I dreaded going upstairs to bed," and "Some one read about a prophecy that the end of the world was coming and I lived under a cloud for months," and "Being buried alive was the horror of my bedtime off and on for years when I was a child."

There are many ways in which we underestimate children. But in one way especially we do so—and that is in regard to their courage. When a hard or painful thing is ahead of them and it is presented to them well, their courage rises to meet the occasion in a way that arouses our admiration and sometimes even thrills us.

So—think of how things affected you in your own childhood.

Listen to other people and see how they consciously or unconsciously carry over impressions and influences and feelings from their childhood.

U. of Missouri Alumni.

Tomorrow?

Here's a way to be rid of constipation and its ills—often overnight! A candy Cascaret at bedtime—tomorrow morning you're feeling fine. Breath is sweetened; tongue cleared; biliousness, headaches, dizziness, vanish. Repeat the treatment two or three nights to get every particle of the souring waste out of your system. See how appetite and energy return; how digestion improves. The action of Cascarets is sure, complete, helpful to everyone. They are made from cascara, which doctors agree actually strengthens bowel muscles. All drug stores have the handy boxes. Try Cascarets tonight.

Ruthless Woman Out to Get Man, Regardless of Wife

BY DORIS BLAKE.

One comfort women of previous generations had when they married was that they were pretty sure of holding on to the husbands they wanted to hold to. If another woman looked upon said mate as prey she met what used then to be called just punishment. She was ostracized by all decent women. And the man's peccadillos if he indulged in any, had to be conducted with discretion or he, too, suffered from the righteous wrath of his community.

But in our swift moving matrimonial generation a husband is often looked upon by an outside woman as legitimate prey. In some circles it is startling to see the manner in which legal ties are ignored and the way possession counts for nothing in the eyes of an avid outsider. In groups that foregather frequently it is not uncommon for dangerous flirtations to be conducted openly under the eyes of a helpless mate. It's all pretty much of a mess, the lightness with which legal ties are viewed by the unscrupulous.

Such a situation has grown out of a friendship deliberately promoted by a woman whose interest was not in the wife cultivated, but in her husband upon whose moneyed position the outsider cast eyes of envy. A cold blooded, deliberate attempt to wrest the husband away is under process, at the moment.

The situation does not contain any element of the grande passion that history and fiction have made famous. It is a clear case of a woman out for self, regardless of consequences to others. She is clever in her own way, a gambler for big stakes, perfectly ruthless and unscrupulous. She is a deadly rival for a wife, who is rather unsophisticated, sweet, a good mother and an essentially fine woman. Of course, the man is weak but the strength required to forego the wiles of one of those clever, unscrupulous, extra good looking women of the world obviously is not allotted to all men.

The sheer helplessness of the wife, if she is an unworldly sort of woman, is what makes such cases pitiable. If she tries to change her character, as women so threatened sometimes do, she makes herself ridiculous. Her best bet is to remain herself. If that rôle is not successful, it is doubtful if any other will help.

DORIS BLAKE ANSWERS

Beset with Doubts.

"Dear Miss Blake: I love a certain girl. Recently I met another one who held much interest for me. Should I go with each girl to find out which one I should prefer? THUNDERBOLT."

That is advisable. It gives you an opportunity to enjoy the friendship of both girls and compare them.

Antoinette Sees Men Patronizing the Beauty Parlor

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Is it true that men are headed for the beauty parlors as rumored? Real, regular men, I mean.

There are some perfectly good reasons why the early future might see men crowding the appointment desk at establishments guaranteeing younger outgoing patrons than incoming. And the best reason is Mr. Business Man's wife.

Apropos of this, a story was told me of a man in his late forties on a shopping tour with his wife, only four years his junior. The clerk, a man, too, and supposed to be a discerning person, suggested to the wife that she ask her father's judgment—father being the legally wedded mate referred to. A face lifting operation was behind that faux pas, but that is another story.

As matters stand now a man patron of a beauty parlor or a man who takes his looks too seriously has public opinion against him. Still, the modern barber shop, and its male victim are not so awfully far behind the haunts where women seek solace in a massage, a manicure or a hot oil treatment.

One distinguished gentleman and noted scientist predicts that men and their own beauty parlors are not far off. And he says that men cannot look at women today without realizing what cosmetics and beauty treatments have done for thousands of drab, formerly uninteresting souls.

Of course, you can argue that men wouldn't take to ruffles and long skirts and high belted waist lines just because their nearest and dearest of female kin have gone that way. But you can also remember that man's interest [active] in reducing didn't begin in real earnest until woman pointed the way to slimmer lines with reduced fares and gymnastic stunts.

BEAUTY ANSWERS

F. T.: APPLES ARE RECOMMENDED for the teeth, as they not only neutralize mouth acids but clean the teeth as well.

V. M.: THE WATER USED FOR washing the hands should never be cold. It should be warm or at least tepid. Hands should never be exposed to extremes of heat and cold. After washing, rub a suitable cream into them.

St. Elizabeth Hospital Will Be Dedicated at Sunday Ceremonies

The dedication of the new $1,500,000 St. Elizabeth hospital, 1436 North Claremont avenue, will be held on Sunday afternoon, Nov. 2. Bishop Bernard J. Shiel and other church dignitaries will officiate. After the dedication rites the hospital, erected by the Sisters of the Poor Handmaidens, will be open for public inspection. A banquet will follow in the assembly hall of the new building.

The new building, twelve stories in height, has a capacity of 250 beds. St. Elizabeth's has a radio in every room. The new hospital will be a part of the old St. Elizabeth hospital built in 1887. A wing was built on this building in 1892 and with the addition of the new building the hospital has a total capacity of 450 beds.

The dedicatory ceremony will start at 10 a. m. with solemn high mass in the chapel. At 2 p. m. Bishop Shiel will officiate at the dedication with Msgr. Peter Bierman, pastor of St. Nicholas church, Evanston, and the Rev. P. J. Mahan, dean of Loyola university, assisting.

BY THALIA

Today's program of social events is quite lively. There is to be a lecture at the Womans' Athletic club at 11 o'clock, the fall luncheon of the American Opera society at the Congress hotel, and the Art Institute's annual reception from 3 to 5 o'clock this afternoon.

Members of the American Opera society who are sure to be present at the luncheon are Mrs. Archibald Freer, founder of the group; Mrs. Rockefeller McCormick, honorary president; Mrs. A. F. Callahan, Mrs. William Dennison Morris, Miss Cornelia Lunt, and Miss Emily Larned, its president.

Two of the composers of American operas who have been awarded the David Bispham memorial medal are Kari Schmidt, composer of "Lady of the Lake," and Charles S. Skilton, who composed a work named "Kalopin." Selections from the opera "Paoletta," by Pietro Floridia, another recipient of the medal, are to be played, and there will be several solos as well.

Mondays and Wednesdays apparently are the most popular days for lunching at the Arts club this year, while Tuesday was the favorite last season. Yesterday there were two large parties and numerous small luncheon groups.

Mrs. Harry Spencer Browne had 24 guests at a long table, bedecked with chrysanthemums, on the balcony between the gallery and the dining room, and Mrs. Clyde M. Carr gave a debutante luncheon for her niece, Miss Fayette Smith, afterwards taking her guests to a matinée.

Mrs. Waller Borden gave a tea yesterday afternoon at her residence at 1620 Lake Shore drive for Mrs. Mary T. Breckinridge of Kentucky, who has been here for several days to help with the Chicago organization of the work for the Frontier Nursing service, of which Mrs. John C. Gardner is executive secretary.

Countess Carlo Filiponi is to arrive in Chicago on Monday for a visit of several weeks with her daughters, Mrs. Harold C. Strotz and Mrs. Paul Butler. She is to be with the Strotzes at their residence at 1250 Astor street. They have issued invitations for a prepandial party for Countess Filiponi on Monday afternoon at 5 o'clock.

Mrs. Sidney Ball of Winnetka is to give a luncheon for the Chicago and Evanston Wells College clubs at her residence next Wednesday.

Ceremony Is Private

Mr. and Mrs. William Mason Reay of Highland Park announce the marriage of their daughter, Jean, to William Silverthorne Faurot, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Faurot of Riverside.

The wedding took place quietly last night at the Reay residence, unheralded beforehand by the usual engagement announcement. The ceremony was attended by a small group of relatives and friends. Mr. and Mrs. Faurot are to sail on Saturday for a wedding trip in Europe. They probably will reside in Riverside, where the various branches of the large Faurot, Silverthorne, and Faithorn families have lived for many years. The former Miss Reay attended the University of Illinois, and Mr. Faurot is a Yale graduate of the 1921 class.

Miss Reay's sisters, the former Dorothy Reay, now Mrs. James Youngclove, and Mrs. Henry Cuscaden [Irwin Reay], have both been brides of this year, their weddings having taken place in January and June, respectively.

American Paintings, Sculpture Exhibition Will Be Open Today

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

The forty-third annual exhibition of American paintings and sculpture opens this afternoon in the east wing galleries of the Art institute. The reception, to which most of the women's clubs of the city are hostesses, will fill the galleries, so if you wish to see what is hanging and where, you had better make an early start.

The exhibition has been extremely well hung. The sculpture has been distributed to marvelous advantage. The life size figure of a woman, "The Water Carrier," by Heinz Warneke, a peasant type, whose short, thick legs and ankles may be forgiven her for her smooth, round head so easily poised on the shoulders that blend into the polished curve of the torso, catches the eye at once in the first gallery.

There are a great number of nudes in the exhibition. Some are pleasant, some less so. There are a number of portraits and of figure studies. The landscapes and still lifes are in the minority. The balance has been rather evenly kept between modernism and the conservative school. There is a great deal of brisk and delightful color. This runs even into the sculpture, for one of the most charming features of the exhibit is the group of painted porcelain from New Mexico.

Abram Poole is represented by a delightful nude girl, slim and graceful, holding aloft a globe of the world. Grant Wood has an amusing antithesis in his "American Gothic," two extremely prim and proper, thoroughly righteous persons, man and wife, solidly grounded on Puritan principles. Olga Chassaing shows a spirited and vivid Negro dancer, a woman in sculpture. Paul Trebilcock offers a charming interior in which are portrayed two women, one of whom may be recognized as the wife of Roy Collins, the painter. The portrait of Julius Rosenwald, by John C. Johansen, is excellent. "Portrait of a Young Girl," by Nicolai Fechin, is one of the most charming paintings in the show.

The prize awards are to be announced this afternon during the reception. The exhibition will continue to Dec. 14. "The Fossil Hunters," by Edwin W. Dickinson, which, upside down, won the second Altman prize in New York last winter, is shown here, right side up. It is amusing to see such stunts in the flesh.

BY EDWARD MOORE.

There were four good reasons for reviving this operatic museum specimen last night. In the order of vocal range the reasons were Miss Muzio, Mr. Marshall, Mr. Formichi, and Mr. Baromeo.

With the exception of Mr. Baromeo, whose assignments have made him important and effective in all the performances so far, these were first appearances of the season. They were welcomed with great enthusiasm.

Miss Muzio is a brilliant artist who transfigures all her rôles. Mr. Marshall was in the best voice he has enjoyed for several seasons. Mr. Formichi's resonant singing is an unfailing pleasure to the ear.

All of them, including Mr. Baromeo, had sustained and effective rôles to sing, and they accomplished notable results with them. Miss Muzio and Mr. Baromeo in the scene before the monastery, Mr. Marshall and Mr. Formichi in the following scene of the military camp, gave new meanings to vocal art in opera.

It is quite possible, however, to think of the work with restrained rapture. The story is just an operatic story. The music has its occasional melodic flashes, but it is full of the material that Arthur Sullivan used to burlesque so unmercifully in his operettas.

One wonders whether the work could not be bettered by modernizing. The Rataplan song that Miss Faggi performed with much sprightly manner is an example. Instead of Miss Faggi doing a drum solo, it might be a good plan if she led a squad of six other good looking girls, all with drums, the ballet to continue its evolutions, and some one else engaged to write a different tune. Anyway, Victor Herbert did better for Fritzi Scheff in "Mlle. Modiste."

The performance under Mr. Cooper's baton moved with admirable discretion and taste. The staging and lighting were of the best.

The Catholic Casino Male chorus, a well trained and popular organization, gave a concert at Kimball hall last night. The program was mostly of part songs and folk songs and was lavishly applauded by a large audience.

The Skalski orchestra, directed by Andre Skalski, will begin a series of concerts at Kimball hall tonight. Three programs, described as popular, semi-popular, and classic, are to be given nightly, the programs to be changed after a week's performance. The soloists will be Esther Cadkin and Mildred Orne, sopranos; George Grammer-Smith, baritone; Ralph Dobbs, pianist, and Janiva Kurl, dancer.

PARIS WIDOW WOULD ENJOIN BUILDING FOR WAR BLINDED

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Oct. 29. — Complexities of French housing laws was illustrated here today. The Phare de France—an American financed home for blind war veterans—was named the defendant in an injunction suit.

The suit seeks to prevent the completion of a gymnasium in the grounds of the institution where the blind soldiers will be taught to be professional masseurs. An elderly widow owning an apartment house flanking the site of the Phare de France filed suit on the grounds that the new gymnasium is unsightly, thus depreciating the value of her property and violating one of the city's zoning regulations.

According to Mrs. Berry Wall, wife of a New York and Paris social personage, who donated the money for the gymnasium, pointed out to the neighbor that the building was for the benefit of French war veterans blinded during the war.

"That is a matter of sentiment. I intend to stand on my rights," the widow replied.

Paris Sunbursts Light the Evening Fashions

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special Correspondence.]—The sunburst motif is bursting all over the Paris mode with chic results upon everything it touches. Chanel makes some of her most sensational evening frocks cut in about a hundred sunburst gores. These are centered at the waistline in front, then widen into patterns, incomprehensibly smart, in the back. Plaited sunburst panels, set in at sides or back of his evening frocks, are used with a striking effect by Lucien Lelong. He even uses sunburst stitchings on the back of the hand to fit his new, miraculously side seamless gloves.

Sunbursts of fine tucks are the outstanding feature of this unusual evening ensemble from Germaine Lecomte. She uses them to fit, as well as to decorate, the dull satin frock of off-black purple, which is one of the most marvelous colors that has ever been invented to set off black or pure white hair. One sun spreads from the point of the decolette in front, where it is finished with a diamond clip; another fits the frock on the left hip and another lends gentle fullness to the lower skirt on the right side. The spiral composition of this frock makes it supremely graceful and it will prove becoming to both the full and the slender figure.

first aid for fatigue is food with Sugar in it

Mid-afternoon fatigue can be overcome by eating a piece of candy, a cake or a sweetened drink. A glass of water sweetened with refined sugar is invigorating.

RECENT experiments among business men and women have proved that a sweet of some sort eaten in the afternoon will renew vigor in a most speedy and satisfactory way.

The reason for this is that the sugar in the food or drink supplies the system with quick nourishment. The value of refined sugar as presented in candy, sweetened beverages, and small cakes — all readily accessible — is therefore worth remembering.

Prove for yourself the value of refined sugar as "first aid" for fatigue. Take time out for a sweet food or drink. The Sugar Institute.

ARE you prepared to render first aid and quick comfort the moment your youngster has an upset of any sort? Could you do the right thing—immediately—though the emergency came without warning—perhaps tonight? Castoria is a mother's standby at such times. There is nothing like it in emergencies, and nothing better for everyday use. For a sudden attack of colic, or for the gentle relief of constipation; to allay a feverish spell, or to soothe a fretful baby that can't sleep. This pure vegetable preparation is always ready to ease an ailing youngster. It is just as harmless as the recipe on the wrapper reads. If you see Chas. H. Fletcher's signature, it is genuine Castoria. It is harmless to the smallest infant; doctors will tell you so.

You can tell from the formula on the wrapper how mild it is, and how good for little systems. But continue with Castoria until a child is grown.

Food Talk.

It would be interesting to know who discovered the advantage of changing the rôle of celery with that of the fern. Historical records show that celery was once a green used for funeral decorations and ferns were used for food. Speaking for myself, I am glad the switch was made.

It is only within the last two decades that the common people have learned to eat and enjoy celery. Even epicures completely overlooked this valuable vegetable. Perhaps this was due to the fact that the first commercial celery was not well blanched and as a result was not so attractive in appearance, flavor and texture. But once blanching was perfected, the demand steadily grew. Now celery is one of our most important green vegetable crops and is available the year around.

Celery is one thing that all fat people can eat and eat and eat without any fear of gaining weight. Four whole stalks of celery are only one hundred calories, as much as one medium sized potato. It has lots of mineral inside its fibers and a fairly large amount of vitamin B. It furnishes a large percentage of roughage, an important item in our present day diet of refined foods.

Celery as it comes to the market is usually dressed, that is, washed and trimmed ready for use. It is not advisable to keep celery for any period of time. It is true that holding sweetens the heart, but at the expense of the rest of the plant. Keep the celery from the air by wrapping in parchment or waxed paper. Place in a cool place above freezing and use as soon as possible.

Sometimes we may get celery that is not washed and trimmed, but just as it is taken from the ground. This celery may be kept longer in a cool dry place.

Every part of the stalk may be used. Stalks and hearts are eaten raw, cooked or filled with interesting mixtures as a separate dish or in a salad. Trimmings, fresh or dried, can be used to flavor soups and the seeds are used for celery salt, pickles and seasoning.

Cooked celery is not popular with many people, but this is because it is rarely well cooked. One objectionable "boarding house" food is tasteless creamed celery. The vegetable is stewed until soft in a large amount of cooking water which is drained off. A bland white sauce is added to the tasteless vegetable and the result is an uninteresting food of no particular value. The flavor of celery is delicate and needs to be retained. It should be cooked in the least amount of water possible and only until tender unless one desires to make soup.

The Chinese know how to cook celery. They cut the stalks into 3 or 4 inch pieces and put them into hot fat. Only a few minutes of cooking is necessary. The result is a vegetable full of flavor, tender yet with enough character to offer some resistance to the teeth when it is chewed. One of our good eating places here in Chicago serves what is called braised celery which reminds me of the Chinese product. I have tried in my own kitchen to develop a recipe that would duplicate their product. Try it and see what you think.

BRAISED CELERY.

4 tablespoonfuls butter or ham fat.
1 bouillon cube.

Cut celery in pieces from 1 to 2 inches long. Melt butter or fat in sauce pan. Add celery and salt. Cover closely and cook over a low flame three or four minutes, stirring often. Add water and bouillon cube. Finish cooking with cover removed. Tender celery will require only 5 or 6 minutes of cooking. This is a good way to use outside stalks of celery and forms a delicious vegetable when carefully prepared.

Yield: 4 servings. One serving: Total, 128 calories; protein, 4 calories; fat, 110 calories; carbohydrates, 14 calories.

CHINESE DEMAND $100,000 TO SET AMERICAN FREE

Woman Is Released on Payment of $1,000.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, Oct. 29.—The Rev. Bert N. Nelson, American Lutheran missionary from Minneapolis, Minn., who was captured by communists on Oct. 5 at Kwangshan, Honan province, has been taken to the village of Chipiling, near Hwangan, in eastern Hupeh province.

A letter which the Rev. Mr. Nelson sent his sister, Mary Lee Nelson, who resides in Hankow, said he is being well treated, but is suffering from the arduous march over the mountains, which lasted several days. He said the entire district surrounding Hwangan is held by communists; that all the land has been seized and common bolshevik doctrines are prevalent.

Demand $100,000 Ransom.

"My captors are still insisting upon a ransom equivalent to $100,000 and any arrangements for my release must be made with the first Red army, with headquarters at Hwangan," the letter said.

According to a Hankow report, the Rev. Kristofer N. Tvedt, Norwegian missionary, who was carried away from Loshan with Miss Berglio T. Evenson of the Lutheran United Mission of Sinyangchow, is still held captive. The Reds demand $10,000 for his release. Miss Evenson, who was released, is recuperating in Sinyangchow. It is reported that friends obtained her release through the payment of $1,000.

Reds Take Two Towns.

A body of 4,000 bandits have captured the two towns of Nanhsien and Hwanjung, in northeastern Hunan, near the Hunan-Hupeh border, killing 100 Chinese, but it is believed the missionaries escaped.

Gen. Chiang Kai-shek's government troops have captured Sianfu, capital of Shensi province and headquarters of Feng Yu-hsiang. It is claimed that this liquidates the "Christian general" and the Kouminchun military organization.

New Trouble on Russian Border.

SHANGHAI, Oct. 29.—(AP)—The breakdown of negotiations at Moscow for settlement of the dispute over the Chinese Eastern railway has resulted in armed demonstrations by China and Russia along the Manchurian-Siberian border.

These were similar to demonstrations which caused fighting and invasion of Manchuria by Russian soldiers in November and December last year, Chinese press dispatches from Harbin said.

Two battalions of infantry and one of artillery were reported ordered by Manchuria to patrol the Siberian border near Manchuli, northwestern Manchuria. The movement was said to have been ordered because for several days soviet troops with bombing airplanes have been demonstrating and new barracks are being erected in border towns.

PRINCETON LEAVES TODAY FOR MAROON BATTLE

Pleads for Wolverine Charity Game.

Lansing, Mich., Oct. 29.—(AP)—Gov. Fred W. Green today issued a statement criticising the Western conference for its decision against moving the Notre Dame-Northwestern football game from Evanston to Soldiers' field, Chicago. He renewed his former request that a Michigan-University of Detroit post season game be played for the benefit of unemployed persons in Detroit.

The governor said that if rules were permitted to stand in the way of the proposed game, it will be unfortunate for the unemployed, the sport, and the two institutions.

With reference to the Notre Dame-Northwestern ruling Gov. Green elaborated on his formal statement to remark that he did not mean to imply that Michigan authorities had exerted pressure to bring about the ruling.

Says Michigan Will Suffer.

"But if this ruling is permitted to stand, Michigan as a member of the western conference will suffer," he said.

The governor's written statement follows:

"Early reports are not encouraging towards the consummation of a football game between the University of Michigan and the University of Detroit for the benefit of the unemployed.

"If rules that were not made in contemplation of present conditions are permitted to stand in the way of this game, it is most unfortunate for the unemployed, for the sport, and the two educational institutions.

"With a capacity of 80,000 people and a price of $5 per ticket, there would be an immense sum of money available for those in dire need. The game would enable a vast number of people to express their sympathy for those who have been caught in this unprecedented business depression.

Calls Refusal a Calamity.

"The memory of having taken part in this memorable contest will be one of the finest that every athlete and every person who has a part in it will cherish through life. To deny these young men this opportunity to do of such tremendous service in supplying this vast sum to the unfortunate would be a calamity.

"There is such an appalling need at this time that no rule which has merely for its object the controlling of a sport should be allowed to stand in the way for a moment. I cannot believe that those in authority in the conference will permit their views to become so narrow that they will center them merely on what they deem the orderly conduct of a great sport to the detriment of the people of Michigan. No amount of explaining will ever put the University of Michigan back to the high pedestal it now occupies if they fail at this hour.

"The conference body will in all probability be annoyed from year to year by applications of other institutions wishing to abrogate for one reason or another their very reasonable rule. No one can justify a refusal on those grounds."

PICK JURY FOR $405,000 LAWSUIT AGAINST TUNNEY

New York, Oct. 29.—[Special.]—Trial of the $405,000 suit brought against Gene Tunney, former heavyweight champion, by Tim Mara, New York promoter, opened today. The jury in the case was chosen shortly before noon, but the opening addresses were postponed until tomorrow.

Mara, president of the New York Giants professional football team, charges that Tunney and Billy Gibson, Tunney's former manager, owe him $405,000 under a contract negotiated in 1926. Mara declares that Gibson and Tunney engaged him to help arrange a match with Jack Dempsey for the title and to exploit Tunney if he won the title.

All seats for the Northwestern-Notre Dame football game at Dyche stadium have been sold, Kenneth L. Wilson, director of athletics at Northwestern University, announced last night.

The sellout insures a crowd of 48,000 for the contest, which will be a battle for middle western football honors if both the Wildcats and the Irish come through their other games undefeated.

Because of the limited capacity of Northwestern's home field it had been proposed that the game be played at Soldiers' field, the proceeds from all seats over the 48,000 available at Dyche stadium to be turned over to charity. Besides enabling 60,000 other football fans to see the game it was expected that the game at Soldiers' field would raise more than $150,000 for the relief of the poor, but after the two universities had agreed to transfer the game the faculty committee of the Western conference vetoed the plan because of a rule which requires that games of its members be played on home fields.

SNAGS PASSES

Capt. Molloy's Return Cheers Loyola Squad

Capt. Les Molloy worked out with Loyola university's football squad yesterday for the first time this week. He is still weak following several days' illness with a severe cold, but is expected to be in shape to play against De Paul university in the benefit game at Soldiers' field Sunday. Molloy, a half back, is one of the best line crashers in the Ramblers' squad.

The Loyola line, which has been disappointingly weak in previous games this season, showed a marked improvement in yesterday's drill. Coach Eddie Norton pitted his regular backs against the varsity line in scrimmage. The forwards, composed of McNeil and Weimer at ends, Gottschalk and Clancy at tackles, Poppelreiter and Nolan at guards, and Mike Waseco at center, stopped all thrusts.

Battle for Full Back.

The battle between Vic Napolilli and Wallie Durkin for the full back post has increased to such intensity that it will be a difficult matter for Dr. Norton to determine which should start against the Blue Demons.

Aerial offense was stressed in De Paul's long drill yesterday. Matt Steffen, nephew of Judge Wally Steffen, Carnegie Tech's coach, did most of the passing as well as the punting. He has shown marked ability as a passer in De Paul's two previous victories

Lyons, Coan at Ends.

It is reported by those in charge of the ticket sale that almost 40,000 tickets have been sold for the contest. The proceeds of the game will be given to the Rosary college building fund.

BUCKEYES FOOL BADGER SCOUTS WITH OPEN DATE

Now Wisconsin's in Dark About Saturday Foe.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Madison, Wis., Oct. 29.—It seems that Ohio State has put one over on Wisconsin in a football way. Wisconsin thinks it will make amends by slipping over a fast one on Ohio next Saturday, but just now it is what the latter has done to the former that is causing more or less concern.

There is a conference agreement among the coaches or somebody that a Big Ten team will not rest on a Saturday prior to meeting a member of the same league. The agreement is based on so-called good sportsmanship. Ohio, by not scheduling a battle for last week-end, broke this agreement, and now the Badger coaching board is groping around in the dark trying to devise defenses for whatever the Buckeyes may spring on them.

Ohio May Switch System.

Ohio, having no game, couldn't be scouted, and in the two weeks' stretch between its last start and its struggle with the Badgers has had ample time in which to switch its entire system of play. The Cardinals in their preparations thus are being forced to guess whether the Buckeyes will continue attacking according to the Warner system or revert to their formations of a year ago. The latter apparently were more successful.

It was Glenn Thistlethwaite himself who revealed that Ohio was guilty of a charge of disorderly conduct. He spoke of it in such a way as to indicate he wishes to have his audience think it was a grievous offense and that he was worried because he didn't know exactly how to prepared for eventualities. An hour later he was drilling his Cardinal jerseyed youths along lines that showed Wisconsin was perfectly satisfied with its defense, no matter what was thrown against it. Most of the work was on offense,which was so varied that Ohio is assured of at least a strenuous workout.

The drill on offense included a few new plays devised since the 7 to 6 noseout at Purdue last week. Old plays also were polished up against the B eleven, and the regular varsity was treated to defensive effort against Ohio State passes as put on by the freshmen. Scrimmaging, however, was light. The Badgers still are fairly well marked up as the result of their bruising 60 minutes with the Bollermakers, and Thistlethwaite wished to avoid, so far as possible, aggravating any of the hurts.

Names Probable Back Field.

Although not given to the habit of exposing his lineup in advance of a game, Thistlethwaite mentioned this evening that he might start off against Ohio with a back field made up of Walter Gnabah at left half, Sammy Behr at right, Ernie Lusby at full, and Charles Goldenberg at quarter. However, there will be replacement for this quartet or whatever the starting quartet proves to be.

Gnabah, reformed from a tackle, is just beginning to display skill in the back field. He's a big kid, with the speed of a deer, and there is hope that he will break out any minute as a skilled open field runner. So far he has had difficulty putting his speed to good use. He also is fairly adept on one end or the other of a forward pass combination.

Russ Rebholz, hooked up as a regular half, may not be among those present at the initial kickoff but that is no indication that he has fallen into disfavor because his kick for the tying point failed against Purdue. He's a fast lad and against the Bollermakers averaged 4 yards to the play, but is not built sturdily enough to permit him to play a full game. Thistlethwaite will turn him loose against the Buckeyes only if the going becomes tough.

Rebholz Blue Over Error.

Rebholz's miscue of a kick that may cost the Badgers at least a claim to the mythical Big Ten championship, has provided more proof that college competition can be taken too seriously. He had a great record for accurate

Savoldi, Eight Years in U. S., Plays Like an All-American

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

South Bend, Ind., Oct. 29.—So many thousands of spectators have let out so many thousands of yells in behalf of Joe Savoldi, Notre Dame's heavy duty football player, that it seems about time something was said of the first occasion on which Joe did a little yelling on his own hook.

Twenty-one years ago his somewhat puny cries told the world that another Savoldi was born. But there were very few to hear, for the event took place at midnight in a lonely Alpine villa several kilometers from Milan. And those who did hear had little time to heed, for they were huddled in the next room beside the bedside of Joe's grandfather, who lay dying with a stiletto slash in his throat.

Parents Return to Italy.

It was that mishap which caused Joe to be born in Italy instead of Michigan. His parents had been in this country for several years when a cablegram came one day telling how Joe's grandfather, who was a dealer in fine wines, had been making his way at night from Piedmont to his home near Milan.

It was a lonely mountain region which he was traversing, and he had a considerable amount of money upon his person, as he had just made a sizeable delivery. Somewhere upon the road he was robbed and stabbed and left lying in the bottom of his wine cart. Then the horses brought him home. He lingered for a month and died three hours after Joe was born.

Brother Also at Notre Dame.

Joe didn't have a chance to learn any football in his early days, for he remained in the mountainous country near Milan and went to one of the Italian schools, where the sport was practically unheard of. He lived there with his mother's people until he was 13 years old.

Then came the big day when he boarded a ship for America and went to live with his father and mother at Three Oaks, Mich. Meanwhile two other Savoldis had been added to the family, a brother, Clement, who also is at Notre Dame, and a sister several years younger.

During the years which followed the Savoldis prospered and the ice cream business, in which Joe's father engaged, expanded until he had stores in all four corners of Berrien county, to say nothing of two more in the middle.

Let me, Lord, a garden see,

OVERCONFIDENCE ABSENT AT FINAL PURPLE PRACTICE

Drill on Gopher Plays and Entrain.

Rain and sleet accompanied by a freezing wind caused much unpleasantness at Northwestern's grid football practice yesterday but failed to interfere with the heavy workout.

The Wildcats were given a long siege on fundamentals, starting with a session on the charging sleds, which was followed by a lengthy blocking drill. Practice terminated with a defensive scrimmage against the freshmen in which the latter interpreted Minnesota plays.

The frosh had little success in their gestures against the varsity. Capt. Hank Bruder and his mates appeared to have little trouble breaking up the passes and running plays shot at them.

Overconfidence Knocked Out.

Any overconfidence which members of the squad might have held as they approached Saturday's game with the Gophers has been worked out of them by this time. Three days of the heaviest practice of the season has convinced the Wildcats that the coaching staff anticipates stubborn opposition from Minnesota.

Coach Hanley desires a victory Saturday for several reasons, one of which is the fact that the game is the third time he has met Minnesota since he came to Northwestern. The Wildcats won the first game, 10 to 9, but dropped last year's encounter, 29 to 14.

Off for Minnesota.

The team will leave for Minneapolis tonight. Thirty-five players, together with coaches and trainers, will depart from the Davis street station of the Chicago and North Western railroad at 8:49 o'clock, arriving tomorrow morning at 8 o'clock.

Jimmie O'Mara, reserve half back, who scored the final touchdown against Illinois two weeks ago, will not accompany the squad. An injury to his nose received in the Illini game has developed complications which will keep him out of the game for the remainder of the season.

Al Moore, half back, rejoined his mates yesterday after being out all week. He will be ready to play Saturday. Dick Fencl, sophomore end, however, will not be available. His broken hand was placed in a plaster cast and it is not likely that he will get back in the game for two weeks.

Babe Ruth and Wife to Adopt Two Girls Today

New York, Oct. 29. — [Special.] — George Herman (Babe) Ruth, idol of professional baseball, is scheduled to appear tomorrow in Surrogate's court to adopt two children, it was learned today. The children, both girls, are Dorothy Helen Ruth, 9 year old ward of the ball player and his first wife, the late Mrs. Helen Woodford Ruth, and Julie Hodgson, daughter of his present wife, Mrs. Claire Hodgson Ruth, former actress and widow. The children have been living with Mr. and Mrs. Ruth since the couple married in April, 1929, it was said.

The wish to adopt Dorothy Helen legally has long been one of Ruth's greatest desires. Mystery has surrounded her since Ruth and his first wife announced her birth in 1922. At the time the ball player said the girl had been born in the Presbyterian hospital on Feb. 2, 1921. Mrs. Ruth was quoted as saying the child was born in St. Vincent's hospital on June 7, 1921.

Cultural Grid Title's Open to Maroons

BY HARVEY WOODRUFF.

Chicago and Princeton football elevens will meet Saturday at Stagg field before an estimated crowd of 30,000 persons for the "cultural" gridiron championship. Lest there be any question of choice of words, the writer may state the word "cultural" is authorized.

Before attending secret practice to prepare the Maroons for the oncoming Tigers, we dropped in for a chat with "the Old Man." We suggested that all football games should be for some title to command popular interest, and that "cultural" would be fitting for two universities which boast such high entrance requirements. Director Stagg replied, "Call it cultural, if you wish. It is a contest between undergraduate representatives of two great universities, both of whom have proud athletic histories, although neither has met great success on the gridiron so far this year."

Then we rambled over the years and Stagg pointed out that Chicago, along with Michigan in the middle west, had been a pioneer in the developing of intersectional football. Way back in 1894, two years after the university opened, Stagg took a team to the Pacific coast and defeated Leland Stanford, 24 to 4, losing a second contest 12 to 0. Thereafter, Chicago inaugurated series with Cornell and Pennsylvania. In 1899 Cornell, Penn and Brown were on the schedule.

So on down through the years, the Maroons played frequent intersectional contests against eastern and southern elevens. It was considered a great honor when Princeton, in 1921, agreed to a home and home series. Saturday's contest will be the fourth game between the two teams, Chicago having a margin of two to one on those previously played. Following the end of the Princeton contract this fall, Yale will come to Stagg field next year, its first appearance in middle western territory.

So Chicago views the impending struggle not as a contest between a Princeton eleven which has lost three games in succession for the first time in history and a Chicago eleven which has yet to win a major fray but as a game in which victory would atone for all previous disappointments. Because there is a nonscouting agreement, Maroons have no idea how strong or how weak the Tigers are, except as they have read the newspapers.

Just as a precaution, however, the Maroons will light their "victory bonfire," for which boxes already are piled high at the northeast corner of Stagg field, tonight instead of Saturday night. The boxes will be fired in connection with a student pep rally which starts with a parade, led by the band, through the university district and ends at Stagg field, where speeches and presentation of members of the team will be made to the student body.

Princeton's fireworks will be vocal when the team and its coaching staff are present Friday night at a national alumni dinner of the sons of Old Nassau, who have taken 10,000 seats for the Saturday festivities. Coach Roper and his Tigers will arrive tomorrow morning at the Englewood station at 11:15 o'clock and will go to their quarters at the Hotel Windermere East, with an afternoon workout at Stagg field.

The Maroons yesterday indulged in what probably will be their final scrimmage before the Princeton game. Two elevens took it out on each other in attempted line plunges. Knudson and Paul Stagg were withheld for fear of injuries to the already depleted regulars. Kanne, calling signals; MacKenzie, Stackler, and Birney constituted one back field, with Wallace at quarter, Green, Summers, and Buzzell as the opposing ground gainers. Forward passing drill is scheduled for today.

Reds to Shift Training Camp to Tampa, Fla.

Cincinnati, O., Oct. 29.—(AP)—Sidney Weil, president of the Cincinnati Reds, said tonight it was "most likely" the Reds would train in Tampa, Fla., next spring instead of Orlando, Fla., where they have trained for eight years.

President Weil added that he had not definitely decided on Tampa, but that "everything points to that selection."

STUDENT RALLY BUOYS HOPE OF TIGER ELEVEN

Coach and Captain Voice Confidence.

Princeton, N. J., Oct. 29.—[Special.]—One of the most enthusiastic mass meetings ever held in the history of Princeton university was held here tonight when a crowd of of 800 students convened in Taylor hall to give the football team an appropriate send-off for its game with the University of Chicago at Chicago on Saturday. The Princeton squad will leave for Chicago tomorrow.

BILL ROPER.

Speeches were made by President John Grier Hibben, Coach Bill Roper, and Capt. Dick Mestres, all of whom expressed confidence in the team and expectations of favorable performance by the Tiger eleven in its remaining games.

President Hibben declared he never has attended a massmeeting in Princeton where he beheld so much enthusiasm and complete support of the team. He pointed to previous times in Princeton football history when the outlook was gloomy, and stated that he was confident that the team would show to good advantage in the next three games.

Has Faith in Roper.

Of Coach Roper and Capt. Mestres, President Hibben said that he had great confidence in them, "more than words can express."

The president praised the record compiled by Roper since he first took charge of coaching at Princeton and said the gridiron coach has been most helpful in the administration of campus affairs, running the teams, massmeetings and the honor system.

"I have always counted on Coach Roper, and never have been disappointed," added President Hibben. "When we estimate his services, it won't be by games lost, but by his many victories as well as his due defeats, and above all by what he has contributed to his alma mater by maintaining the traditional spirit of Princeton men."

Mestres Is Confident.

Coach Roper expressed satisfaction with the meeting, and said that with the whole school behind them, the players will do good things.

"We've had a bad season, but the Yale game is ahead," concluded Roper, Mestres radiated confidence in his address and bluntly stated that his team was out to win the next three games.

Col. Hammond Take's Bruen's Job at Garden

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 29.—Col. John Hammond, who was in charge of hockey at Madison Square Garden until a month ago, will return to the Garden as general manager and senior vice president, to take the place of Frank Bruen, who resigned a few days ago.

The directors have assured President William F. Carey that he will remain boss of the Garden as a whole and that, while Hammond will have the title of general manager, he will have nothing at all to do with boxing. Whatever boxing matches are made for the Garden will be made by Matchmaker Tom McArdle, who will be responsible to nobody but Carey. Hammond will attend strictly to the hockey end.

Ross Ryder, Miami, Fla., publisher, asked Bruen to promote the annual battle of the palms in the Florida city in February if the Garden doesn't. However, the Garden corporation has a contract which gives it the exclusive right to promote anything that goes into the Miami arena during the months of January, February, and March, and an outsider would have to get permission from Carey to hold a fight there. Bruen refused today to discuss the possibilities.

Harry Schoening Named Minnesota Cage Captain

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 29.—(AP)—Harry Schoening, Appleton, Minn., was elected captain of the University of Minnesota basketball team today for the 1930-'31 season. Team captains were abolished by Dr. Clarence Spears, but reinstated when Frits Crisler took up coaching duties this year. Schoening is the third captain named in recent weeks.

Natalie Beats Camp in Cue Tourney Trial

Peoria, Ill., Oct. 29.—(AP)—Pasquale Natalie of Chicago tonight defeated Marcel Camp, Detroit, 100 to 52, in the first block of their qualifying match for the national pocket billiard championship tournament. Natalie gained his advantage in 18 innings. The remaining two blocks will be played tomorrow and Friday nights.

NEW 'IRON HORSE' STEAMS IN 1ST AT HAWTHORNE OVAL

My Dandy Wins His 43d Start of Year.

BY FRENCH LANE.

We have a new "iron horse" out here in the middle west. Most of you racegoers are on speaking terms with him, for his name is My Dandy.

He's so well known you might expect to meet him at State and Madison streets almost any day at lunch hour. But a few hours later you encounter him at the race track, for My Dandy goes into action nearly every day in the week.

My Dandy made his 43d start of the year in the Springfield handicap at Hawthorne, a dash at six furlongs yesterday. The old boy, who manages to get around pretty well despite the fact that he is blind in one eye and wears a sort of green colored monocle over his good eye, won by a nose from T. S. Jordan from Stuyvesant Peabody's stable. A head back of these two came Golden Prince.

Three Are Old Rivals.

The same three horses staged just the same kind of finish Oct. 21, but on that occasion T. S. Jordan was a nose in front and Golden Prince just a nose back of My Dandy. They ran six furlongs on that occasion in 1:12. My Dandy scored his victory yesterday in exactly 1:12. So whatever you want to say about these three old sprinters, My Dandy being 5 years old, T. S. Jordan, 9, and Golden Prince, 6, you can't say they are racing inconsistently at this late stage of the racing game.

It was My Dandy and T. S. Jordan which battled it out all through the Springfield handicap. Jordan showed his usual burst of early speed and flew into the lead after the start. My Dandy was only a head back of him and they raced that way to the turn. They ran in the same order around the bend and as they headed into the stretch My Dandy's nose showed in front for the first time.

Inches Apart at Finish.

With Jordan racing next to the rail and My Dandy just to the outside of him, Golden Prince came up on the outside of the pair in mid-stretch. Then came their ding dong finish. Neither gave or took an inch. My Dandy went on to win by inches and Jordan was only a few inches ahead of Golden Prince as they rushed past the winning post.

In the mutuels My Dandy was a slight favorite, but didn't have as many backers as usual. He paid $6.22 to win, $4.28 to place, and $3.20 to show. T. S. Jordan paid $4.76 to place and $3.18 to show. Golden Prince's show price was $3.30. There had been considerable support for Cog Air, which finished fourth.

In his 43 starts this year My Dandy has won 13 races, was second seven times and landed third money on three occasions, so he has been in the money in more than half of his engagements.

What Will Ohio Do? Wisconsin Can't Imagine

kicking after touchdown, but missed on the one of greatest importance, and the result, so far as he is concerned, is almost a case of melancholy. Around training quarters this week there has been no mention of the error. If he brought it up to any of his mates they kidded him. They told him that in another month nobody would remember anything about it. And they won't.

Another man who will see action as a Badger back next Saturday is Tury Oman, that phlegmatic Finn who will be forced to wear a mask because of a cheek bone which was crushed in a scrimmage last Monday. Oman, a good plunger, wasn't used against Purdue, and since then Thistlethwaite has been taken to task by those who work at soda fountains and in their spare time endeavor to manage the Badger squad. The youngster is supposed to have a weakness on defense, and that is why he wasn't employed against the Boilermakers, who like to pass. Of course, Thistlethwaite didn't say this, but little family secrets always leak out.

The Badgers will take a rather cautious workout tomorrow afternoon and then hop an evening train for Columbus, O. They will conclude their preparatory exercises in the Buckeye stadium Friday afternoon.

BANQUET IS ON AGAIN

Columbus, O., Oct. 29.—[Special.]—The Wisconsin and Ohio State football squads will be entertained by Scarlet Key, Ohio State managerial association, at a banquet Saturday night after the Badger-Buckeye game, it was decided today. Wisconsin turned down an offer to attend a dinner with their opponents on Friday night, Athletic Director George Little wiring that he did not "think it fair to ask a group of young men to sit opposite their opponents the night before a big game."

Head Coach Sam Willaman today sent the Ohio State varsity through a long scrimmage with the reserves. Blocking and forward pass defense were stressed. Four Buckeye players remained on the hospital list.

In an effort to bolster the attendance, which is likely to fall below 40,000, the officials today placed 10,000 general admission tickets on sale at half price.

ENGLISH PARLAY PAYS 6,020 TO 1 AS THE PEN WINS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, England, Oct. 29.—One of the biggest cleanups in English parlay betting was made today by two lucky betters in the British "tote" system, which is equivalent to the American pari-mutuel, when The Pen won the Cambridgeshire handicap at Newmarket at 50 to 1.

The total odds were rated at 6,020 to 1 on a double bet on today's race and the Cesarewich, won by Aga Khan's Ut Majeur several weeks ago. Under the English betting system the backers can pick a "double" on any two races any day. Only two investors in the "tote" picked the winners of these two races and they will be paid approximately $15,055 for a stake of $2.50.

BANK CLERK WINS.

QUEBEC, Que., Oct. 29.—(AP)—A pot of gold came today to a young Quebec bank clerk, Gerard Cote, who held one of the four tickets on The Pen, a 50 to 1 shot that won the Cambridgeshire at Newmarket, England.

Cote's share in the pool sponsored by the Army and Navy Veterans, now located at St. John's, Newfoundland, amounts to $67,827. The sweepstake was formerly conducted at Quebec, but was banished from the province this year by the attorney general, L. A. Taschereau.

THE PEN TAKES RACE.

NEWMARKET, England, Oct. 29.—(AP)—Mrs. Martin Hartigan's colt, The Pen, won the famous Cambridgeshire stakes today, starting at odds of 50 to 1. Racedale, at 100 to 9, was second, and The Recorder, at 7 to 2, was third. The Pen won by a head, while Racedale was half a length in front of The Recorder at the finish.

The Pen, a colt by Cygnus, out of Kilbrona, cost his owner only $1,050. He ran almost in the middle of the field of 31 starters until the bushes were reached, where Anthurium and The Recorder were up in front. The Pen, ridden by Jockey Clifford Richards, overtook the leaders, while Racedale moved into second place. The Pen was good enough to keep his head in front at the wire, but Racedale finished with a strong challenge.

Slipper, French contender, was a close fourth, with Finsovino fifth, Noble Star sixth, and Cat o' Nine Tails, second favorite at 8 to 1, seventh. Gaylord was last.

The Pen, carrying an impost of 100 pounds, covered the mile and an eighth in 1:50 4-5.

WAGNER THROWS MALCEWICZ, BUT LOSES BY INJURY

Jack Wagner of Providence, R. I., last night won his wrestling match against Joe Malcewicz at the Coliseum and then lost the decision when he was unable to return to the ring after the first fall because of a punctured rib.

In pinning Malcewicz Wagner first hit the floor, Malcewicz falling on him. On the roll Wagner pinned the Pole, but was unable to rise from the floor for several minutes.

An examination by the Illinois state athletic commission physician showed that the floating rib had slightly punctured the liver on the right side and Wagner will be laid up for several weeks. Before the fall and accident the bout proved one of the fastest of a night of action for the 1,200 fans who braved the rain to witness the first Chicago wrestling show of any importance in nearly a year.

Nevers Leads Cardinals to 33-6 Win at Milwaukee

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 28.—[Special.]—The Chicago Cardinals professional football team tonight defeated the Milwaukee Badgers here, 33 to 6. Ernie Nevers and Bill Beldon predominated in the Cardinals' attack. Milwaukee's score came in the final period. About 1,500 persons saws the game.

ONE IS INJURED AS BLACKHAWKS HOLD SCRIMMAGE

LONDON, Ont., Oct. 29.—[Special.]—Heleg Bostrum, defense player on the Chicago Blackhawks hockey team, was struck by a flying puck in today's practice at the London arena. However, the injury was not serious and he will be able to work out at the next drill.

Emil Iverson was in charge of the team in the absence of Coach Dick Irvin, who was in Toronto attending the National Hockey league meeting. There was a scrimmage with ten players on each team.

THESE ARE DARK DAYS IN ILLINOIS FOOTBALL CAMP

And Prospects for 1931 Are No Brighter.

BY WILFRID SMITH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Champaign, Ill., Oct. 29. — The gloomy days of 1921 and 1922, when football under Bob Zuppke at Illinois reached its lowest tide, are here again, for consecutive defeats by Northwestern and Michigan have equalled the number recorded in three preceding years.

When Red Grange finished his competitive span in 1925 many predicted frequent defeats for the Illini. However, another great team, in 1927, turned back Northwestern, Chicago, Michigan, Iowa and Ohio State and then, the following season, repeated its conference championship.

Finish Second Last Year.

For one more year, in which they finished second to Purdue in the Big Ten campaign, these veterans played for the Orange and Blue. Three lettermen of this era now are members of Zuppke's eleven which, on Saturday, faces the confident Boilermakers. The others are sophomores or squadmen unable to win varsity letters in previous campaigns.

What of the future? This is uppermost in the minds of alumni and students, who see scant hope for victory in the remaining games of 1930.

"Wait until next year. Zuppke needs a year for reorganization and rebuilding. Seven championships in 21 years can mean only one thing, that Illinois will start anew in 1931."

This seems to be the composite thought on football at Illinois. Defeat may be met philosophically for at least a year with such a victorious background.

Future Is Not So Rosy.

However, Illinois offers no more prospect for victory in another season than it does in this. Contrary to popular conception Zuppke's inexperienced eleven is not a sophomore team with championship around the turn of the calendar. From tackle to tackle, Illinois players will be graduated this year except Stanley Jensen, a guard. Capt. Olaf Robinson, recently a bridegroom, will be lost from this year's attack left. Moreover, the ranking substitutes for these positions also are seniors.

There's the freshmen eleven, from which in other years adequate varsity material has been drawn. But not at Illinois in 1931, for Zuppke regards the freshmen only a point or so above the average.

All of which means Zuppke must find some formula which will provide experience for the inexperienced and add weight to the stripling.

Many reasons, none officially stated, have been advanced by those in whom the desire to maintain the tradition of victory is ever present.

Revive an Old Story.

Success handicaps future successes, as wiseacres argue. Zuppke's teams of the last three years were too good. Athletes, who doubted their abilities to make Illinois varsity teams, chose other schools where they were reasonably certain of success.

The standard plea of alumni of secondary colleges in Illinois (and the state ranks second to Ohio only in number of these) is said to be: "Why go to Illinois? You can't make the team. Come to our school and you'll be the whole show."

Illinois has the largest enrollment of students in the Big Ten. According to 1929 figures there were 11,712 students on the campus at Illinois. Minnesota was second with 10,657. The other leaders were: Ohio State, 10,337; Michigan, 9,688; and Wisconsin, 9,464.

School's Too Big, They Say.

Those who would explain the lack of football material at Illinois believe that the size of the campus body is an argument against matriculation.

"You'll be overlooked. The school's too big." These expressions may have deterred the stream of half backs who otherwise might play for the Orange and Blue before thousands gathered in Memorial stadium.

But Illinois coaches say no man is overlooked. They never cut a player from the squad. They point to the "junior freshman league," where all freshmen candidates may play all season, and to the varsity players first discovered in this manner.

Illinois has no territory from which it can reasonably expect to receive athletic material exclusively. This is a third reason offered in campus discussions. Ohio State has Columbus, Michigan has Detroit, and Minnesota has Minneapolis, but Illinois has no metropolis from which it may draw football players already largely advanced in training under the coaches employed by the large high schools.

Chicago Quota Is Split Up.

Outstanding prep athletes in Chicago may select Northwestern or Chicago. Purdue is closer to Chicago than Illinois, while Wisconsin is equidistant. There are 2,300 students enrolled in the university this fall from Cook county, but there are only fifteen Cook county boys on both the varsity and B squads.

Capt. Olaf Robinson and Hunter Russell may be lost to the Illini Saturday against Purdue. Robinson missed practice tonight because of his hip injury received in the Michigan game. Russell twisted his knee in the last minutes of practice. Matt Bullock, trainer, believes both will be in shape Saturday. They cannot be in the best of condition.

STOP BERRY, PURDUE AIM

Lafayette, Ind., Oct. 29.—[Special.]—"Watch Berry!" was the slogan of Purdue's football camp as the Boilermakers went through a long defensive scrimmage this afternoon hopeful of adding up their third straight consecutive victory against Illinois at Champaign Saturday. Purdue scouts report Berry as a broken field runner who has few equals once he passes the line of scrimmage.

Purdue's forward wall will be the same that turned back Wisconsin. The back field choice, however, still remains a tossup, with Pope and Purvis battling for the starting half back assignment.

Kansas' Reply to Big Six Is "All Eligible"

Lawrence, Kas., Oct. 29.—(AP)—The University of Kansas replied to Big Six conference charges of subsidizing and recruiting of athletes today by declaring all its football squad eligible, including James A. (Jarring Jim) Bausch, whose amateur status has been specifically questioned because of his $75 a month job as insurance salesman.

In a statement following a 2½ hour session the university athletic board said: "With the evidence as collected and presented today this board feels that it is not justified in declaring any member of the present football squad ineligible."

Twenty-eight varsity players, including Bausch, were named to compete in the Pennsylvania game Saturday in Philadelphia. The squad entrained tonight. Arrival in Philadelphia is scheduled for early afternoon Friday, in time for the Jayhawkers to practice on Franklin field.

Board Ignores Charges.

The board made no reference to the charges which formed the grounds on which the conference faculty council voted last week-end to schedule no more contests with Kansas after the expiration of present contracts, which would be at the close of the coming basketball season.

The faculty council did not declare Bausch ineligible. Rather, it left to Kansas the responsibility for determining whether he should continue to play. Kansas has contended Bausch's amateur status is unquestioned, as shown by several university investigations. Today's statement bears out previous declarations.

Considers Attorney's Report.

The Kansas board considered a 45 page report of an investigation made for the board by Walter Thiele, Lawrence attorney, since the ostracism of the university. Part of the inquiry was personal questioning of varsity football players by Thiele.

Dean George C. Shaad, faculty council member from Kansas, who was present at the meeting at which Kansas was banned, issued a statement after today's session, in which he stated the board approved Thiele's investigation and authorizes the continuance of the services of Mr. Thiele at the discretion of the chairman of the board. The chairman is Chancellor E. H. Lindley. Action of the board indicates Kansas will go on its own, with no conference affiliation after the expiration of existing contracts.

Forest Preserve Golf Links Earn $75,256 in '30 Season

The four golf courses located in the Cook county forest preserves earned a total of $75,256 for the period from Jan. 1 to Sept. 30 of this year, President Cermak of the forest preserve district announced yesterday. For the same period in 1929 the profit was $49,674.

Illinois, Indiana Pheasant Season to Open Nov. 10

BY BOB BECKER.

Hunters desiring upland game bird shooting have been piling into South Dakota the last few weeks in order to collect big bags of pheasants, because this game bird is found out there by the thousands, whereas we ordinarily count 'em by the hundreds in the central states. At least this comparison gives a fair picture of the relative bird population of South Dakota when checked with other states. The ringneck has multiplied in the haunts of the prairie chicken until now it rules supreme in both of the Dakotas.

Illinois hunters who did not get their first pheasant hunting of the year in the northwest are going to be able to open up on this game bird in less than two weeks, because the season begins the morning of Nov. 10. Birds are quite plentiful this year. Consequently hunters who have permission to shoot over farm lands with cover suitable for pheasants should have little difficulty in bagging the Illinois limit of two cock pheasants per day.

Both Illinois and Indiana will tilt the lid on quail hunting on Nov. 10, so it won't be long now before the setters and pointers will be romping over the fields to locate coveys for their master. Although the prairie chickens have not been able to stand civilization and cultivated fields in Illinois and Indiana, with the result that but comparatively few chickens are left, the Bob Whites are holding their own fairly well and some surprisingly good quail hunting may still be secured in these states.

For both pheasant and quail hunting we recommend a double barrel gun. For quail the 26 inch or 28 inch double twelve with a cylinder bored right barrel and a modified left seems to be a favorite.

Nearly all quail shots are close. Therefore the desire for a wide pattern. We shoot a 16 gauge 28 inch gun, which has been our favorite quail weapon over a period of years. If you shoot a repeating gun with a full choke barrel, it's a good idea to slip on another barrel of more open bore for the Bob White stuff.

REDS PURCHASE TWO PLAYERS FROM GIANTS

New York, Oct. 29.—(AP)—The New York Giants today announced the outright sale of Walter Roettger and Raymond Fitzgerald, outfielders, to the Cincinnati Reds. The price was not announced.

Roettger, traded by the St. Louis Cardinals to the Giants for Eddie Farrell and George Fisher last April, batted .279 for John McGraw. Playing in 121 games, Roettger made himself highly useful to the Giants, fielding well and banging out 15 two baggers, 5 triples and 5 homers.

school, and it was not long before Papa Savoldi became so busy following his offspring's athletic career that he sold most of his ice cream stores. Joe set a state high school record of ten seconds for the 100 yard dash, took the center of the basketball floor, figuratively as well as literally, and made himself the terror of the Michigan prep gridirons.

Little Frog in Big Pond.

But high school days don't last forever and presently Joe came to Notre Dame, where everything was different. He had been the big frog in the little pond, but now he was just a little feller in the big one.

For two years he tried his best to convince somebody that he was a big time player but nobody would see it. Then came the Wisconsin game of last year. It was an early season encounter and the teams were thought to be about evenly matched. But the Badgers had left one item out of their consideration, and that item was that Joe Savoldi had picked this day to prove he was a big shot. He started with the shock troops and by the time he was through there wasn't much left for the regulars to do.

He proved himself an iron man of the old school a week or two later in the game against Carnegie Tech. When Notre Dame made first down on the eight yard line, the half was given to Joe four times in succession. The Scots' line was one of the most powerful in the country and the giant back field men were ready to plug up every hole but on the fourth smash at the center of that wall Joe surged over the goal line for the winning touchdown.

Circles Ends or Smashes Lines.

Don't get the idea that Joe is a wild man who chaws raw beef and grunts when he's spoken to. On the practice field he seems to be just an eager kid who's having a good time and when you meet him outside he's a smooth spoken fellow who seems to be quite normal.

There are many highly rated full backs who can do nothing but plunge, but that's not the kind of a full back Joe is. When he takes the ball the boys on the other side have no idea whether it's going to be a crack at the center of the line, an off tackle slant or a wide end run. It has been said that he looks around for one opponent who is standing alone and then makes straight for him, because no one man can stop Joe Savoldi.

Eleven fellows from Indiana university will try to do it next Saturday, but it's doubtful that any of them will succeed. Of course, the Savoldi family will drive down from Three Oaks to see the pride of the old home town go into action. Since Joe has become a national character his father has decided there are greater things in life than the ice cream business and has withdrawn from it entirely, so that nothing will interfere with the business of being Joe Savoldi's pa.

Army Sees Football Movies; Disagrees with Yale Version

West Point, N. Y., Oct. 29.—[Special.]—Army did not pile upon Albie Booth in the Army-Yale football game at New Haven last Saturday, according to the motion pictures of the play shown here today. Another Eli player, wearing No. 24, but not identified on the program, was the victim of what was criticized by Yale as unnecessarily rough tackling of Booth.

Shakes Off Tackler.

By using his famous hip motion, Albie wiggled out of Bowman's grip and, although the Army man still had hold of his ankle, was about to get free when Dick King, Army's left end, approached Booth and Bowman from the rear and tackled Albie cleanly.

At this juncture Jack Price, Army left tackle, made a dive at Booth, but landed on King's back and as Booth hit the ground Price fell beside him on top of King.

The picture showed that Booth's head struck the ground with great force. The impact knocked the ball out of his arm and it rolled to his right, coming to rest a few feet from him and on a line with his hips. At that moment Field Judge Kelly raised his arms, signifying that the play was over.

It was after that part of the action that the pile-up occurred. The Yale player wearing No. 24 fell on the ball and half of the members of both teams fell on him. Meanwhile Booth was lying on his back at one side of the pile, with King still on top of him and Price rising to his feet.

Cadets' Touchdown Legal.

The movies also showed, it was said, that the Cadets' touchdown was perfectly legal. Tom Kilday, Army back, was clearly seen to have scored the touchdown before Stecker pushed him from behind. Instead of moving him ahead, Stecker, the film revealed, hit Kilday in such a way as to make him fall sideways and slightly backward.

According to the movie revelations, the Cadets deserved the victory by a score of 7 to 6, for they were not offside when Yale attempted to score the extra point after its touchdown. Carlmark, the picture is said to show, stepped backward instead of forward, so that instead of being in motion toward the Eli goal line he was headed in the opposite direction. Army, therefore, should not have been penalized and Yale should not have been allowed the point which it failed to kick.

AMERICAN ASSN. ASKS MINORS TO DISCUSS DRAFT

The American Association, meeting here yesterday, asked the minor leagues to appoint a committee to meet with that baseball organization for a final conference on the draft controversy with the major leagues.

Representatives of the American Association met to consider the ultimatum of the major leagues that unless the minors submit to the draft rule by Dec. 1, relations would be severed.

The invitation sent out by the American Association suggested that the meeting be held in Chicago or some other centrally located city within the next few weeks in an effort to arrive at an agreement with the majors.

Louder Gong Installed for Coliseum Card

A gong which can be heard by the customers in the last row of the gallery, and, more important, by the contending fighters and the referee, has been installed in the Coliseum for tomorrow night's boxing card of six heavyweight bouts. Tuffy Griffith meets George Neron and Larry Johnson will oppose Natie Brown in the eight round windup battles.

Matchmaker Jim Mullen is taking no chances on a repetition of what occurred some three weeks ago at the Coliseum when Otto Van Porat kept on socking Angus Snyder after the bell in the first round and was ruled the loser on a foul.

The noisy gong, patterned after a fire bell, was Mullen's solution of the problem. Ear trumpets were suggested, but the boxers voted against them on the grounds they could not work efficiently while holding the instruments in place.

As the twelve heavyweights do not have to worry about getting down to a definite limit of poundage, they planned to spend today at various less strenuous sports, from backgammon to golf. All had their last workouts with the gloves yesterday afternoon at loop gymnasia.

Neron, the heavyweight champion of Greece, will have 1,000 of his countrymen to cheer him on against Griffith, but Tuffy expects to retaliate with as many west side supporters of his own.

In addition to the Johnson-Brown contest, there will be two additional eight round bouts and a pair of four rounders.

The supporting card for the Levinsky-Slattery and Von Porat-Renault bouts at the Chicago stadium Nov. 6 was announced by Matchmaker Nate Lewis yesterday.

Barney Ross, west side lightweight, will meet Petey Mack in the eight round semi-windup. Mack is a veteran of 146 ring battles, and has met Al Singer, champion of the division, on three occasions.

Nisse Ramm, Swedish light heavyweight, and Mickey McFarland, King Levinsky's sparring partner, will meet in one of the preliminaries. The other will feature Phil Ross, South Chicago, and Pep Justo, Madison, Wis.

Slattery will arrive in Chicago this morning and is scheduled to work out at Barry's gym this afternoon.

Chicago Volume Slumps to 100,000 Shares.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Comparative quiet reigned yesterday on the Chicago Stock Exchange on the first anniversary of the great market collapse of 1929. Instead of the record volume of 1,179,000 shares sold on Oct. 29 of a year ago, yesterday's turnover amounted to less than 100,000 shares. Prices were definitely easier.

Perhaps the failure of the U. S. Steel corporation directors to declare an extra dividend or to issue any statement on the business outlook reacted unfavorably on the market. While it was only the extreme optimists who had looked for such dividend action the matter had been so widely publicized that the reaction might prove a temporary check.

The trading was slow throughout the session. Insull shares continued to attract most of the attention but even in that group the volume of transactions was reduced substantially.

Sustain Losses.

Losses of 3 and 7 points were sustained by Commonwealth Edison and Public Service no par, respectively. In neither case, however, did the drop wipe out the previous day's gain. Middle West was soft and Insull Utility slipped back to 46⅝.

Motor shares and specialties pointed down on light trade. The turnover in Grigsby Grunow and Majestic was the smallest in months.

Exchange governors at their weekly meeting yesterday approved the listing of additional securities of four concerns. The listing of $7,000,000 sinking fund collateral bonds of the Utilities Power and Light Realty trust was coincident with the removal of $7,000,000 of the allotment certificates for the class "A" stock and the thirty year sinking fund debentures.

Other Listings.

Other listings included $15,000,000, principal amount, first lien and refunding mortgage bonds of the Public Service Company of Northern Illinois, which were sold by the company to Halsey, Stuart & Co. last July. An additional 4,305 shares of the Northern American Light and Power company, and 100,000 shares of the Wextark Radio company were also listed.

The removals from the list were: 187,000 shares of common stock of the American Colortype company; 1,745,703 common shares of the United Gas company, which merged with the United Gas corporation; $1,850,000 sinking fund bonds of the Saxtet company, which have been called for redemption Nov. 1, and 28,871 shares of prior preferred and 62,230 shares of participating preferred stock of the American Public Utilities company, both of which have been called for redemption Nov. 15.

STEEL OUTPUT DROPS; PRICES CREEP LOWER

Ingot Production 50% of Capacity.

A further decline in steel production and renewed weakness in prices were reported yesterday by the midweek reviews. The news served to dampen any enthusiasm that attended the United States Steel corporation's report on earnings, issued on Tuesday. Steel output now is at the lowest point since the midyear shutdowns for inventory taking and the trade reviews are rather chary about predicting any immediate improvement.

"Steel ingot production, reflecting seasonal contraction in tin plate and pipe output and absence of expected autumnal improvement in other lines, compared with 53 per cent a week ago," Iron Age says. "With further declines reported in scrap prices and in ingot output, the immediate outlook in the industry lacks promise. Reductions in old material prices have been general, affecting virtually all items listed.

May Be at Lowest Level.

"But with structural steel demand holding up fairly well and with a moderate amount of railroad business developing, it is possible that the present rate of operations will prove the low for 1930, barring year-end curtailment. To obtain further tonnage to offset losses in business in other directions, steel producers are pressing the railroads to place orders for cars and locomotives."

Orders for more than 550,000 tons of rails have been placed or are impending and two railroads will require 21,000 tons of steel for car building programs. New structural steel projects in the last week ran to 53,000 tons, the largest since the first week of September. Other outlets for steel that are showing seasonal improvement are the radio, washing machine, and stove industries.

No Influence Yet.

In its weekly review, Steel places production this week at only 49 per cent of capacity, compared with 52 per cent last week. "Neither the price stabilization program presented to the American Iron and Steel institute last week nor the effort to alleviate unemployment by stimulating the construction industries has yet had any influence on steel and iron," it continues.

"Undoubtedly, some requirements for steel will be created by the Hoover employment campaign, but it will take a little time for this business to reach the rolling stage. The consensus is that whatever demand is thus developed will do little more than offset seasonal November and December recessions and that a genuine upturn cannot be expected before the automotive industry revives, probably spring."

Reduces Dividend.

News from several steel companies also was less cheerful. Directors of the Colorado Fuel and Iron company reduced the annual common stock dividend from $2 to $1 by declaring a quarterly payment of 25 cents instead of 50 cents, previously paid. The company had a net loss of $774,793 for the third quarter, compared with net profit of $204,987 a year ago. Net earnings for the nine months this year aggregate $844,259, equivalent after federal taxes to $1.83 a share on the common stock. This compared with $1,823,541, or $3.89 a share, for the same period in 1929.

The Youngstown Sheet and Tube company reported third quarter net profit at $1,708,979, equivalent to $1.25 a share on the common stock, compared with $6,756,741, or $6.55 a share, a year ago. For the nine months this year net profit was $7,036,030, or $5.34 a share, compared with $17,294,114, or $16.87 a share, for the same period in 1929.

Says Prosperity's Return Hinges on Use of Surpluses

BY SCRUTATOR.

In the attack on current economic problems we may see now a group rallying to the support of the proposal that currency should be managed in a manner to create what might, for want of a better term, be called gentle inflation.

Only a few days ago an official of a leading Canadian insurance company urged that the federal reserve board had as much of a duty to inflate at a time like this as it had to deflate a year or more ago when the speculative markets at least were overinflated. Another instance that comes to mind is the criticism that Julius Barnes leveled at the governments of the world which had demonetized all silver.

There are few who can doubt that a good many of the ills of the American economic unit, or of the world, would be relieved greatly if prices represented in the ordinary commodity and living indexes were restored to where they were fifteen or sixteen months ago. But there is more than doubt that any attempts at inflation could be made successfully.

Theories Lack Importance.

Theories involving the quantity of money seem to have no practical importance at present. The lending of the federal reserve banks and of the commercial banks is small and the amount of money in circulation is small. But there is no shortage of money supplies and interest rates are low. The money market is like the commodity marts; it is a borrower's as well as a buyer's time. Authorities assert that the federal reserve board has done already all it can in the way of buying securities, just as it did what it could to deflate when that treatment was indicated.

Violent price level changes, or long continued declines in commodities as money grows more dear, are of tremendous importance. Possibly the whole setup of business is more of a battle between classes that are favored and those who are hurt by deflation than we generally realize. Debtors lose when the price level falls and creditors gain in real income. Bondholders gain and stockholders lose as the deflation progresses; the former because their fixed income buys more and the latter because inventories shrink in their hands and sales from which come their dividends are lessened.

Plenty of Credit Available.

In other areas there was enough of currency shortage to justify a belief that plenitude was a cure. Coxey's army marched because, actually, western farmers had to pay back their mortgages with twice as many bushels of wheat, as represented by currency, as they borrowed. Today in the United States there is plenty of money to borrow; the trouble is that there is no short cut by which to persuade legitimate borrowing for new productive capacity, for distribution, or even for speculation.

The saved up money is taking flight to safe refuges. Savings banks have more of it than a year ago; insurance companies sold over nine billions of life protection in nine months, more than in the same period a year ago. There is a lack of incentive to invest in equities while retailers' shelves are showing vacant spaces, while wholesalers and manufacturers are working off their old stocks, and while there is a general disinclination to buy because of a doubt that bottom price levels have been reached.

Present phenomena are familiar, except that the supply of credit available seems larger than in previous times of unemployment and uncertainty. The prosperity return depends on the realization by buyers who still have purchasing power and by their purveyors that the surpluses have been used up and production schedules inadequately maintained. That realization, if our statistics mean anything, is not too far off.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 29.—Chicago's big packers signed the packers consent decree in 1920 under the stress of post-war conditions which have radically changed since that time, F. Edson White, president of Armour & Co., declared today before Justice Jennings Bailey in the District of Columbia Supreme court.

F. EDSON WHITE. [Tribune Photo.]

Mr. White was the most important witness who has yet testified for the Armour and Swift companies in support of their petition for a modification of the consent decree so as to permit them to engage in the retailing of meats and other food products.

During the war, the Armour executive said, the United States food administration took as much as 65 per cent of the output of the large packers for the use of the armies and the civilian population of the allies. In order to keep the distributive organization in the United States profitably employed, he explained, the packers began handling foods other than meats.

He went on to say that after the war ended the packers expected to have their hands full feeding Europe, where the live stock had been decimated and where the people were hungry for meat. In consequence, he said, the packers were willing to sign the consent decree, with the result that their inability now to spread overhead expense and distributive costs over a greater volume and variety of products constitutes such a great handicap that producers and consumers as well as the packers are suffering from it.

In response to questions from Frank J. Hogan, counsel for the petitioning packers, Mr. White denied the existence of any agreement among the packers in the buying of livestock or in the sale of meat.

WHEATSWORTH DECLARES 25 CENT EXTRA DIVIDEND

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 29.—Wheatsworth, Inc., today declared an extra dividend of 25 cents a share on the common stock and the regular quarterly dividends of 25 cents on the common and $2 on the preferred stocks. A similar extra was paid three months ago.

Directors of the American and General Securities corporation, a subsidiary of the American Founders corporation, have declared an initial dividend of 12½ cents per share on the class A common stock for the quarter ending Nov. 30.

American Radiator and Standard Sanitary corporation reduced the annual common dividend rate from $1.50 a share to $1 by declaration of 25 cents a share quarterly. The regular $1.75 a share on the preferred also was declared.

Packard Motor Car company declared a dividend of 15 cents a share for the fourth quarter. Dividends at the rate of 25 cents were paid in the three preceding quarters this year.

Directors of the American Tobacco company declared a quarterly dividend of $1.25 a share on the common and common "B" stocks, placing the issues on a $5 annual basis.

The Libby Owens Ford Glass company omitted the quarterly dividend of 25 cents in order to conserve cash pending more favorable conditions in the glass industry.

Report Auto Makers Are Considering Price Cuts

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 29.—Widespread price reductions designed to stimulate business in the automobile industry are expected to be announced generally by leading manufacturers within a short time, it was reported today in Wall street. Sentiment in favor of the price cutting policy, as opposed to secret concessions, has been advanced, it was said, by the reported decision of one of the principal producers in the low priced field to announce soon a downward revision. Price lists have been altered several times this year, but recently these have been limited chiefly to models about to be discontinued.

To Ask High Court for Rehearing on Grain Case

The Illinois Supreme court will be asked to rehear the grain trading case in which it ruled that transactions in grain and other commodities are void when an understanding exists that no actual delivery would be made, but that settlement would be based on the difference of the market. The ruling was made in the suit of James K. Riordan of a Chicago commission firm against William McCabe, a downstate farmer. The Supreme tribunal upholding a lower court decision against Riordan. Attorneys said they would file the petition for rehearing immediately.

Make Stevens Chairman of Chicago Reserve Bank

BY O. A. MATHER.

Eugene M. Stevens, president of the Continental Illinois Bank and Trust company, will give up his position as an executive of Chicago's billion dollar bank to join the staff of the Chicago federal reserve bank. His appointment as chairman of the board and class C director of the reserve bank, effective Jan. 1, next, was announced last night by the federal reserve board in Washington, D. C.

EUGENE M. STEVENS.

Mr. Stevens will succeed William A. Heath, who has desired to retire for some time and had informed the board of his intention to retire at the expiration of his present term on Dec. 31.

Long Term of Service.

"Mr. Heath has had one of the longest terms of service of any of the chairmen of the federal reserve banks, having held his present position since Jan. 1, 1917," the statement by the reserve board said. "His long tenure of office is testimony to the fidelity, integrity and ability with which he has handled the responsibilities of the position from which he has asked to be relieved.

"Mr. Stevens comes to the federal reserve system with the high credentials of a long, varied, and successful banking, financial and business experience in Chicago and the upper Mississippi valley, in the course of which he became president of one of the largest and most important banking institutions in the United States—the Continental Illinois Bank and Trust company."

Endorsed by Directors.

"The directors have for over two years known of Mr. Heath's desire to be relieved at the expiration of his present term, if not before, and only at his own request have reluctantly consented to his retirement," he said. "The appointment of Mr. Stevens is highly gratifying. Few men have a more extensive acquaintance in banking and business circles over the country or a broader knowledge of business conditions."

Following the statements of the reserve officials, Arthur Reynolds, chairman of the Continental Illinois bank, announced the resignation of Mr. Stevens as president.

Cites Personal Sacrifices.

"The federal reserve board is to be commended on its policy of securing the highest type men for the important positions in the federal reserve system," he said. "The board is very fortunate in securing the services of Mr. Stevens. The willingness of such men as Benjamin Strong, Eugene Meyer, Gates McGarrah, and Eugene M. Stevens to make financial sacrifices, give up outstanding banking positions and accept these places is a high tribute to the citizenry of the country and is further evidence of the unselfish spirit which prompts Americans to make personal sacrifices for the benefit of the nation.

"We are sorry to lose Mr. Stevens as president of the bank but we recognize that the position which he will occupy is one of importance and one in which he can render great service to the country."

TOBACCO TAXES THIS YEAR SHOW $1,289,547 RISE

Washington, D. C., Oct. 29.—(AP)—An increase of $1,289,547 in tobacco taxes collected by the government in the first nine months of the 1930 calendar year as compared with the same period last year was shown today in figures announced by the internal revenue bureau.

The total tobacco tax for the period was $342,737,534, as compared with $341,447,987 last year. The increase was due entirely to an advance in the cigaret tax, which jumped from $271,671,338 last year to $276,204,079 this year.

The tax collected on cigars declined about $2,000,000 to $14,306,687.

New York, Oct. 29.—Bears just will be bears in times like these, it seems, on the floor of a big stock exchange. Take today's market for example. With nothing more substantial in the way of excuse than the failure of the United States Steel corporation to declare an extra dividend, the bears went on their naughty behavior at the very outset of proceedings and kept things more or less mussed up for the full five hours of trading.

They got particularly rough at times with the shares of some of the country's premier concerns. United States Steel, for one, wabbled out of the scrimmage with a net loss of 4 points. Eastman Kodak was booted for a drop of twice as much, while a sizeable group of others of high class standing such as Consolidated Gas, Johns-Manville, and General Electric were driven down anywhere from 1 to 3 points.

Rally Faint Hearted.

Forces working for the rise succeeded in getting a rather faint hearted little rally afoot in the late trading and in hoisting some of the outstanding victims of the early selling above their lows of the day. The list as a whole, however, was a pretty bedraggled looking affair at the close. What gains there were were widely scattered and very largely confined to the less important issues.

As on most other days of the long drawn out current decline there was little in the way of stock market news developments outside of that United

Top yesterday, $8.50; average, $7.65.

Estimated receipts at Chicago today, 10,000 cattle, 32,000 hogs, and 16,000 sheep.

The hog market weakened after a 10@15c higher opening yesterday and the advance was erased before the close. Some late sales were slightly below the previous session. However, larger interests bought readily at the late reduction and only 4,000 remained at the close in spite of the liberal receipts in sight for today.

The general average moved up 10c at $9.30, while the top showed 5c gain at $9.65. Bids of $9.70 for fancy sorts were lost after first rounds and reported sales at this figure failed to materialize.

Small packers, city butchers and shippers bought sparingly. Armour, Swift and Wilson handled about 11,000 hogs, or 45 per cent of the total number on sale. Five western markets expect 56,500 hogs today, against 40,900 last Thursday.

October Hogs Bring $9.80.

A sharply higher market for October contracts featured the hog futures market yesterday, mediums for this month's delivery at $9.80 being highest for October mediums since this month's contracts have been traded in on the futures market. December light and mediums were offered at $8.85@8.90, but $8.65 was the highest bid.

January light and mediums were offered at $8.90@9.00 and bid $8.80. November offers were $9.40@9.50 and no bids made. On the "to arrive" market hogs averaging 210@260 lbs for today's delivery were bid $9.40.

Demand in the cattle market centered on light steers and yearlings at strong prices, but buyers neglected offerings exceeding 1,200 lbs. Extreme weights were a drug on the market toward the close, when losses of as much as 25@50c were uncovered in sales of 1,200@1,500 lb averages at $10.00@11.50. Highly finished 1,504 lb steers sold earlier in the day at $12.50, and 1,135 lb long yearlings reached $13.25.

Lambs Hold Firm.

Lambs held firm on small receipts yesterday with some of the best natives and westerns showing gains of as much as 15@25c in mid-session. Closely sorted natives to city butchers sold at $8.25@8.50, while packers bought a good many around $8.00 and took most buck lambs at $7.00. A large string of Idaho range lambs sold at $8.25.

Aged sheep and yearlings were unchanged. Feeding lambs sold strong at $6.25@7.00, with best black face stock quoted at $7.25@7.40. Sheep receipts are running unusually small for the time of year, the results of last week's drastic cut in quotations. Only 32,500 are expected at five markets today, against 72,200 the previous Thursday. Receipts at seven points in three days decreased 60,000 head.

Receipts at Chicago for today are estimated at 10,000 cattle, 32,000 hogs and 16,000 sheep, against 6,196 cattle, 17,916 hogs and 30,291 sheep on the previous Thursday and 7,095 cattle, 34,160 hogs and 11,946 sheep a year ago.

WHEAT PRICES HOLD WITHIN A NARROW RANGE

Corn Drops Rapidly for 1½ to 2½c Losses.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Wheat prices held within narrow price limits the greater part of yesterday with outside interests the smallest in some time. The market paid little attention to the news until the last when a sharp decline in corn led to local selling which disclosed a lack of support. The finish was at net losses of 1@1¼c with old December at 78⅛@78¼c; March, 83¼@83⅜c; May, 83⅛@83⅜c, and July, 84½c.

There was nothing in the fruit reports from Argentina to cause wheat traders to become enthusiastic on the buying side, and for a number of weeks the market has been dominated more by pit operations than by anything else. In the last ten days prices have had a range of around 2½c with bulges and breaks following each other rapidly.

Await Argentine News.

Weather conditions in Argentina were reported as unfavorable for the development of rust in the wheat crop in Cordoba and Santa Fe provinces, but all cables confirm reports that it has made its appearance. There is no disposition shown here and abroad to press the selling side on the depression in the price.

Taken as a whole the general news from abroad has not been favorable for an advance in the price of wheat. Germany and Poland were reported not offering grain to Liverpool yesterday at 77⅛@79c per bu, or materially below a parity with futures. Short coverings lifted the latter ⅛@⅝d in Liverpool on Wednesday, although that market failed to fully reflect the upturn in North America the previous day. Argentina is not offering new wheat in any volume, but closed ⅛@⅜c lower for the day with February in Buenos Aires quoted at 69⅜c.

Stormy weather has developed in the Canadian northwest and it is feared that threshing operations will have to be suspended again. Winnipeg was relatively firm throughout the day with the close ⅛@½ lower. Export demand continues to be reported as slow with sales of 250,000 bu, although there were intimations that a much larger business was being done than reported. This is partly confirmed by the continued liberal weekly exports from the leading ports.

Domestic demand for flour generally was reported as slow, with feeds at Minneapolis selling at the lowest basis of the season. Feeders are said to have discovered that low grade wheat can be bought and ground for a lower price relatively than bran and other mill by products.

Cash Corn Declines.

Weakness in new cash corn at the start, with late sales showing as much as 3c lower as compared with the December, led to increased pressure on futures and prices dropped rapidly with the nearby months leading the decline. Final sales were at net losses of 1⅛@1¾c, old December finishing at 76⅛@76¾c; March, 78⅞@79c; May, 81⅝@81¾c, and July, 83c. Buying against bids helped to check the decline, but the trade was not large and the market easily influenced. Interest of late has been largely of a professional character.

The trade is waiting for the coming private crop estimates on corn, but there is no certainty as to what they will show with some looking for a yield as high as 2,100,000,000 bu, with others anticipating somewhat under 2,000,000,000 bu. Charters were made for 120,000 bu to Georgian Bay.

Three Companies Meet Humble Oil Price Cuts

Houston, Tex., Oct. 29.—(AP)—Three major companies today announced they had met crude oil price cuts of 1 to 10 cents a barrel, instituted in Texas fields yesterday by the Humble Oil and Refining company. The Texas company included north Louisiana and the gulf coast in its new schedule. The Sinclair company met the reductions on all grades of Texas crudes, including the gulf coast. Gulf Pipe Line company posted prices equivalent to the Humble reductions for north Louisiana and all of Texas except the gulf coast. At Dallas, the Magnolia Petroleum company, which made reductions yesterday in Texas, Oklahoma, and Kansas, announced decreases in other territories today ranging from 30 to 36½ cents a barrel on crude.

Northwest Grain Assoc. to Advance Up to 70% Value

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 29.—(AP)—Advances up to 70 per cent of the value of grain stored in farm bins will be made to member elevators of the Northwest Grain association in North Dakota and Montana, W. J. Kuhrt, general manager of the region cooperative, announced today. The advances, Kuhrt said, like those made on elevator stored grain, will bear interest at the rate of four per cent in addition to nominal charges for handling, insurance, and administrative expenses. All loans must be closed out and the grain delivered by July 10, 1931.

Near Copper Producers May Curtail Production

New York, Oct. 29.—(AP)—Wall street understood that F. Pisart and Emile Gutt, leading copper producers of the Belgian Congo, today met informally a number of American producers in what was interpreted as the forerunner of a series of conferences looking to world-wide curtailment of production. The meetings were private and comment was withheld. The two foreign producers arrived yesterday and expressed their willingness to enter into negotiations for curtailment of production.

CASH GRAIN NEWS

While reports from the seaboard continue to indicate only a limited foreign demand with sales of 250,000 bu estimated in all positions, a late message from a New York exporter said there was reason to believe that the amount of wheat being sold abroad was much larger than assumed. Considerable activity was reported in freights. No. 1 hard winter at the gulf was nominally 2½c over Chicago December.

WORLD'S GRAIN MARKET NEWS

Wheat traders say that the market for the time being is largely a narrow trading proposition, with no particular trend. They believe, however, that liquidation by holders of December will increase from now on, and that after it is completed the situation will be improved. One of the closest pit observers said that he saw nothing in the situation for the immediate future. At the same time he observed that there is scale buying support on all weak spots and good selling on all bulges. This creates an impression that some strong interest is trying to hold the market on all breaks.

Corn bulls are said to be getting discouraged and look for an increasing movement of old and new grain from the country. Premiums on cash corn are decreasing and the demand is not showing evidence of enlargement.

A Winnipeg trader expressed himself as more friendly to the buying side of wheat, believing that prices are at a level where resistance is to become a more important factor. Consumers, he says, are showing increased interest, with a resultant fairly steady export business daily. Argentine news, he says, should be watched closely as the next price making factor.

RAW SILK.

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—(AP)—SILK—Raw futures closed steady. Sales, 1,520 bales. Dec., $2.33; March, $2.28; May, $2.27. Open market quotations [sixty day basis], Shanghai steam extra B, $2.80. Canton double extra A, 14-16, $1.90. Japanese crack double extra, $2.70.
